TRAVEL FRAUD CLAIMED

Olympic Blues For Marinites

By ALAN JONES

Marin authorities said today that a San Rafael travel agent sold phony tickets to the Olympic Games in Mexico City and then invented his own Olympic event — the running start.

The district attorney's office today filed three counts of grand theft against Richard C. Palmer, charging he sold airline tickets and accommodations for the Olympics, but pocketed the money himself.

Specified thefts total $2,207, but additional thousands may be involved, authorities said.

Deputy Dist. Attorney Gary W. Thomas said Palmer joined Century 21 Travel Agency of San Rafael and became controlling partner, then diverted travel payments from Earl Josephson of Oakland, R. P. Hooper of San Francisco and Rudolph Benton of San Francisco.

Benton, according to the complaint, is still in Mexico City after arriving there during the Olympics to find no accommodations in return for $800 he had given Century 21.

Josephson, the complaint charged, paid $433.80 to the World Explorers Club, another organization of Palmer's, for Olympic tickets but arrived at San Francisco airport Oct. 17 to be told his airline reservations had been canceled because Palmer was out of funds.

Hooper told San Rafael police he paid $974 to the World Explorers Club for an Olympic tour by himself and his son-in-law, but was notified a few days before departure that their accommodations were not available. Hooper asked for a refund, but found the Century 21 office at 1414 Fourth Street closed and empty.

Mrs. Virginia M. Yarbrough, who ran Century 21 before Palmer became controlling partner, told police that Palmer had stripped the office of its furniture and records. Another employee, Stan F. Lando, told police Palmer rented a van Oct. 17, took the furniture to San Francisco and sold it.

Judge Favors Constitution Rewordings

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court has proposed the U.S. Constitution be amended to make Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination apply at the time of arrest rather than during trial.

The judge advocated the change in an open letter yesterday to Democrat Sen.-elect Alan Cranston and Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

He pointed out that recent Supreme Court decisions have in effect applied the Fifth Amendment from the moment of apprehension, and that most other countries of the free world require that an accused person answer questions put to him during trial.

"The clamor for law and order in every part of the American community, from Nob Hill to the ghetto, demands and will receive attention," the judge wrote the two lawmakers.

Warning against the possibility of a drift into a police state, he suggested that the proposed constitutional change "will assist in protecting the public and convicting the criminal without in any way moving toward fascism or destroying safeguards deserving protection."

"During the past decade the decisions of the United States Supreme Court have made it clear that it is useless for an accused person to have the right to remain silent when his case comes to trial if a usable confession has been exacted from him prior to the day of trial. Therefore, the privileges and protections of the Fifth Amendment have been carried back to meaningful points at the time of arrest and in the police station by the enlightened decisions of the court. . . .

"There is no longer any reason why we should allow a person to plan his criminal acts with the shelter of the Fifth Amendment in mind, or to come into court and hide behind any part of the Constitution which we have designed to protect all of the people, rather than just criminal elements. Most of the free world has thought it proper to require that a person charged with crime shall stand in open court in the light and with the protection of the public gaze, in the presence of the press, and

Multimillion-Dollar Frauds Charged In Medi-Cal Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch reported today that unscrupulous professionals are bilking the state's vast medical care program for the poor by $6 million to $8 million a year.

In a report on an investigation started eight months ago, Lynch charged that physicians, druggists, nursing homes, hospitals and optometrists and others paid by Medi-Cal received kickbacks, faked claims and "overserviced" patients.

The report named no names and called for no indictments. The probe was conducted chiefly to learn the nature of abuses, he said.

It recommended major remedial reforms—including hiring at least 10 investigative agents —and criticized the $600 million a year program as "hastily conceived and implemented."

It was created two years ago to help 1.5 million "medically indigent," those not necessarily on welfare but unable to pay their medical bills.

Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Charles A. O'Brien, who ordered the investigation, said funds cheated from Medi-Cal constituted about 1 per cent of the yearly program budget. He equated it with million dollar bank robberies.

Recent published reports quoted sources as saying abuses could run as high as 20 to 30 per cent.

'WHOLE NEW BALL GAME'

President-Elect Gets Rides In Official Jet, Limousine

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Richard M. Nixon who sweated out the tabulating of presidential ballots early yesterday doesn't look, act or think any differently today but, as President-elect, somehow he's different—and his world is vastly different.

Departing from Kennedy International Airport, he was taken aboard a military version of the KC-135 refueling tanker, predecessor of the civilian Boeing 707. The Air Force craft —called "The Tomb" by its crew because it has only four windows—marked Nixon's new status as heir to the nation's highest office.

Then driving from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's bedside at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, Nixon rode in a White House limousine. Moreover, it was THE limousine, the recently delivered presidential bubble-top that even Lyndon B. Johnson hasn't used.

Everywhere Nixon went, security seemed tighter than when he was just a candidate. And there were cheering crowds in places where candidate Nixon had drawn only a few of the curious just a few days ago.

Part of that ball game involves the alloting of federal appointments in the Nixon administration—a subject that arose immediately within the camp of the President-elect because of election developments in his old home state of California.

The trigger was the election of a Republican-controlled Assembly in California, which means the GOP must find a successor for Democrat Jesse M. Unruh as speaker.

A number of Republicans, quite naturally, covet this powerful post. But they must take account of the fact that Nixon may award a federal post to the state's lieutenant governor, Robert Finch, who is one of Nixon's oldest and closest political advisors.

Should Finch move to Washington, Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan would appoint a successor—and some of the same political figures who would like Unruh's job might like the lieutenant governorship even more.

The President-elect is expected to spend several days here on this island connected by causeway to Miami. He'll be resting, relaxing and starting work on the formation of a new administration.

Marin City's Planner Role Is Debated

By STEPHEN COOK

Has the Marin County Redevelopment Agency abdicated its active role in Marin City planning in favor of local planning control by the nongovernmental Marin City Council? (Another Marin City story, page 19.)

Not even the directors of the agency are certain, as evidenced by spirited debate at their meeting last night in Marin City.

Whatever the outcome, it was evident at the meeting that various public and private organizations at work in Marin City are in a state of flux out of which many hope will evolve responsible local control and a viable plan for development.

Director Phillip S. Erlich Jr. told the board that the agency has "withdrawn from an active planning role. We are no longer the prime mover in master planning. In the sense of the community, this is invested in the city council."

That is impossible, said Director Vera Schultz. The function of the redevelopment agency, as created by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, is to review and implement the Marin City Master Plan, she said.

She objected to the "indefineable way that this agency is permitting its function to be taken over by voluntary groups. I am for involvement by all the people of Marin City. I don't think this is going to be accomplished by meetings that are secretly held."

Mrs. Schultz was referring to an unannounced meeting Monday of the Marin City Community Services District, Marin

U.S. Losses Rise; Red Rockets Kill Civilians

SAIGON (UPI)—A Communist rocket slammed into a suburban Saigon hamlet, killing three Vietnamese, military spokesmen said today.

A pregnant woman and two other persons killed by the 107 mm rocket blast 10 miles southeast of Saigon were the first civilians dead in Red shellings which have continued since all bombing of North Vietnam stopped.

Five other civilians suffered wounds.

The shelling yesterday coincided with a battle on the northern coast that possibly marked the end of what military observers had been calling a month-long lull in major ground fighting.

U.S. headquarters today said 150 Americans died in action last week, the highest toll in three weeks. Another 1,214 were wounded. South Vietnamese battle deaths also rose, to 129 killed, and Communist losses were put at 1,393 dead.

The northern coastal battle erupted 20 miles south of the U.S. base at Da Nang. A patrol of U.S. Marines ran into a Communist fortress and summoned tanks and jet planes to batter the stronghold.

In Tokyo, Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, assistant commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, told newsmen today the Communists had pulled back from South Vietnam's cities because of a series of military defeats.

San Francisco State Quiet After Temporary Closure

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Classes resumed at troubled San Francisco State College today as student pickets marched outside campus entrances in an effort to enforce a strike that backfired yesterday.

Roving bands of nonwhite militants terrorized classes on the 18,000-student campus yesterday, resulting in administration orders for a complete shutdown of the college. No arrests were made.

Members of the police tactical squad left the campus yesterday after the protest was broken up. A surveillance squad remained through the night but a college spokesman said all city police were off campus this morning.

Placard-carrying pickets stopped students entering the campus today and explained the aims of the strike.

Some turned away, but a college spokesman said that at the business and social science buildings "for the most part they seemed to be entering."

The student group called the protest tobring pressure on the administration for 10 demands by the Black Student Union.

'On-The-Spot' Look At Vietnam Urged

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyan Van Thieu, seeking to establish close ties quickly with the prospective Republican administration invited Richard M. Nixon today to visit South Vietnam.

In Key Biscayne, Fla., where the President-elect is on vacation, an aide said there would be no immediate comment. And there was no indication in Saigon as to whether Thieu had reason to believe Nixon would accept.

The White House declined to say whether Thieu had discussed the invitation previously with Washington. The State Department had no comment.

In a message congratulating Nixon on his victory, Thieu said: "The Vietnamese government, the Vietnamese people and our soldiers fighting in the front lines against Communist aggression will be most happy to receive on Vietnamese soil a staunch defender of freedom, which you have been for many long years."

Thieu said Nixon would be most welcome "if you wish to make an on-the-spot assessment of the war and the situation ahead." Thieu presumably meant before Nixon takes office in Jan. 20.

Thieu's message to Nixon, warm in tone, suggested official enthusiasm in Saigon over the Republican victory.

STRONGER BONDS

"I am confident that with you at the helm of the United States, the very close bonds of friendship and solidarity which for many years have united our two countries will be strengthened and our efforts, together with those of our allies, to attain the common goals we have set—the preservation of freedom in this part of the world and the establishment of a durable peace in honor and with justice—will be crowned with success."

While South Vietnamese leaders have been officially neutral on the U.S. election, many were known to be ardent supporters of Nixon against Hubert H. Humphrey, particularly since the split over the Paris talks.

Nixon in the campaign expressed readiness to go to Paris or Saigon before his inauguration if President Johnson felt such a mission to either capital would help toward peace.

EARLIER VISITS

Nixon already has made seven trips here. His most recent visit was a four-day stopover in April 1967 on a world fact-finding tour to lay groundwork for his political campaign.

Problems of security and safety could make difficult any visit to Saigon by so prominent a figure as the American president-elect.

President Johnson has made two visits to the huge U.S. coastal supply base at Cam Ranh Bay, under the tightest secrecy. The base was considered to be the most secure in Vietnam but even it has been shelled since Johnson's last visit.

Boycotted Paris Talks Mark Time

PARIS (AP) — U.S. negotiators marked time today while hoping for developments in Washington and Saigon that could clear the way for starting the delayed new round of talks on ending the Vietnam war.

At this juncture in U.S. negotiating strategy, a peace mission by President-elect Richard M. Nixon—if he undertakes one before his Jan. 20 inauguration —would perhaps be more worthwhile to Saigon than to Paris.

NIXON OFFER

Nixon has said he would travel to either capital if President Johnson felt this would help the stalled peace discussions. President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam invited Nixon there today.

The principal hangup now is with Thieu, whose boycott of a planned expanded Paris conference forced the Americans to put off its scheduled opening yesterday.

Thus a Nixon notice to Thieu that he is backing Johnson's peace effort, it is reasoned, could carry considerable weight in Saigon.

No word has arrived on the new formula which the South Vietnamese government says it will present for joining an expanded conference.

PRESENT TOPICS

As matters now stand the allies are negotiating about procedures. Thieu objects to the U.S. formula for expanding the Paris sessions from the previous two parties—the United States and North Vietnam—to four parties, including the South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Meanwhile, the Harriman delegation has some items it can talk over with the North Vietnamese.

For example: Whether the inaugural meeting of the expanded conference will be open to press coverage, and what room will be used for the meeting.

At this juncture in U.S. negotiating strategy, a peace mission by President-elect Richard M. Nixon—if he undertakes one before his Jan. 20 inauguration —would perhaps be more worthwhile to Saigon than to Paris.

NIXON OFFER

Nixon has said he would travel to either capital if President Johnson felt this would help the stalled peace discussions. President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam invited Nixon there today.

The principal hangup now is with Thieu, whose boycott of a planned expanded Paris conference forced the Americans to put off its scheduled opening yesterday.

Thus a Nixon notice to Thieu that he is backing Johnson's peace effort, it is reasoned, could carry considerable weight in Saigon.

No word has arrived on the new formula which the South Vietnamese government says it will present for joining an expanded conference.

PRESENT TOPICS

As matters now stand the allies are negotiating about procedures. Thieu objects to the U.S. formula for expanding the Paris sessions from the previous two parties—the United States and North Vietnam—to four parties, including the South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Meanwhile, the Harriman delegation has some items it can talk over with the North Vietnamese.

For example: Whether the inaugural meeting of the expanded conference will be open to press coverage, and what room will be used for the meeting.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Italy Flood Threat

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — The Po, Italy's biggest river, rose to the danger level today. Farm homes in the delta lowlands were evacuated. Crews stood ready to repair any breaks in the dikes.

The big river across northern Italy was swollen to the level of the disastrous 1966 and 1951 floods by waters pouring in from Alpine streams which devastated large sections of Piedmont and Lombardy last weekend and took more than 100 lives.

Kiesinger Struck

BERLIN (AP) — A woman rushed up to West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger today and hit him in the face while he was signing autographs at his Christian Democratic party's convention in West Berlin.

Apparently prompted by the incident, the convention gave the chancellor a standing ovation approving a motion of confidence.

The woman was led out of the convention hall for questioning. A party spokesman said she was Beate Klarsfeld, a German-born French citizen who made headlines months ago when she shouted "Nazi Kiesinger" during a session of the West German Parliament.

Jordan Calm Again

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The army withdrew its troops from the streets of Amman today. Palestine guerrilla sources said they interpreted this as a sign of good intentions by King Hussein's government.

Armored cars and troops remained in the streets of the capital yesterday after the curfew was lifted, and the guerrillas said tension would reain high until the troops returned to their barracks. But the commandos emphasized they would do nothing to provoke the government.

No incidents were reported during the night, and the troops withdrew early today. Schools reopened and Amman returned to normal.

Fatal Plane Holdup

MANILA (AP) — Four men armed with guns and hand grenades seized control of a Philippine Air Lines plane bound for Manila last night, robbed the passengers, and killed one of them.

Two other men were wounded. One was a member of the gang and the other a secret police agent on the plane who exchanged shots with the gunmen.

The gang fled when the plane landed in Manila. They took their wounded comrade with them.

Vitaliano Pagaran, 51, a local municipal official, was killed. The wounded police agent was Florencio Villarin, 35.

The twin-engine plane was on a 150-mile flight from Mactan to Manila and was about half way when the four gunmen forced their way into the pilot's compartment.

Police Recover Coin Collection

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly all $87,000 worth of gold and rare coins stolen Oct. 28 from a Market Street collector's shop have now been recovered by police.

Officers reported yesterday they found about $15,000 worth of coins in a black box carried by George Blass, 30, when he was stopped Tuesday night.

They said another $25,000 worth of the coins was found later in his apartment.

Blass was booked on charges of robbery and receiving stolen property.

Heart Case Dies

VALPAIRAISO, Chile (AP) — Marie Elean Penaloza, 25, Chile's first heart transplant patient, died today and a hospital spokesman said death was caused by a general brain infection.

Tokyo Students Riot

Police said 366 students were taken in custody on charges of violence and obstruction of police duties.

Dressed in steel helmets and armed with wooden staves, 1,200 students clashed with about 1,000 riot police when they tried to break into the prime minister's residence.

The first wave of the demonstrators were pushed back by riot police using tear gas and water cannon.

Then a second wave of about 1,500 attacked police with stones and wooden staves. Police again pushed back the mob and dispersed it.

U.S. And Bonn Studying Troops

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany and the United States began talks today on a new agreement to neutralize the foreign exchange costs of stationing 225,000 American troops in this country. The agreement will cover the 1969-70 U.S. fiscal year.

Reliable informants said the United States is asking the West Germans to offset $900 million through purchases in the United States.

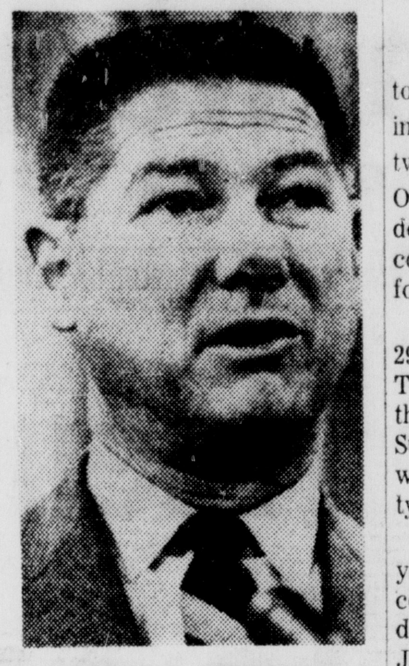
The U.S. demand is the highest on record because for the first time Washington has included the cost of German employees working for the American forces.

January Draft Call: 26,800

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today a January draft call of 26,800 men to serve in the Army. This is the biggest monthly quota since May when the total reached 45,900.

The January quota is 9,300 more men than December's 17,500 call and 16,800 more than the 10,000-man call for this month, lowest so far this year.

Monagan Is Likely Successor To Unruh



ROBERT T. MONAGAN
To reshape Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Robert T. Monagan, heir apparent to the Assembly speakership, and the newly-elected GOP lower houes majority, today began preparations for reorganizing the Assembly.

The GOP wrested control of the Assembly from Democrats in Tuesday's election for the first time in 10 years. Republicans won 41 of the 80 Assembly seats and the Democrats 39. The 40-member state Senate remained evenly split at 20-20.

The first task for Assembly Republicans when the new Legislature convenes Jan. 6 will be selecting a speaker to replace Democrat Jesse M. Unruh of Inglewood. Monagan apparently has the backing of fellow Republicans for the powerful post.

Unruh, first elected speaker in 1961, held the position longer than anyone in California history. As a probable candidate for governor in 1970, Unruh could have benefitted from re-election as speaker.

The reorganization also will include selection of a speaker pro tempore and appointment of committee chairmen. Assembly rules give the speaker sole power to appoint and remove committee chairmen.

The three lawmakers most prominently mentioned for the second spot as speaker pro tem are Republicans Charles J. Conrad of Sherman Oaks and Robert E. Badham of Newport Beach and Democrat Carlos Bee of Hayward who has held the post under Unruh.

Conrad is a former speaker pro tem and Badham represents the GOP's conservative wing. Bee emerged as a possible compromise candidate because he is well liked by both Republicans and Democrats.

Probably the most important committee chairmanship is ways and neans, now held by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, vice chairman of the committee, acted for Gov. Ronald Reagan during the past two years representing the administration's positions before the committee. He is considered the most likely candidate to take over the committee.

There will be seven freshmen members of the Legislature when the 1969 session convenes.

Democratic caucus chairman Winfield Shoemaker of Lompoc lost to Santa Barbara Mayor W. Don MacGillivray, and Democrat David Negri of Granada Hills was defeated by Republican Henry Arklin of Pacoima and F. James Bear of San Diego lost to city councilman Tom Hom.

Democrat Henry Waxman defeated incumbent Lester McMillan of Los Angeles in the June primary election and went on to win Tuesday.

Three assemblymen did not seek re-election. They were Charles W. Meyers, D-San Francisco, Edward E. Elliott, D-Los Angeles and Stewart Hinckley, R-Redlands.

San Francisco Supervisor Leo T. McCarthy, a Democrat, won Meyers' seat; Democrat Alex P. Garcia won in Elliott's district, and Jerry Lewis, a Republican, replaced Hinckley.

Senate leader Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, probably will retain his post. A switch in only one Senate district was needed to give either party control of the upper house, but all 20 incumbent senators up for re-election won.

Oregon Killings Brought Up In Braun Penalty Hearing

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Prosecutor Arthur Broaddus yesterday introduced testimony concerning two killings in Washington and Oregon in an effort to secure the death penalty for Thomas Braun convicted a third slaying in California.

Braun, 20, was convicted Oct. 29 of the first degree murder of Timothy Luce, 17, of Ukiah and the shooting of Luce's girlfriend, Susan Bartolomei. Yesterday was the first day of the penalty phase of Braun's trial.

Another Ritzvilic, Wash. youth, Leonard Maine, 20, was convicted of second degree murder and will be sentenced by Judge Joseph Kelly Nov. 15.

Broaddus, Mendocino County district attorney, questioned witnesses on the deaths of Mrs. Deanna Buse, 22, Monroe, Wash. who was shot to death Aug. 19, 1967, and Samuel Ledgerwood, Portland, Ore. who was killed Aug. 20.

Authorities claim the killings, which occurred just prior to the Luce slaying, were the first phase of a murderous rampage by Braun and Maine.

Dr. Alexander Robertson, an Everett, Wash. pathologist, testified that he performed the autopsy on Mrs. Buse. He said she died from multiple bullet wounds in the head, but there was no evidence of sexual attack.

He said at least one wound indicated the gun was held right next to the woman's face.

Detective Thomas Hart, Snohomish County sheriff's office, said he found Mrs. Buse's nude body in woods down an embankment from a dirt road.

Mrs. Buse's car was stolen at the time of her murder and later found burned near the body of Ledgerwood in Oregon.

A unique sidelight to the long trial—moved from Ukiah to San Jose because of the emotional climate in Luce's hometown—was a political contest between Broaddus and Braun's defense attorney Merle Orchard.

Broaddus and Orchard were both seeking a Mendocino county judgeship in Tuesday's election. Broaddus won the election.

PRESIDENT'S VISIT — Dr. Malcolm C. Todd, president of the California Medical Association, will speak on the rising costs of health care before the Marin Medical Society at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Meadow Club in San Rafael.

Wheels Turn For Nixon's Takeover

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew are beneficiaries of more advance planing for their transfer of government than ever before in United States history.

They will be the first to avail themselves of a $750,000 transitional expense account provided by Congress in 1964 which President Johnson as the incumbent didn't need.

And Johnson himself acted months ago to smooth the way by appointing a liaison man to plan with representatives of the three major candidates for the 76 days of decision that would face the new presidential team.

Every department and agency is handing over transition briefing papers to spell out administrative and budget problems and catalogue important jobs the president-elect will have to fill.

President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey get $75,000 each to ease them through the first six months of their transition to private life.

Fifty rooms in two executive office buildings near the White House have been furnished and fully equipped for the staffs of the new presidential team. However, Nixon said he would continue to work out of his New York offices.

In the days between now and inauguration, one of the biggest tasks facing the president-elect is finding new people to fill hundreds of important posts. He also must acquaint himself with pressing diplomatic and budgetary problems and start work on his own important State of the Union messages.

Marin City's Future Official Guides Argue

City Council and the Development Corp. of Marin City.

At that meeting, the organizations agreed that the city council will be the official planning body for future Marin City plans and development.

According to Erlich, the Redevelopment Agency has recognized this for at least three months. He said he reported long ago that a committee, appointed by the services district and the agency, had agreed to leave local planning to the city council. Mrs. Schultz said she never heard that report.

Rev. Samuel Banks Jr. said the Marin City Council is not exactly a volunteer group, since its officers were elected in a general Marin City election. Banks is chairman of the council.

Mrs. Schultz countered that it is not a public body and cannot be legally entrusted with planning authority. She pointed out that the city council election was not an ordinary one, since 18-year-olds were allowed to vote.

Banks toldher "we are not trying to take any legal authority away from the agency . . . we recognize our position as a non-legal entity. We see no conflict with the agency."

Erlich argued that this is not the time for rigidly defined roles and legal and non-legal classifictions. He appluded the local interest in Marin City planning and recommended the agency adopt a "play it by ear" policy.

"We can't push through a development if it is at cross-purposes with the community anyway," he said. "The citizens of the community are going to have their say. We can accept this, or fight it and tie up the whole damned process."

He rejected suggestion that the board of supervisors set guidelines for the roles of the agency, the city council and other organizations in Marin City.

"We should let this process evolve, rather than ask the supervisors to settle responsibilities. We have to be aware of the chance of being misunderstood by the citizens of Marin City. I hope we can be given the elbow room to work this out without too many suggestions from on high because of the potential for resentment," he said.

Erlich also cautioned Banks that resentments come from both directions and "we expect the council to let us know what is going on so these resentments won't build up."

James O. Quiett, chairman of the agency, assured Mrs. Schultz "we are not abdicating anything at this point. We simply recognize changes in the attitudes of the community."

Banks said an Independent-Journal report of Monday night's joint meeting incorrectly stated that the Development Corp of Marin City plans to succeed California Development Corp., which has held options on redevelopment land in Marin City for years.

The story also incorrectly stated that the meeting brought to light the existence of the Development Corp of Marin City. Its officers have appeared at earlier redevelopment agency meetings to tell of plans for a commercial development.

Corporations plans are for local control of a commercial development on redevelopment agency lands, not to take over all agency lands, Banks said.

Daniel Hayden, a director of the new corporation, said it now has an option on one acre of land for first phase development of a shopping center.

He asked for options on the remaining nine acres of land slated for commercial use, saying he does not want to tie up the land, but wants assurance that if the commercial venture succeeds, it will be able to expand.

Richard Adams, speaking for California Development Corp., which hold options on the commercial land, expressed reluctance to give up the corporation's options on all land without assurance that it can be used by the local corporation.

California Development Corp. is willing to assure the Development Corp. of Marin City that its commercial developments will be of a noncompetitive nature, though, he said.

Director Richard Harding of the agency agreed to meet with representatives of both corporations to seek a compromise solution.

parently left the Bay Area a few days after Oct. 17 and have not been seen since. Mrs. Palmer, employed by a San Francisco newspaper, told her employer she was returning to New York City because of a death in the family.

Although only three complaints were filed, police reports indicate others may have been bilked by Palmer.

Elliot M. Wilson of 396 Pine Hill Road, Mill Valley, told police he had paid Palmer $588 in August toward a 1969 trip to Europe, but checked on Oct. 22 with the Kaiser Employees Travel Club, through whom the arrangements were to be made, and found none had been made.

Jack E. Parle of Sacramento reported that he had paid Palmer more than $500 for Olympics accommodations but arrived in Mexico City to find none.

Arson Suspected In Empty House

A fire — said to have been deliberately set — badly damaged a vacant house at 3:21 p.m. yesterday at 376 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley.

Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald said hippies had been seen in the area recently and the inside of the house had been ransacked.

About $5,000 damage was done to the interior, Oswald estimated. The exact cause of the blaze is still being investigated, but had to have been set, he said.

The house had been vacant since summer when its previous owner, Mrs. Florence Miller, was taken to a rest home. She died not long after. The house is now owned by Mrs. Miller's daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Spinney of Sherman Oaks.

Alto Firemen Slate Yule Party, Training

Alto volunteer firemen last night agreed to hold their annual Christmas party for firemen's children at 7 p.m. Dec. 23 at the fire house, Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported.

Members also voted to send two firemen to the oil fire school, sponsored by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association, on Nov.22 and 23 at San Rafael Fire Station No. 4, Heynen said.

Redwoods Park Lands Face Long Haggling

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Federal provisions for a redwoods national park in California may lead to long negotiations, a State Forestry Division official said today.

Paul Cox, the division's planning officer, told the State Forestry Board that problems include ownership of private land within park boundaries, watersheds, roads and a park headquarters site.

One of the demands is for reinstatement of George Mason Murray, a part-time instructor who is a member of the Negro militant Black Panther party. Murray was suspended last week after he urged Negro students to arm themselves against the "racist administration."

Unwillingly, Smith ordered the suspension on instructions from Dr. Glenn Dumke, chancellor of the State College System.

Generally nonviolent, the demonstration yesterday nevertheless turned threatening, Smith said, when nonwhite students invaded classrooms and reprimanded other students for not joining the strike.

One typewriter was thrown through a window and several windows were broken, but overall damage was minor.

Classes were disrupted when someone turned on the school fire alarm, emptying the buildings. Smith called police and closed the school.

entirely different breed of cat," said Walt, who commanded Marines in Vietnam until mid-1967. "He is not properly trained. He is not disciplined. He is not equipped to go on the battlefield."

"I am confident that we are winning the war," he said.

Barred from northern missions, American pilots logged 561 strikes yesterday against Communist bunkers, sampans and troops in South Vietnam.

War communiques said the raids killed 30 guerrillas and destroyed or damaged 343 fortifications, 313 bunkers and 33 sampans.

B52 bombers, in seven missions yesterday and today, bombarded Communist troop bivouacs in the Mekong Delta, along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon and in the Central Highlands, war reports said.

Citizens' Group, Teachers View Reed Programs

The Reed School District's Citizens Committee on Programs and Finances last night discussed the district's programs with five representatives of the Reed School District Teachers Association, Supt. H. Joe Edgington reported.

Edgington said the meeting was "informational only" and no action was taken on any item discussed.

Committee members and teachers talked about teacher evaluation, in-service training, salaries, educational programs, materials and ways to obtain objective evidence of a student's achievement, he said.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Del Mar School to hear a report on a selected sample study of the achievement of Reed students at Redwood High School. A report on results of an informal neighborhood survey on the district taken by committee members is also scheduled.

State Employees Seek 7.5 Per Cent Raises

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California State Employees Association, representing more than 100,000 workers, asked today for a $124 million pay raise package next year.

The association asked the State Personnel Board to recommend to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature a 7.5 per cent general pay increase for all state civil service workers, plus aditional raises up to 10 per cent in jobs where 'pay is badly lagging."

Morse Race Still Hangs On Absentees

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Counting boards in a dozen Oregon counties will determine today whether Wayne Morse, a U.S. senator for 24 years, has been replaced by Robert Packwood, 36, Portland Republican.

Absentee ballots held the decision after the unofficial count wound up with Packwood ahead by 2,433 votes, 395,574 to 393,141.

Some county clerks said it would be late today before they finished the tally of absentee votes.

Because nearly 5,000 of the 14,000 absentee ballots to be counted were in Lane, Morse's home county, there was no certainty that Packwood would hold his lead.

Packwood's margin fluctuated through yesterday's counting and at times appeared almost decisive. At no time did Morse move ahead but he managed to keep close on Packwood's heels.

There is general speculation that if the final unofficial count makes Packwood a narrow winner and this is confirmed by the official canvass, a recount is expected. Morse, an opponent of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, is expected to refuse to give up without a recount if he sees a chance of victory.

Meanwhile he made no statement and Packwood claimed no victory.

then and there be required to explain his conduct."

Judge Gardiner suggested that a restatement of the Fifth Amendment protections, which he conceded "will obviously require most careful draftsmanship and may take some time," is therefore in order.

He asked Senator-elect Cranston and Representative Mailliard to "invoke immediate action by Congress" toward a revision "to provide, at least, the following":

"1. No person shall be required or urged by any public officer to make any statement or answer any question after he is accused of a public offense, which statement or answer might tend to incriminate or degrade himself. . . .

2. When placed on trial for an offense, "and while represented by counsel, that accused person may be required to take the witness stand and to answer all relevant questions."

3. If the accused fails to answer questions in open court, "the finder of fact (judge or jury as the case may be) may draw all appropriate inferences therefrom."

Clyde A. Nelson Wins Re-election To Hospital Panel

The Independent-Journal incorrectly reported yesterday that attorney Clyde A. Nelson Jr. was denied re-election to the Petaluma Hospital District board in Tuesday's election.

He won easily, as did another incumbent, Dr. Hamza Munib. A third director elected in the four-man race was druggist William A. Perry Jr.

ices under Medi-Cal are siphoning millions of dollars annually from the program," the attorney general's report said. "Poor administration of the program has contributed to further needless expenditure of money by Medi-Cal."

But it did not make a precise estimate of the total funds paid out because of poor administration, outright fraud or "the excessive providing of services." The report said the vast scope of Medi-Cal precluded any specific figure.

Receiving especially harsh criticism were nursing homes which receive about $140 million a year from Medi-Cal.

Many require "under the table" payments to secure admission, the report said, while several submitted claims to the state for patients who died or were discharged before the period covered by the bill.

"It is common practice for nursing homes to require vendors with whom they deal to give kickbacks in order to provide their services to persons in the nursing home," it said.

The practice by some homes of "accidental" double payments has cost an estimated $2.5 million, the report charged. It added that some homes keep funds meant for incidental costs such as cigarettes for patients.

The investigation said that private hospitals, who receive $100 million in medical funds, practice similar abuses, particularly physician-owned hospitals. But it said it found no indications that such abuses are prevalent in public and nonprofit hospitals.

It accused physicians, nursing homes and hospitals of billing the state for care that was never performed or was unneeded entirely. The report accused them of conducting mass treatments of patients and ordering enormous amounts of unnecessary drugs and treatments.

Among other things it charged:

Doctors signed blank prescription blanks given them by the nursing home and completed by the home itself.

A physician ordered 10 blood samples a day for a patient hospitalized 16 days and none of the 160 tests revealed an abnormal finding. Many X-rays were taken although "no abnormality was ever revealed."

Druggists with billing the state at higher cost for a drug than the same medication would cost over the counter.

The state was billed for a brand name drug sometimes costing three times as much as it would if ordered by its generic name.

Pharmacies gave kickbacks to nursing homes in order to lure their business.

Dentists lied about the need for certain work and falsified claims requiring a higher payment under one procedure than another.

One optometrist sought state approval for a pair of "expensive prescription sun glasses for a patient. Investigation disclosed that the patient was blind."

Some optometrists were found to be providing their patients with inferior glasses and making unnecessary examinations.

Marin City's Future Official Guides Argue

City Council and the Development Corp. of Marin City.

At that meeting, the organizations agreed that the city council will be the official planning body for future Marin City plans and development.

According to Erlich, the Redevelopment Agency has recognized this for at least three months. He said he reported long ago that a committee, appointed by the services district and the agency, had agreed to leave local planning to the city council. Mrs. Schultz said she never heard that report.

Rev. Samuel Banks Jr. said the Marin City Council is not exactly a volunteer group, since its officers were elected in a general Marin City election. Banks is chairman of the council.

Mrs. Schultz countered that it is not a public body and cannot be legally entrusted with planning authority. She pointed out that the city council election was not an ordinary one, since 18-year-olds were allowed to vote.

Banks toldher "we are not trying to take any legal authority away from the agency . . . we recognize our position as a non-legal entity. We see no conflict with the agency."

Erlich argued that this is not the time for rigidly defined roles and legal and non-legal classifictions. He appluded the local interest in Marin City planning and recommended the agency adopt a "play it by ear" policy.

"We can't push through a development if it is at cross-purposes with the community anyway," he said. "The citizens of the community are going to have their say. We can accept this, or fight it and tie up the whole damned process."

He rejected suggestion that the board of supervisors set guidelines for the roles of the agency, the city council and other organizations in Marin City.

"We should let this process evolve, rather than ask the supervisors to settle responsibilities. We have to be aware of the chance of being misunderstood by the citizens of Marin City. I hope we can be given the elbow room to work this out without too many suggestions from on high because of the potential for resentment," he said.

Erlich also cautioned Banks that resentments come from both directions and "we expect the council to let us know what is going on so these resentments won't build up."

James O. Quiett, chairman of the agency, assured Mrs. Schultz "we are not abdicating anything at this point. We simply recognize changes in the attitudes of the community."

Banks said an Independent-Journal report of Monday night's joint meeting incorrectly stated that the Development Corp of Marin City plans to succeed California Development Corp., which has held options on redevelopment land in Marin City for years.

The story also incorrectly stated that the meeting brought to light the existence of the Development Corp of Marin City. Its officers have appeared at earlier redevelopment agency meetings to tell of plans for a commercial development.

Corporations plans are for local control of a commercial development on redevelopment agency lands, not to take over all agency lands, Banks said.

Daniel Hayden, a director of the new corporation, said it now has an option on one acre of land for first phase development of a shopping center.

He asked for options on the remaining nine acres of land slated for commercial use, saying he does not want to tie up the land, but wants assurance that if the commercial venture succeeds, it will be able to expand.

Richard Adams, speaking for California Development Corp., which hold options on the commercial land, expressed reluctance to give up the corporation's options on all land without assurance that it can be used by the local corporation.

California Development Corp. is willing to assure the Development Corp. of Marin City that its commercial developments will be of a noncompetitive nature, though, he said.

Director Richard Harding of the agency agreed to meet with representatives of both corporations to seek a compromise solution.

Alto Firemen Slate Yule Party, Training

Alto volunteer firemen last night agreed to hold their annual Christmas party for firemen's children at 7 p.m. Dec. 23 at the fire house, Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported.

Members also voted to send two firemen to the oil fire school, sponsored by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association, on Nov.22 and 23 at San Rafael Fire Station No. 4, Heynen said.

parently left the Bay Area a few days after Oct. 17 and have not been seen since. Mrs. Palmer, employed by a San Francisco newspaper, told her employer she was returning to New York City because of a death in the family.

Although only three complaints were filed, police reports indicate others may have been bilked by Palmer.

Elliot M. Wilson of 396 Pine Hill Road, Mill Valley, told police he had paid Palmer $588 in August toward a 1969 trip to Europe, but checked on Oct. 22 with the Kaiser Employees Travel Club, through whom the arrangements were to be made, and found none had been made.

Jack E. Parle of Sacramento reported that he had paid Palmer more than $500 for Olympics accommodations but arrived in Mexico City to find none.

Arson Suspected In Empty House

A fire — said to have been deliberately set — badly damaged a vacant house at 3:21 p.m. yesterday at 376 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley.

Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald said hippies had been seen in the area recently and the inside of the house had been ransacked.

About $5,000 damage was done to the interior, Oswald estimated. The exact cause of the blaze is still being investigated, but had to have been set, he said.

The house had been vacant since summer when its previous owner, Mrs. Florence Miller, was taken to a rest home. She died not long after. The house is now owned by Mrs. Miller's daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Spinney of Sherman Oaks.

Redwoods Park Lands Face Long Haggling

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Federal provisions for a redwoods national park in California may lead to long negotiations, a State Forestry Division official said today.

Paul Cox, the division's planning officer, told the State Forestry Board that problems include ownership of private land within park boundaries, watersheds, roads and a park headquarters site.

One of the demands is for reinstatement of George Mason Murray, a part-time instructor who is a member of the Negro militant Black Panther party. Murray was suspended last week after he urged Negro students to arm themselves against the "racist administration."

Unwillingly, Smith ordered the suspension on instructions from Dr. Glenn Dumke, chancellor of the State College System.

Generally nonviolent, the demonstration yesterday nevertheless turned threatening, Smith said, when nonwhite students invaded classrooms and reprimanded other students for not joining the strike.

One typewriter was thrown through a window and several windows were broken, but overall damage was minor.

Classes were disrupted when someone turned on the school fire alarm, emptying the buildings. Smith called police and closed the school.

entirely different breed of cat," said Walt, who commanded Marines in Vietnam until mid-1967. "He is not properly trained. He is not disciplined. He is not equipped to go on the battlefield."

"I am confident that we are winning the war," he said.

Barred from northern missions, American pilots logged 561 strikes yesterday against Communist bunkers, sampans and troops in South Vietnam.

War communiques said the raids killed 30 guerrillas and destroyed or damaged 343 fortifications, 313 bunkers and 33 sampans.

B52 bombers, in seven missions yesterday and today, bombarded Communist troop bivouacs in the Mekong Delta, along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon and in the Central Highlands, war reports said.

Citizens' Group, Teachers View Reed Programs

The Reed School District's Citizens Committee on Programs and Finances last night discussed the district's programs with five representatives of the Reed School District Teachers Association, Supt. H. Joe Edgington reported.

Edgington said the meeting was "informational only" and no action was taken on any item discussed.

Committee members and teachers talked about teacher evaluation, in-service training, salaries, educational programs, materials and ways to obtain objective evidence of a student's achievement, he said.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Del Mar School to hear a report on a selected sample study of the achievement of Reed students at Redwood High School. A report on results of an informal neighborhood survey on the district taken by committee members is also scheduled.

State Employees Seek 7.5 Per Cent Raises

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California State Employees Association, representing more than 100,000 workers, asked today for a $124 million pay raise package next year.

The association asked the State Personnel Board to recommend to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature a 7.5 per cent general pay increase for all state civil service workers, plus aditional raises up to 10 per cent in jobs where 'pay is badly lagging."

Morse Race Still Hangs On Absentees

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Counting boards in a dozen Oregon counties will determine today whether Wayne Morse, a U.S. senator for 24 years, has been replaced by Robert Packwood, 36, Portland Republican.

Absentee ballots held the decision after the unofficial count wound up with Packwood ahead by 2,433 votes, 395,574 to 393,141.

Some county clerks said it would be late today before they finished the tally of absentee votes.

Because nearly 5,000 of the 14,000 absentee ballots to be counted were in Lane, Morse's home county, there was no certainty that Packwood would hold his lead.

Packwood's margin fluctuated through yesterday's counting and at times appeared almost decisive. At no time did Morse move ahead but he managed to keep close on Packwood's heels.

There is general speculation that if the final unofficial count makes Packwood a narrow winner and this is confirmed by the official canvass, a recount is expected. Morse, an opponent of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, is expected to refuse to give up without a recount if he sees a chance of victory.

Meanwhile he made no statement and Packwood claimed no victory.

then and there be required to explain his conduct."

Judge Gardiner suggested that a restatement of the Fifth Amendment protections, which he conceded "will obviously require most careful draftsmanship and may take some time," is therefore in order.

He asked Senator-elect Cranston and Representative Mailliard to "invoke immediate action by Congress" toward a revision "to provide, at least, the following":

"1. No person shall be required or urged by any public officer to make any statement or answer any question after he is accused of a public offense, which statement or answer might tend to incriminate or degrade himself. . . .

2. When placed on trial for an offense, "and while represented by counsel, that accused person may be required to take the witness stand and to answer all relevant questions."

3. If the accused fails to answer questions in open court, "the finder of fact (judge or jury as the case may be) may draw all appropriate inferences therefrom."

Clyde A. Nelson Wins Re-election To Hospital Panel

The Independent-Journal incorrectly reported yesterday that attorney Clyde A. Nelson Jr. was denied re-election to the Petaluma Hospital District board in Tuesday's election.

He won easily, as did another incumbent, Dr. Hamza Munib. A third director elected in the four-man race was druggist William A. Perry Jr.

ices under Medi-Cal are siphoning millions of dollars annually from the program," the attorney general's report said. "Poor administration of the program has contributed to further needless expenditure of money by Medi-Cal."

But it did not make a precise estimate of the total funds paid out because of poor administration, outright fraud or "the excessive providing of services." The report said the vast scope of Medi-Cal precluded any specific figure.

Receiving especially harsh criticism were nursing homes which receive about $140 million a year from Medi-Cal.

Many require "under the table" payments to secure admission, the report said, while several submitted claims to the state for patients who died or were discharged before the period covered by the bill.

"It is common practice for nursing homes to require vendors with whom they deal to give kickbacks in order to provide their services to persons in the nursing home," it said.

The practice by some homes of "accidental" double payments has cost an estimated $2.5 million, the report charged. It added that some homes keep funds meant for incidental costs such as cigarettes for patients.

The investigation said that private hospitals, who receive $100 million in medical funds, practice similar abuses, particularly physician-owned hospitals. But it said it found no indications that such abuses are prevalent in public and nonprofit hospitals.

It accused physicians, nursing homes and hospitals of billing the state for care that was never performed or was unneeded entirely. The report accused them of conducting mass treatments of patients and ordering enormous amounts of unnecessary drugs and treatments.

Among other things it charged:

Doctors signed blank prescription blanks given them by the nursing home and completed by the home itself.

A physician ordered 10 blood samples a day for a patient hospitalized 16 days and none of the 160 tests revealed an abnormal finding. Many X-rays were taken although "no abnormality was ever revealed."

Druggists with billing the state at higher cost for a drug than the same medication would cost over the counter.

The state was billed for a brand name drug sometimes costing three times as much as it would if ordered by its generic name.

Pharmacies gave kickbacks to nursing homes in order to lure their business.

Dentists lied about the need for certain work and falsified claims requiring a higher payment under one procedure than another.

One optometrist sought state approval for a pair of "expensive prescription sun glasses for a patient. Investigation disclosed that the patient was blind."

Some optometrists were found to be providing their patients with inferior glasses and making unnecessary examinations.

SENATE AGAIN?

Humphrey's Next Post Questioned

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Some Democratic leaders are already talking of a political comeback for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey—as the 1970 candidate for the U.S. Senate seat Eugene J. McCarthy says he will not try to retain in the party.

Speculation began almost as soon as his fight for the presidency was over, even as Humphrey left yesterday for his lakeside home in Waverly to spend a few days in seclusion with his family.

Friends of the vice president say his commitment to the race for the White House was total and included no thought of defeat. And they say Humphrey has no plans for the future now.

But, as Humphrey said a few days ago when asked if he was looking forward to the end of the campaign: "You bounce back pretty fast when it's over.

"If you win it seems to take longer than if you lose," he added. "If you lose you slough it off in a few days and go on to something else."

Many observers who have watched Humphrey as mayor of Minneapolis, senator and vice president expect him to "go on to something else." They expect it to be the U.S. Senate.

In endorsing Humphrey for the presidency last week, McCarthy said he will not seek reelection to the seat as a Democrat. Although he didn't rule out running as a third-party candidate, state party leaders say they expect him to bow out.

Thus the way would be open for Humphrey to return to the job he left in 1964 when Lyndon B. Johnson chose him as his vice presidential running mate.

Missouri Is Narrowly On Nixon Side

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missouri apparently went with the winner but it will be several days before the final vote for Richard M. Nixon will be known.

As the unofficial tabulation of the regular vote was completed, Nixon edged into a sliver of a lead over Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the state's 12 electoral votes.

The margin was so thin it could be changed by the absentee votes which won't be counted until tomorrow or Saturday—or in some cases until Monday.

Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick's office estimated the absentee total might reach 100,000 votes but others believed the number might be nearer 75,000.

At the end of the unofficial tabulation without the absentees, with all precincts reporting, Nixon had 766,169, Humphrey 758,547 and George C. Wallace 195,455.

A Snake Farm

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)—The Butantan, which houses one of the largest snake farms in the world, is supplying snake bite serum for U.S. troops in Viet Nam. The snakes are "milked" every day and their venom processed.

Washington Winds Up In Humphrey Column

SEATTLE (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey picked up Washington's nine electoral votes in late balloting yesterday but moved no closer to the presidency with Republican Richard M. Nixon already the declared winner.

With 98.4 per cent of the vote counted, Humphrey led Nixon 559,357 to 517,539, or 48 per cent to 44.4. George Wallace had 85,131, or 7.3 per cent.

Although about 112,000 absentee and special ballots were still out, State Election Supervisor Ken Gilbert said it was "highly improbable" that they would change the outcome.

The late vote could decide two state races. In the contest for attorney general, Democrat John McCutcheon held less than a 1 per cent edge over Republican Slade Gorton, 541,069 to 536,216.

Republican Art Fletcher, the first Negro to run for high state office, appeared to be losing his bid to unseat Democratic Lt. Gov. John Cherberg but could win it with a strong, late vote. At the last tally, he trailed 577,546 to 522,365.

Gov. Dan Evans, keynoter at the Republican National Convention, won re-election handily as did Democratic U.S. Sen. Warren Magnuson, who was returned to a fifth term.

All seven incumbent Washington congressmen also won new terms with Republicans failing to make inroads on the five-seat majority held by the Democrats.

Rec Commission To Hear Report On Teens' Needs

A discussion of teen-age recreation, featuring a seminary student who described Terra Linda as a "seedbed of anarchy," will be held before the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission Wednesday.

The meeting is set for 3 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at the Civic Center.

Seminary student Gary Peter Davis, who conducted a summer program for teen-agers in Terra Linda this year, has been invited to give his views on teenage recreation.

Davis was invited at the suggestion of Commissioner Lothar Salin, who declared that Davis' report on calling Terra Linda a "seedbed of anarchy" would be invaluable for the entire county. Davis, 23, a student at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, warned that youth will turn to drugs, alcohol and destruction if they have nothing creative to do.

Tardy Alaska Count Going For Nixon

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon held a 1,000-vote edge in Alaska today as results from Tuesday's election continued to trickle in from isolated "bush" precincts and the state prepared to count about 7,000 absentee votes.

With a record 70,000 votes tallied, results from some 75 outlying districts and from tomorrow's absentee count will decide the allocation of Alaska's three electoral votes.

State election officials explained that severe radio interference had stalled returns.

The latest count showed Nixon leading with 32,245 to Hubert H. Humphrey's 31,337. George C. Wallace had 8,623.

Even if Nixon carries Alaska, it will be a bitter victory for Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, one of the President-elect's staunchest supporters. The same voters who elected Hickel and a predominantly Republican state legislature two years ago turned the tables Tuesday and gave control of the House to the Democrats. A GOP majority in the Senate was reduced.

Woman Cuts Lip In 101 Accident

A San Francisco woman excaped with a cut upper lip yesterday when her car had a blowout and skidded across four lanes of freeway traffic on the Waldo Grade, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Ida Mae Gaines, 33, was treated at Marin General Hospital after the accident at 1:45 p.m. on Highway 101. The highway patrol said her car was hit by a car driven by Thomas Lee Rich, 25, of 615 Main Street, Sausalito, as it skidded across the road, then hit an embankment.

GOP Hopes Absentees Will Swing Maryland

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Republicans nursed a faint hope today that Maryland, home state of Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew, still might wind up in the GOP column.

The glimmer of hope was based on the counting of 36,000 absentee ballots which could erase the 18,000-vote margin given Hubert H. Humphrey in the unofficial returns from Tuesday's voting.

But it would take about 28,000 of these ballots for Nixon-Agnew to give the GOP slate Maryland's 10 electoral votes.

Counting started in some counties yesterday along with the official tally of Tuesday's votes. There was no indication when the final results would be known.

Law Practice Is Next Step For Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—George C. Wallace plans to re-enter the practice of law in Alabama, but indicates he may be back running for president again in 1972 if national trends don't suit him.

The defeated third party candidate, appearing relaxed and in good humor, told a news conference yesterday he considered his efforts a success despite the fact he carried only five states, all in the South.

"I think we were a bellweather for the two national parties," Wallace said. "The winner of the presidential campaign said almost the same things we did. I dare say had this movement not been in existence this would not have been the case."

Whether he runs again in 1972 will depend on governmental trends, Wallace said. He denied any plans to seek state office.

Retired Gen. Curtis LeMay, Wallace's running mate, echoed the theme the campaign had achieved its primary objectives even though it did not win the election.

Muskie Shies At '72 Quiz

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the defeated Democratic vice presidential nominee, says the campaign didn't generate any personal presidential ambitions for 1972.

But the Maine junior senator told newsmen yesterday, "I suspect I have to consider it because you guys keep posing the question."

Wearing slacks and a windbreaker—for a game of golf after his brief news conference—Muskie said he plans a vacation to rest up from the campaign during which he traveled 70,000 miles, visited 38 states and made 146 campaign stops.

He said he planned to return with his family to Washington today, because his children have to return to school.

Muskie sent a message to Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, offering "congratulations and good wishes."

SENATE AGAIN?

Humphrey's Next Post Questioned

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Some Democratic leaders are already talking of a political comeback for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey—as the 1970 candidate for the U.S. Senate seat Eugene J. McCarthy says he will not try to retain in the party.

Speculation began almost as soon as his fight for the presidency was over, even as Humphrey left yesterday for his lakeside home in Waverly to spend a few days in seclusion with his family.

Friends of the vice president say his commitment to the race for the White House was total and included no thought of defeat. And they say Humphrey has no plans for the future now.

But, as Humphrey said a few days ago when asked if he was looking forward to the end of the campaign: "You bounce back pretty fast when it's over.

"If you win it seems to take longer than if you lose," he added. "If you lose you slough it off in a few days and go on to something else."

Many observers who have watched Humphrey as mayor of Minneapolis, senator and vice president expect him to "go on to something else." They expect it to be the U.S. Senate.

In endorsing Humphrey for the presidency last week, McCarthy said he will not seek re-election to the seat as a Democrat. Although he didn't rule out running as a third-party candidate, state party leaders say they expect him to bow out.

Thus the way would be open for Humphrey to return to the job he left in 1964 when Lyndon B. Johnson chose him as his vice presidential running mate.

Missouri Is Narrowly On Nixon Side

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missouri apparently went with the winner but it will be several days before the final vote for Richard M. Nixon will be known.

As the unofficial tabulation of the regular vote was completed, Nixon edged into a sliver of a lead over Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the state's 12 electoral votes.

The margin was so thin it could be changed by the absentee votes which won't be counted until tomorrow or Saturday—or in some cases until Monday.

Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick's office estimated the absentee total might reach 100,000 votes but others believed the number might be nearer 75,000.

At the end of the unofficial tabulation without the absentees, with all precincts reporting, Nixon had 766,169, Humphrey 758,547 and George C. Wallace 195,455.

Washington Winds Up In Humphrey Column

SEATTLE (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey picked up Washington's nine electoral votes in late balloting yesterday but moved no closer to the presidency with Republican Richard M. Nixon already the declared winner.

With 98.4 per cent of the vote counted, Humphrey led Nixon 559,357 to 517,539, or 48 per cent to 44.4. George Wallace had 85,131, or 7.3 per cent.

Pro-Soviet Czechs Put Up A Protest

PRAGUE (AP) — A crowd of pro-Soviet Czechoslovaks shook their fists in the faces of Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek and Premier Oldrich Cernik today and shouted, "Long live the Soviet Union!"

The hard-line Communists grabbed at the coats of the two reformist leaders after a ceremony at Olsany Cemetery, shouting, "We're with the Soviet Union!" Since the ceremony was part of the observation of the anniversary of the Soviet Union's Bolshevik Revolution there appeared to be few Dubcek supporters around.

FLAGS REMOVED

But later several hundred backers of the reform leadership surged into the streets of Prague and forced the removal of three large red banners from the Ministry of Foreign Trade, put up as part of the anniversary observation.

The demonstrators gathered in a side street a block from Wenceslas Square chanting "tear it down, tear it down," and whistling at a huge red banner without the yellow hammer and sickle that hung at one side of the building.

CHEER GOES UP

The chants continued until workmen climbed out on a ledge on the building's second story and removed the flag. A great cheer went up.

Bus loads of police arrived to clear the street and loudspeakers broadcast appeals for the crowd to disperse. But the people moved to the front of the building and chanted "tear it down" until two more of the 30-foot red banners were removed.

Novato Adds To Civic Center

The City of Novato has purchased a house adjacent to the Novato police station to be used for offices for the parks and recreation department, Councilman M. E. "Babe" Silva announced yesterday.

Silva, who negotiated the purchase, said the city paid $27,000 for the house, the top price authorized by the city council. Owners Robert and Walter Busher had long asked $30,000 for the property, which is valued on the county tax rolls at $23,500.

The parcel is half of the narrow block north of the city-owned block on which are located the community house, city hall and police station.

The Busher house, which will be remodeled at an approximate cost of $3,000, will fit right into the city hall complex, Silva said.

Reds Mark Birthday; No U.S. Harassment

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko omitted the usual attack on the United States today as the Soviet Union celebrated the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution with a display of missile might that included no new weapons.

Ambassadors from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's countries boycotted the ceremony as a protest against the invasion of Czechoslovakia. They let it be known last week that they would do this.

The defense minister, flanked on Lenin's tomb by Soviet leaders, spoke only against "imperialists" in general, repeating the standard Soviet charge that they are "increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war."

Grechko did not refer to the U.S. presidential election or the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. But the departures from the usual wording of his speech seemed to indicate that the Kremlin does not want to hurt its chances of getting along with President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

They also appeared to be aimed at avoiding anything that might hamper progress toward bringing the Vietnam war to an end.

Grechko, in probably the mildest Bolshevik anniversary speech made here in many years, also refrained from attacking China or any other country by name.

His five-minute speech, always closely watched for indications of changes in Kremlin thinking, bore down heavily on the theme of Communist unity and threats to this from the West. This new emphasis was obviously linked to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the dissension that caused in the Communist movement, with many parties abroad condemning the Soviet leadership.

"The imperialists are perpetrating different provocations, increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war," Marshal Grechko said.

A Master Plan Is Sought For Adult Education

BERKELEY (UPI)—A statewide master plan of education was recommended yesterday to meet the continuing needs of the state's "forgotten adults."

Dr. William Johnston, head of the Los Angeles City adult school program, said California's community adult schools need a master plan similar to the one for higher education.

He told a conference of the California Association of Adult Education Administrators that "without continuing their education, the well-educated citizens of today are in danger of becoming obsolete men and women of tomorrow."

Paintings, Silver, Jewelry Stolen

Paintings, silver and jewelry valued at almost $3,000 were stolen from the home of Harry E. Linder at 10 Fern Way, Kentfield, Sunday, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The thief apparently climbed a step ladder and let himself in through an open window, deputies said.

Also reported yesterday was the theft of four rings and a watch from the home of Maryanne Salway at 480 Edgewood Avenue, Homestead Valley, Monday. The thief crawled through the home's dog door, deputies said.

Houseboat Counsel Cites Dredging Pressure Cause For All The Fuss

The attorney for the embattled houseboat owners in Richardson Bay today charged that pressure on the county by property owners eager to dredge Saucelito Canal was the reason houseboats are being forced off underwater public streets.

Hugh G. Lawrence, representing the Houseboat Owners Association, made his charge on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program. He added that this pressure had caused "a kind of panic" in county government.

Lawrence argued that the "panic" stemmed from the county's need to find areas to dump mud spoils from the dredging, and that by forcing houseboats off streets, the county hopes to pressure large property owners to agree to take spoils.

Lawrence was hotly disputed by another panelist, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen. Terming the contention "absolutely ridiculous," Kettenhofen said the county's sole reason for the new enforcement program was to ensure public health and safety.

"We'd all like to be anarchists," said Kettenhofen, "but the county has a duty to see that people live in accord with some general framework to ensure public health and safety. I'm not saying they're all slums or a bunch of disreputable people down there," he added, "but it will get worse if we don't do something now."

Kettenhofen, noting the county government had been lax in enforcing houseboat regulations in the Waldo Point area, said the county "made a mistake in allowing this to go this far."

Kettenhofen said most persons in county government "really do like the idea of a houseboat community in Sausalito," but added that a growing concentration of hippies and drug use in the community "can't be allowed to grow and fester down there."

A third panelist, Dean M. Jennings, who lives on a houseboat in Richardson Bay, conceded the county had a "legal right" to force houseboats off public streets, but questioned the county's "right to do it on a moral basis."

He also objected to the county's intensive enforcement program. "In the last three months we've had more helicopter flyovers than over Vietnam," he said, terming the aerial inspections "sorties by Frost flyers."

The object of Jennings' ire, Donald R. Forst, county director of public works, said the enforcement program started because the construction of houseboats suddenly became "a flourishing industry, last summer.

"Modern standards of health and safety demand something more than three feet of old inner tube draped over the bulkhead," said Frost of the sewage system found on some houseboats.

If the county were interested simply in getting rid of the houseboats, he noted, "then we wouldn't have been working with them for two months."

Frost sided with Kettenhofen in calling for an emergency interim ordinance to bar all new houseboat construction in the county until new regulations for them are adopted by the county. "If we don't have such an ordinance," said Kettenhofen, "they'll ctinue to grow while we're talking."

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be replayed at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Heliport At Civic Center On Agenda

The possibility of a heliport and runway strip for shoot takeoff and landing near the Civic Center will be discussed by the Marin Aviation Commission Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the board of supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

Commissioner Ray W. Foreaker Jr., who will report on several sites north of the Civic Center, said both SFO Helicopter Airlines and Comstol Airlines of Oakland have expressed some interest.

The Smith Ranch, which already has a short airstrip, is one of the sites to be discussed.

He said there is a possiblity that SFO and Comstol could operate jointly from the same field. "But a landing strip for Comstol would require a lot more initial investment than for a copter pad. So the question is, can we try Comstol for a couple years without too much initial cost? That's why the Smith Ranch becomes attractive."

Foreaker said no conclusions are likely Tuesday night, and he plans to ask for more time to investigate the Smith Ranch and other sites.

Other items on the aviation commission's agenda include rules and regulations for operation of Gnoss Field, the county airport North of Novato, and storage shelters and/or hangars to protect planes there.

Expansion Of Student Survey Likely

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night introduced Supt. Charles E. McCully to weigh expanding a student opinion survey proposed by Tomales High School District to the entire unified school district, McCully reported today

A University of California researcher, Bonnie Gurgin, under contract with the Tomales district has been preparing the survey to find out what present and former students think of the educational program at the high school.

The board also asked McCully to make a survey before Dec. 4 of the present seven trustee areas of the district to see if they were organized in the best manner. Before unification of the Tomales High School District with the elementary districts in its area.

In other action taken by the board, it approved an agreement with the Tomales Elementary District for shoreline office space at $100 per month from Jan. 1 to June 30 when the new Shoreline district will take over all the elementary districts and the high school district.

Pro-Soviet Czechs Put Up A Protest

PRAGUE (AP) — A crowd of pro-Soviet Czechoslovaks shook their fists in the faces of Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek and Premier Oldrich Cernik today and shouted, "Long live the Soviet Union!"

The hard-line Communists grabbed at the coats of the two reformist leaders after a ceremony at Olsany Cemetery, shouting, "We're with the Soviet Union!" Since the ceremony was part of the observation of the anniversary of the Soviet Union's Bolshevik Revolution there appeared to be few Dubcek supporters around.

FLAGS REMOVED

But later several hundred backers of the reform leadership surged into the streets of Prague and forced the removal of three large red banners from the Ministry of Foreign Trade, put up as part of the anniversary observation.

The demonstrators gathered in a side street a block from Wenceslas Square chanting "tear it down, tear it down," and whistling at a huge red banner without the yellow hammer and sickle that hung at one side of the building.

CHEER GOES UP

The chants continued until workmen climbed out on a ledge on the building's second story and removed the flag. A great cheer went up.

Bus loads of police arrived to clear the street and loudspeakers broadcast appeals for the crowd to disperse. But the people moved to the front of the building and chanted "tear it down" until two more of the 30-foot red banners were removed.

Novato Adds To Civic Center

The City of Novato has purchased a house adjacent to the Novato police station to be used for offices for the parks and recreation department, Councilman M. E. "Babe" Silva announced yesterday.

Silva, who negotiated the purchase, said the city paid $27,000 for the house, the top price authorized by the city council. Owners Robert and Walter Busher had long asked $30,000 for the property, which is valued on the county tax rolls at $23,500.

The parcel is half of the narrow block north of the city-owned block on which are located the community house, city hall and police station.

The Busher house, which will be remodeled at an approximate cost of $3,000, will fit right into the city hall complex, Silva said.

Reds Mark Birthday; No U.S. Harassment

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko omitted the usual attack on the United States today as the Soviet Union celebrated the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution with a display of missile might that included no new weapons.

Ambassadors from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's countries boycotted the ceremony as a protest against the invasion of Czechoslovakia. They let it be known last week that they would do this.

The defense minister, flanked on Lenin's tomb by Soviet leaders, spoke only against "imperialists" in general, repeating the standard Soviet charge that they are "increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war."

Grechko did not refer to the U.S. presidential election or the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. But the departures from the usual wording of his speech seemed to indicate that the Kremlin does not want to hurt its chances of getting along with President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

They also appeared to be aimed at avoiding anything that might hamper progress toward bringing the Vietnam war to an end.

Grechko, in probably the mildest Bolshevik anniversary speech made here in many years, also refrained from attacking China or any other country by name.

His five-minute speech, always closely watched for indications of changes in Kremlin thinking, bore down heavily on the theme of Communist unity and threats to this from the West. This new emphasis was obviously linked to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the dissension that caused in the Communist movement, with many parties abroad condemning the Soviet leadership.

"The imperialists are perpetrating different provocations, increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war," Marshal Grechko said.

A Master Plan Is Sought For Adult Education

BERKELEY (UPI)—A statewide master plan of education was recommended yesterday to meet the continuing needs of the state's "forgotten adults."

Dr. William Johnston, head of the Los Angeles City adult school program, said California's community adult schools need a master plan similar to the one for higher education.

He told a conference of the California Association of Adult Education Administrators that "without continuing their education, the well-educated citizens of today are in danger of becoming obsolete men and women of tomorrow."

Paintings, Silver, Jewelry Stolen

Paintings, silver and jewelry valued at almost $3,000 were stolen from the home of Harry E. Linder at 10 Fern Way, Kentfield, Sunday, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The thief apparently climbed a step ladder and let himself in through an open window, deputies said.

Also reported yesterday was the theft of four rings and a watch from the home of Maryanne Salway at 480 Edgewood Avenue, Homestead Valley, Monday. The thief crawled through the home's dog door, deputies said.

Houseboat Counsel Cites Dredging Pressure Cause For All The Fuss

The attorney for the embattled houseboat owners in Richardson Bay today charged that pressure on the county by property owners eager to dredge Saucelito Canal was the reason houseboats are being forced off underwater public streets.

Hugh G. Lawrence, representing the Houseboat Owners Association, made his charge on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program. He added that this pressure had caused "a kind of panic" in county government.

Lawrence argued that the "panic" stemmed from the county's need to find areas to dump mud spoils from the dredging, and that by forcing houseboats off streets, the county hopes to pressure large property owners to agree to take spoils.

Lawrence was hotly disputed by another panelist, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen. Terming the contention "absolutely ridiculous," Kettenhofen said the county's sole reason for the new enforcement program was to ensure public health and safety.

"We'd all like to be anarchists," said Kettenhofen, "but the county has a duty to see that people live in accord with some general framework to ensure public health and safety. I'm not saying they're all slums or a bunch of disreputable people down there," he added, "but it will get worse if we don't do something now."

Kettenhofen, noting the county government had been lax in enforcing houseboat regulations in the Waldo Point area, said the county "made a mistake in allowing this to go this far."

Kettenhofen said most persons in county government "really do like the idea of a houseboat community in Sausalito," but added that a growing concentration of hippies and drug use in the community "can't be allowed to grow and fester down there."

A third panelist, Dean M. Jennings, who lives on a houseboat in Richardson Bay, conceded the county had a "legal right" to force houseboats off public streets, but questioned the county's "right to do it on a moral basis."

He also objected to the county's intensive enforcement program. "In the last three months we've had more helicopter flyovers than over Vietnam he said, terming the aerial inspections "sorties by Frost flyers."

The object of Jennings' ire, Donald R. Forst, county director of public works, said the enforcement program started because the construction of houseboats suddenly became "a flourishing industry, last summer.

"Modern standards of health and safety demand something more than three feet of old inner tube draped over the bulkhead," said Frost of the sewage system found on some houseboats.

If the county were interested simply in getting rid of the houseboats, he noted, "then we wouldn't have been working with them for two months."

Frost sided with Kettenhofen in calling for an emergency interim ordinance to bar all new houseboat construction in the county until new regulations for them are adopted by the county. "If we don't have such an ordinance," said Kettenhofen, "they'll ctinue to grow while we're talking."

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be replayed at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Heliport At Civic Center On Agenda

The possibility of a heliport and runway strip for shoot takeoff and landing near the Civic Center will be discussed by the Marin Aviation Commission Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the board of supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

Commissioner Ray W. Foreaker Jr., who will report on several sites north of the Civic Center, said both SFO Helicopter Airlines and Comstol Airlines of Oakland have expressed some interest.

The Smith Ranch, which already has a short airstrip, is one of the sites to be discussed.

He said there is a possiblity that SFO and Comstol could operate jointly from the same field. "But a landing strip for Comstol would require a lot more initial investment than for a copter pad. So the question is, can we try Comstol for a couple years without too much initial cost? That's why the Smith Ranch becomes attractive."

Foreaker said no conclusions are likely Tuesday night, and he plans to ask for more time to investigate the Smith Ranch and other sites.

Other items on the aviation commission's agenda include rules and regulations for operation of Gnoss Field, the county airport North of Novato, and storage shelters and/or hangars to protect planes there.

Expansion Of Student Survey Likely

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night introduced Supt. Charles E. McCully to weigh expanding a student opinion survey proposed by Tomales High School District to the entire unified school district, McCully reported today

A University of California researcher, Bonnie Gurgin, under contract with the Tomales district has been preparing the survey to find out what present and former students think of the educational program at the high school.

The board also asked McCully to make a survey before Dec. 4 of the present seven trustee areas of the district to see if they were organized in the best manner. Before unification of the Tomales High School District with the elementary districts in its area.

In other action taken by the board, it approved an agreement with the Tomales Elementary District for shoreline office space at $100 per month from Jan. 1 to June 30 when the new Shoreline district will take over all the elementary districts and the high school district.

Magnolia Merchants Ask Parking On Both Sides

Merchants from the north end of Magnolia Avenue, claiming business losses, urged the Larkspur City Council last night to permit parking on both sides of the roadway and establish a two-hour parking limit.

Magnolia Avenue is being widened from two to four lanes and plans call for ultimate parking on the west side only. But the merchants also want parking on the east side from Woodlark Apartments, south of Murray Avenue, to the north city limits,- until the widening phase to Doherty Drive is completed, probably in the fall of 1970.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the next section of widening, extending to Bon Air Road, was expected to be completed by next fall, and councilmen passed a resolution of intention to call for bids on that section next April.

The council received a petition signed by 30 merchants and property owners requesting the parking and heard appeals during a one hour and 20 minute public hearing.

They continued the hearing until 8 p.m. Wednesday to hear further reports on the proposal, including one from Police Chief Howard Clark on safety factors.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon, who owns property and operates a business in the area, disqualified himself from council discussion on the matter, and sat in the audience. About 25 merchants and property owners attended the hearing.

Larkspur Wins Fight To Close Warehouse Store

Larkspur has won a Superior Court decision in its battle to have the Dollars 'n Sense store at 1100 Magnolia Avenue halt the use of warehouse space for retail sales.

The city filed its complaint to have Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Merret, store owners, operate in accordance with their variance permit, which permitted the storage area, but not retail sales.

The city's crackdown became an issue in January, when the Merrets presented a petition to the council, signed by about 600 persons requesting that the sales be continued.

City Atty. Robert W. Elliott reported to the council last night that the case was decided in favor of the city.

Rain, Cool Weather Cure Hippie Problem

Larkspur had been having troubles with hippie gatherings and vandalism at Dolliver Park and Police Chief Howard Clark was ready to ask the city council last night to enact stronger regulations.

"But then we had a little rain and a little cold and they disappeared," Chief Clark reported, explaining he now would wait until next Spring before proposing new regulations.

In another hippie-related matter, the council last night made appointments to a five-member board made necessary by adoption last July of a uniform housing code.

Purpose of the code was to enforce improvement of substandard dwellings, particularly in Madrone Canyon where hippies had occupied dilapidated buildings.

Appointed to the Building Regulations Appeals Board to hear appeals from property owners affected by the program were Arthur Sestak, George H. Aster, Harold Z. Frank, L. R. Liberati and Melvin Desin.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

BON AIR BRIDGE — Heard a report from City Atty. Robert W. Elliott that Marin County rejected the city's claim for $95,000 for damage to the Bon Air Bridge during dredging of Corte Madera Creek, and authorized Elliott to file the claim against the state if the state doesn't pay voluntarily.

PRIVATE ROADS — Adopted an emergency ordinance which enables the city to control parking and traffic on private property, with permission of the owner. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said specific regulations would be before the council for approval later, but by enacting the enabling ordinance, temporary moves could be made in time for the Christmas shopping period.

PLANNING RULES — Continued public hearings until Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. on zoning ordinance amendments, one on planned unit development and the other on planned district, after Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. proposed changes.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS — Postponed discussion of a proposed ordinance that would require property owners, excluding single family and duplex, to provide public improvements such as curbs, sidewalks, etc., whenever they make building improvements exceeding $5,000 in value. Councilman Neil R. Brixon objected strongly and the council appointed Councilman William Fleckles and Bathurst to revise the proposed ordinance.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session with Elliott for about five minutes to discuss litigation on acquisition of a small parcel at College Park and Magnolia Avenue, owned by Betsy Michaelson, which was condemmned by the city for street widening at the intersection.

PLANNING BY-LAWS — Gave first approval to by-laws for the city planning commission and referred them to the commission for their approval before final adoption.

FIRE ALARM PAYMENT — Accepted $960 from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. as a settlement for damages last summer when a utility line toppled in high wind and caused a short circuit which burned out five fire alarm boxes.

EASEMENT — Gave notice of intention to abandon a drainage easement on South Eliseo Drive as requested by the Schultz Development Co. so a new easement can be constructed adjacent to it, and set Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on abandonment.

OPEN CAMPUS — Heard a report from Mayor Alfred Malvino that the Tamalpais High School District Board has no intention of having an open campus at Redwood High School this school year, and the proposed meeting between the council and the board has been cancelled.

TRUCK LIMITS — Opposed a legislative bill which would permit the relaxing of truck weight and width limits, a move that councilmen felt would be detrimental to the city's streets.

NEW CARS —Approved the purchase of two police cars, a car for the fire chief and a car for the city manager through the state at a total cost of $10,253.

PLANNING FUNDS — Approved the transfer of $500 from the general fund to provide Bathurst with technical aid from a planning consultant.

ADJOURNMENT —Adjourned until 8 p.m. Wednesday (Nov. 13) for continuation for a public hearing on parking requests from merchants in the North Magnolia Avenue sector.

CAMP PENDELTON (AP)—A young Marine trainee from Brownsburg, Ind., has died of meningitis at the Camp Pendleton Naval Hospital, marine officials said today.

Pvt. Frank I. Mitchell, 18, died last Saturday, one day after he was admitted to the hospital which listed cause of death as pneumococcal meningitis.

Larkspur Delays Second Look At Planning Council

Larkspur City Council voted 3-2 last night to postpone for 90 days reconsideration of its refusal to join the Marin City-County Planning Council.

Councilman William G. Fleckles and Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. dissented, contending that the city should have a voice in council deliberations and recommendations.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon described the council "as just another tool" for County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker to "justify" his department "spending $400,000 a year for planning."

Fleckles said word he had received from five city members of the council indicated there was potential advantage in joining, and nothing negative.

Fleckles also contended that the city would have more chance to voice its dissent from within the council, than it would after the council acted.

Five New Directors Named By Employees

Marin County Employees Association elected five new members to its 11-man board of directors last night.

A total of 260 ballots, mailed in by employees, were counted at the association office, 1108 Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael, Randall M. Prevo, manager announced.

The five new directors are Erling R. Nelson, senior agriculture inspector, 184 votes; Frances Bahl of the coroner's office, 162 votes; Ida Cullen of the treasurer's office, 140 votes; Leon DeLisle of the public works department, 121 votes, and Theodore Keller of the department of environmental health, 114 votes.

George J. Reuss of the sheriff's office, with 113 votes, and Robert Testa of the fire department, with 110 votes, were barely nosed out by Keller.

The five new directors will join these six carryover members of the board: president Paul J. Brusseau; secretary Leona Meysembourg; Asst. Fire Chief Stanley Rowen; William Desmond, director of environmental health; A. W. Adam, investigator for the district attorney; and N. G. Weaver of the public works department.

New officers for 1969 will be elected from among the 11 directors at a general membership meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Center cafeteria.

Of the carryover directors, Desmond and Rowen will have to be replaced by the board because they are considered "managerial employees" under the employer-employee relations policy recently worked out with the county.

An installation dinner for new officers is set for Jan. 18 at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club, Prevo announced.

$18,000 Garage Wins Approval

San Rafael Sanitation District directors yesterday approved plans for a garage and workshop building at the main treatment plant area estimated to cost $18,000.

The board called for bids to be opened at 5 p.m. Dec. 4 at San Rafael City Hall. The concrete block building will have space for four trucks and a work area.

Trio Injured In Car-Bike Crash

Three persons were injured in a car-bicycle accident yesterday at 4:30 p.m. at 1840 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma.

Agatha Early, 63, of 10 Keller Street, was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with a fractured left wrist. Her husband, R. Allan Early, 64, was treated for cuts and bruises along with Thomas Goodin, 13, of 100 Cinnabar Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the boy ran into the side of the car, and in an attempt to avoid striking him, the car crossed the median strip and hit a tree.

Second Lifer Back In Custody

OAKLAND (AP)—The second of two life-term convicts who escaped from the Tulare County Jail in Visalia Oct. 21 was recaptured at the Oakland Greyhound bus station last night.

George Evans Harp, 34, was taken into custody when he attempted to board a bus without a ticket, police said. He offered no resistance.

The other fugitive, Lewis Donald Fritz, 36, was captured Oct. 24 in the Los Angeles Bell Garden area.

Two Specialized Positions Sought For Mental Center

The Marin Mental Health Advisory Board asked county supervisors last night to establish two new jobs connected with operation of the new Community Mental Health Center.

Dr. Gerald Hill, chairman of the advisory board, said the group passed a resolution asking the county to create the positions of coordinator of mental health services and program evaluation analyst.

Hill said the coordinator's salary could be paid by budget reorgaization. No programs would suffer because of the shuffling, he said. Funds are included in the budget for the analyst, Hill said.

A major job of the coordinator would be to know what services were available in mental retardation, Hill said, while the analyst would review current mental health programs with an eye toward possible changes.

Hill said the advisory board would like the positions filled by the Jan. 1 opening of the mental health center, at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae.

Hill said staff of the county's community mental health services department would move from present offices on C and D streets in San Rafael to the center on Nov. 19.

The next meeting of the advisory board will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 11 at the new center, instead of Nov. 27, as regularly scheduled.

Supersonic Jet Flight Scheduled

PARIS (AP) — The world's first supersonic airliner, the British-French Concorde, will make its much-delayed maiden flight in January, Sud Aviation President Henri Ziegler announced today.

Ziegler said he could not give a precise date for the initial flight. Five weeks of final verification will start at the end of this month, he said.

Cyclist Is Fair From Accident

Louis Cortez, 22, of Albuquerque, N. M., was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a dislocated hip and broken ribs suffered when his motorcycle veered off North San Pedro Road and threw Cortez and his passenger into a drainage ditch, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 1 a.m. today when the motorcycle failed to make a curve, bogged down in mud on the shoulder and threw off Cortez and Michael L. Michelson, 20, of 1735 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Quentin Felon Stabbed Four Times At Mill

A San Quentin inmate was hospitalized at the prison today with four slash wounds he suffered in a fight with a fellow prisoner at 9:05 a.m. Associate Warden James W. L. Park reported.

Henry Seabarry, 39, serving two to eight years for possession of dangerous drugs for sale and selling dangerous drugs from Los Angeles County, sustained three deep slashes on the back of his upper left arm and one slash across the left side of his chest, Park said.

John R. Mooney, 44, sentenced to six months to 10 years from San Francisco County for assault with a deadly weapon, was being held in connection with the fight, Park said.

The incident occurred in the cotton textile mill where both men are assigned. Park said a one and one-half inch knife used in the cotton mill was used in the attack.

He said he did not know what caused the altercation.

Suspect Nabbed In Looting Act

Adam Nicholas Mikolon, 38, of San Anselmo, was arrested early today when sheriff's deputies reportedly caught him ransacking a home on the Bolinas-Olema Road in Bolinas.

Deputy Joseph Dentoni reported that a neighbor called to report a burglary in the home of Tomas Jones Barfield. When he arrived, there was a light on in the house, he said.

The officer reported Mikolon emerged from the house, wearing handkerchiefs on his hands, and was arrested. Inside, officers found the house ransacked. Two pillow cases containing loot were by the front door, Dentoni said.

Mikolon was held in lieu of $3,125 bail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

Rcreation Panel Agrees To Begin Student Dialogue

San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools will be asked to send representatives to meetings of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission as the initial step in giving young people a voice on the commission.

Commissioners agreed to invite students at a meeting last night and also decided to investigate the possibility of expanding the commission to include a young person, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., director of the parks and recreation department, reported.

Members first wondered if a young person could be appointed to replace Louis H. (Bud) Baar if he resigns when he begins duties as a Marin County supervisor, Snyder said.

However, Chairman Charles L. Tacchi noted the city council prefers to have one of its members on the commission to maintain better liaison, Snyder reported.

Snyder, who is now preparing the winter recreation program schedule, said he will get in touch with student councils at both schools for suggestions.

Snyder said he also proposed a special teen council with representatives from local schools to help plan activities but no action was taken.

Parks And Recreation Commission Also:

POLITICS — Called for a legal opinion from the city attorney on park deed restrictions on political rallies. The Republican Party had asked to use Albert Park for a rally and was turned down because of the restriction.

ALBERT PARK — Heard Snyder report that refurbished tennis courts at Albert Park are now open for playing, although a little work remains to be completed.

BIKE TRAILS — Agreed to work with the county and state to develop bicycle paths over Porto Suello Hill.

TENNIS COURTS — Said that tennis courts at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools do not belong to the city. Commission members said they had had several complaints about the condition of the nets and the lack of posted rules on the courts which belong to the school district.

BOYD PARK — Agreed to spend $125 to put a pipe under Robert Dollar Drive at Boyd Park to take care of a drainage problem that is undermining the road.

EASEMENT — Rejected a request for access over park land in Boyd Park because of a deed restriction which limits the land to park uses.

RECREATION — Agreed to attend a meeting of the Marin County Park and Recreation Commission at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center to discuss teen-age recreation programs.

$4,000 Approved For Easements

Payments totaling about $4,000 for easements in the Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project were approved last night by the Ross Valley Sanitary District board.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, reported that 70 per cent of the project's work has been completed and finishing date will be about Nov. 15.

The board also approved the installation by the Tamalpais, a high-rise retirement center in Larkspur, of a 1,000-foot sewer line connecting with a district pumping station.

Apartment Looted Of TV Set, Cash

Kathrine V. Finn reported to San Rafael police the theft yesterday of a refrigerator, a television-stereophonic set, $900 cash and rings from her duplex apartment at 2078 Fifth Avenue.

She said the cash and jewelry were taken from a small metal box which was hidden in the bedroom closet and pried open. There was no sign offorced entry to the apartment.

Pro-Abortion Talk

Dr. Thomas Hart will speak in favor of abortions in a discussion from 9 to 11 a.m. Sunday at the Marin Jewish Community Center. Dr. Hart represents a clinic in San Francisco.

Health Plans Board Opens Memberships

The board of directors of the Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council agreed yesterday to open up its membership and board to other than representatives of health groups.

The temporary board had scheduled an election of a permanent board Oct. 30, but postponed it when Miss Ann McCorry of Greenbrae asked the board of supervisors to see that it includes representatives from various segments of the community such as the poor, youth, minorities, senior citizens, the handicapped and consumer cooperatives.

The deadline to apply for membership in writing to the council office at 1601 Second Street, Suite 106, San Rafael, is Nov. 20, reported the council's temporary secretary, Don W. Sower.

The council then, at a meeting to be set, will expand its present membership of 87 persons by adding some of the persons applying, said Sower. The size of the expanded council membership was not set by the directors in their morning meeting yesterday at the Woodlands Restaurant in Kentfield, he said.

The board election by the membership, originally postponed to Nov. 10, has been changed to 8 p.m. Nov. 11 in the Civic Center, said Sower.

The size of the board will remain at 35 members, he said.

School Leaders Name Integration, Professional Units

The Marin Association of School Administrators yesterday named a school integration committee and a professional relations committee, H. Joe Edgington, president, said today.

He said the integration committee, to study county districts' problems in that area, will be headed by Dr. James A. Collins, superintnedent of the Mill Valley School District.

Anthony G. Bacich, superintendent of the Kentfield School District, is chairman of the professional relations committee.

Edgington, superintendent of the Reed Union School District, said the professional relations committee will maintain a close study of legislation concerning education, and help interpret it for the public.

At the request of Allied Juvenile Agencies of Marin County, he said, the association also agreed to urge all school districts to acquire pamphlets called "parents and youth" from the group.

Pleads Guilty To Marijuana

William H. McInerney, 19, of Sonoma, pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of marijuana possession and misdemeanor battery.

In Municipal Court, he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing methamphetamine April 19 and additional charges of possessing marijuana, a hypodermic needle, a bad check and a loaded gun, all on Jan. 1, were dismissed.

His Superior Court pleas were admissions that he possessed marijuana on the courthouse lawn Feb. 9 in San Rafael and that he struck sheriff's deputy William F. Naber in the jail April 20.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the youth to return to Superior Court Nov. 22 for sentencing. He is to be sentenced in Municipal Court the same day for the dangerous drug charge.

Arceo, Novotny Trial May Last Until 1969

The murder trial of John Arceo and Dennis C. Novotny may last until Christmas or early January, Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating told prospective jurors today.

The two are accused in the Jan. 6 death of San Rafael gun collector Wesley L. Marshall, who died a month after being beaten and stomped at his home in a robbery.

Keating took steps to shorten the trial. He announced trial days will start at 9:30 a.m., a half hour earlier than usual, and said he will try to shift his Monday calendar duties to other departments so the trial can proceed five days a week.

Approximately 70 jurors had been excused from service for hardship reasons as jury selection continued today, and attorneys began using up their peremptory challenges.

Prosecutor Joshua Thomas Challenged four jurors for cause yesterday when they said they would not vote for the death penalty under any circumstances.

Thomas used five peremptory challenges of the 30 he is allowed, while defense attorneys also used five of their 30.

Suspect Nabbed In Looting Act

Adam Nicholas Mikolon, 38, of San Anselmo, was arrested early today when sheriff's deputies reportedly caught him ransacking a home on the Bolinas-Olema Road in Bolinas.

Deputy Joseph Dentoni reported that a neighbor called to report a burglary in the home of Tomas Jones Barfield. When he arrived, there was a light on in the house, he said.

The officer reported Mikolon emerged from the house, wearing handkerchiefs on his hands, and was arrested. Inside, officers found the house ransacked. Two pillow cases containing loot were by the front door, Dentoni said.

Mikolon was held in lieu of $3,125 bail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

Rcreation Panel Agrees To Begin Student Dialogue

San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools will be asked to send representatives to meetings of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission as the initial step in giving young people a voice on the commission.

Commissioners agreed to invite students at a meeting last night and also decided to investigate the possibility of expanding the commission to include a young person, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., director of the parks and recreation department, reported.

Members first wondered if a young person could be appointed to replace Louis H. (Bud) Baar if he resigns when he begins duties as a Marin County supervisor, Snyder said.

However, Chairman Charles L. Tacchi noted the city council prefers to have one of its members on the commission to maintain better liaison, Snyder reported.

Snyder, who is now preparing the winter recreation program schedule, said he will get in touch with student councils at both schools for suggestions.

Snyder said he also proposed a special teen council with representatives from local schools to help plan activities but no action was taken.

Parks And Recreation Commission Also:

POLITICS — Called for a legal opinion from the city attorney on park deed restrictions on political rallies. The Republican Party had asked to use Albert Park for a rally and was turned down because of the restriction.

ALBERT PARK — Heard Snyder report that refurbished tennis courts at Albert Park are now open for playing, although a little work remains to be completed.

BIKE TRAILS — Agreed to work with the county and state to develop bicycle paths over Porto Suello Hill.

TENNIS COURTS — Said that tennis courts at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools do not belong to the city. Commission members said they had had several complaints about the condition of the nets and the lack of posted rules on the courts which belong to the school district.

BOYD PARK — Agreed to spend $125 to put a pipe under Robert Dollar Drive at Boyd Park to take care of a drainage problem that is undermining the road.

EASEMENT — Rejected a request for access over park land in Boyd Park because of a deed restriction which limits the land to park uses.

RECREATION — Agreed to attend a meeting of the Marin County Park and Recreation Commission at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center to discuss teen-age recreation programs.

$4,000 Approved For Easements

Payments totaling about $4,000 for easements in the Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project were approved last night by the Ross Valley Sanitary District board.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, reported that 70 per cent of the project's work has been completed and finishing date will be about Nov. 15.

The board also approved the installation by the Tamalpais, a high-rise retirement center in Larkspur, of a 1,000-foot sewer line connecting with a district pumping station.

Apartment Looted Of TV Set, Cash

Kathrine V. Finn reported to San Rafael police the theft yesterday of a refrigerator, a television-stereophonic set, $900 cash and rings from her duplex apartment at 2078 Fifth Avenue.

She said the cash and jewelry were taken from a small metal box which was hidden in the bedroom closet and pried open. There was no sign offorced entry to the apartment.

Pro-Abortion Talk

Dr. Thomas Hart will speak in favor of abortions in a discussion from 9 to 11 a.m. Sunday at the Marin Jewish Community Center. Dr. Hart represents a clinic in San Francisco.

Health Plans Board Opens Memberships

The board of directors of the Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council agreed yesterday to open up its membership and board to other than representatives of health groups.

The temporary board had scheduled an election of a permanent board Oct. 30, but postponed it when Miss Ann McCorry of Greenbrae asked the board of supervisors to see that it includes representatives from various segments of the community such as the poor, youth, minorities, senior citizens, the handicapped and consumer cooperatives.

The deadline to apply for membership in writing to the council office at 1601 Second Street, Suite 106, San Rafael, is Nov. 20, reported the council's temporary secretary, Don W. Sower.

The council then, at a meeting to be set, will expand its present membership of 87 persons by adding some of the persons applying, said Sower. The size of the expanded council membership was not set by the directors in their morning meeting yesterday at the Woodlands Restaurant in Kentfield, he said.

The board election by the membership, originally postponed to Nov. 10, has been changed to 8 p.m. Nov. 11 in the Civic Center, said Sower.

The size of the board will remain at 35 members, he said.

School Leaders Name Integration, Professional Units

The Marin Association of School Administrators yesterday named a school integration committee and a professional relations committee, H. Joe Edgington, president, said today.

He said the integration committee, to study county districts' problems in that area, will be headed by Dr. James A. Collins, superintnedent of the Mill Valley School District.

Edgington, superintendent of the Reed Union School District, said the professional relations committee will maintain a close study of legislation concerning education, and help interpret it for the public.

At the request of Allied Juvenile Agencies of Marin County, he said, the association also agreed to urge all school districts to acquire pamphlets called "parents and youth" from the group.

Pleads Guilty To Marijuana

William H. McInerney, 19, of Sonoma, pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of marijuana possession and misdemeanor battery.

In Municipal Court, he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing methamphetamine April 19 and additional charges of possessing marijuana, a hypodermic needle, a bad check and a loaded gun, all on Jan. 1, were dismissed.

His Superior Court pleas were admissions that he possessed marijuana on the courthouse lawn Feb. 9 in San Rafael and that he struck sheriff's deputy William F. Naber in the jail April 20.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the youth to return to Superior Court Nov. 22 for sentencing. He is to be sentenced in Municipal Court the same day for the dangerous drug charge.

Arceo, Novotny Trial May Last Until 1969

The murder trial of John Arceo and Dennis C. Novotny may last until Christmas or early January, Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating told prospective jurors today.

The two are accused in the Jan. 6 death of San Rafael gun collector Wesley L. Marshall, who died a month after being beaten and stomped at his home in a robbery.

Keating took steps to shorten the trial. He announced trial days will start at 9:30 a.m., a half hour earlier than usual, and said he will try to shift his Monday calendar duties to other departments so the trial can proceed five days a week.

Approximately 70 jurors had been excused from service for hardship reasons as jury selection continued today, and attorneys began using up their peremptory challenges.

Prosecutor Joshua Thomas Challenged four jurors for cause yesterday when they said they would not vote for the death penalty under any circumstances.

Thomas used five peremptory challenges of the 30 he is allowed, while defense attorneys also used five of their 30.

Charges Fly In Illinois Vote Count

CHICAGO (AP) — The official vote canvass begins today in Cook County (Chicago) amid charges by both major parties that there was vote finagling in an election which gave Richard M. Nixon the presidency on the strength of Illinois' 26 electoral votes.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, who, as head of the Democratic party machinery in Illinois has sometimes been accused by his opponents of finagling with election returns, said yesterday the official count "might show some interesting figures."

With 95 per cent of the state's 10,694 precincts reported, unofficial returns gave Nixon 2,064,756 votes to Hubert H. Humphrey's 1,929,254.

Nevertheless, the unreported precincts remained a mystery.

In 1960 anti-Daley forces charged that tampered returns from Cook County narrowly edged Illinois from the Nixon column in the Nixon-John F. Kennedy election.

Daley was the first yesterday to hint at possible vote irregularities by the other side. He cited two western suburbs where returns were delayed. The implication was that the delay could permit strengthening the Republican area by a needed amount if the election were very close—a maneuver Republicans charged Daley with in 1960 when Nixon lost Illinois by less than 9,000 votes.

Asked if he charged irregularities in the western suburbs, Daley said, "Certainly."

Despite Cost, Sewer Connect Bid Accepted

The Corte Madera Sanitary District board, which on Oct. 3 delayed awarding a contract for installation of sewer line in the S and L Subdivision, last night accepted the lowest of the four bids orginally received, $9.316.

The contractor, Everson Construction Co. of San Bruno, is to start work installing the 460 feet of line in the subdivision off Paradise Drive within a week, according to board secretary Portia Fitzgerald.

Delay in awarding the contract came when even Everson's bid was found to be $5,116 over the district engineer's estimate for the job, she said. The board then considered installation of a force main instead of the proposed use of a gravity sewel fall line. The former, however, was decided to be unfeasible, she added.

The board also agreed to start annexation of a 4.5-acre parcel at the written request of five property owners in 30-acre parcel on Paradise Drive being considered for annexation.

Annexation proceedings for a small parcel owned by Terance O'Flaherty in the 5100 block of Paradise Drive also was approved by the board at O'Flaherty's request.

$3,000 in Cash Reported Stolen

Floyd Mattern, owner of Floyd's Lighting and Appliance Store, 150 Kentucky Street, Petaluma, reported $3,000 in $50 and $100 bills was stolen from his store Tuesday afternoon or evening.

Mattern said the money was in an envelope in a pocket of his suit jacket which he had placed on a chair in the store between 4 and 9 p.m. He did not notice the envelope was missing until yesterday morning. He told police that many people had access to the area of the store.

Drake Balloting Set On Cage Yell Teams

By ANN-MARIE GARE
Sir Francis Drake High School

Basketball song and yell leader elections will be held at Sir Francis Drake High School. tomorrow.

Fifty-two girls originally signed up to try out for songleader. They were judged Oct. 31 by a screening committee comprised of the present football songleaders and their two faculty advisors. Twenty-two girls were passed and thus were eligible to try out in front of the student body and appear on the ballot.

The girls trying out are Artemisa Borrego, Cathy Briones, Jackie Cann, Verra Casci, Mary Evans, Linda Everson, Debbie Gibbs, Chris Gonser, Kris Hughes, Lori Kealey, Barbara Kelso, Margie Lococo, Missy Mangles, Sally McLellan, Angie Mercado, Debbie Milnes, Terri Rudee, Corinne Sartorio, Sylvia Sower, Joan Van Arnum, Marty Walters, and Nancy Watson.

Four groups began the competition for yell leader, but one dropped out. The remaining three are The Golden Hindes, The Presidential All American Physical Fitness Team, and The Spirited Six.

The Golden Hindes is made up of Murray Bruce, Carl Tierney, Chad Williams, Ed Harrington and Rick Harnsberger. The Presidential All American Physical Fitness Team is composed of Wally Bentley, Christie Fairchild, Laurie Fialkowki and George MacDonald. The Spirited Six is Jim Ahola, Carol Alderson, Nancy Cauch, Duff Gallagher, Wendy Thornton and Ron Wilhelm.

Voting will be held all day tomorrow at tables on the campus lawns. Results will be known in late afternoon.

One Voter Finds Faulty Voting Book

A defective voting book at a Fairfax polling place could have prevented some persons from voting for legislators Tuesday, Mrs. Jean Reid of 412 Scenic Road, Fairfax, said yesterday.

Mrs. Reid said she voted after 6 p.m. at Central School and found the book which fits over the Votomatic ballot card was improperly hinged, so that on turning to Page 2 to vote for U.S. representative and California asemblyman, there was no opening through which to push the stylus to vote.

Mrs. Reid said the precinct inspector agreed the book was defective but said it was the first complaint received about it all day. The elections department immediately sent an official to check the faulty book, Mrs. Reid said.

The defective book apparently had little or no effect on voting at the precinct. Peter C. Meyer of the elections department said 399 persons voted at the precinct, with 395 votes cast in the Congressional contest and 375 in the Assembly race. The figures compare with 381 votes cast for President and 395 for U.S. senator on the preceding page.

British Gen. Edward Braddock was the first to use a Conestoga wagon in a sizable wagon train in 1755 when he led his troops from Fort Cumberland, Md., across the Allegheny.

Old-Fashioned Decor Greets Children At Ross Academy

By JOAN LISETOR

Mrs. John Lord of Ross has created a wonderland for children and given it the imposing name of Ross Academy.

The academy offers classes in piano, ballet, guitar and musical kindergarten. When the children open the door to the academy, located on Poplar Avenue in Ross, they enter a reception parlor furnished in Victorian decor; check in with the receptionist, Mrs. Robert Biggs; and take a seat in another room which is furnished as a turn-of-the-century schoolroom.

SEATED AT old-fashioned school desks, the children eagerly await the arrival of June Lord, owner and director of the cultural education center.

June Lord has three children, and two years ago was a busy housewife when the idea of an academy struck her. Her daughter Julie, then five years old, wanted to take ballet lessons. The family consented, but it was June who was going to have to play chauffeur and get young James ready to take along on the trips back and forth to ballet school.

"Why not classes in downtown Ross so that the children can walk to them from Ross Grammar School?" she thought.

MRS LORD HAS worked with groups of children most of her adult life. She was graduated from the University of Southern California with a major in education and taught kindergarten through third grades in the Los Angeles City Schools for nine years before she and her husband moved to Ross in 1963.

A native of Beverly Hills, she had worked several summers with the Beverly Jills and Jacks Nursery School Summer Camp in the San Fernando Valley. During her under-graduate years at USC she volunteered numerous hours of service to the school for blind children in Los Angeles founded by her sorority Delta Gamma.

"I thought it would be nice if lessons in the arts were provided for children all under one roof and decided that one of the stores on Poplar Avenue would be just right for a school," she told us when we visited during a musical kindergarten session.

"AFTER SOME SERIOUS thinking on the subject, I decided that it was such a good idea that when a vacancy occured in just the location I had been thinking about, I decided to open the academy."

The whirlwind of activities began in August of last year, when arrangements for remodeling began. Classrooms in the six-room-building were soundproofed. Special flooring, mirrored walls and practice bars were installed for the ballet classes, and, when things began to take shape, teachers had to be hired and courses outlined.

With Victorian era furniture in mind, June set out to do her own interior decorating. She was buying an antique mirror from a friend when she was introduced to Carla Flood, a local artist and interior decorator, who had recently renovated and refurnished her own Victorian home a few blocks from the academy. Since she had to sort through hundreds of replies to her ads for teachers, June decided to turn her decorating problems over to Mrs. Flood.

Teachers were hired, remodeling was completed and the academy was furnished and ready to open its doors in October.

"BECAUSE OF THE staggering number of replies to my ads for teachers, I was able to select very well-qualified instructors for the academy," says the director.

Mrs. Lonnie Eschliman has taught at the academy since it opened. She received a BA degree from Hastings College in Nebraska, taught music for three years in public elementary school and has taught piano and voice privately for nine years.

"She is soft-spoken but firm and inspires great loyalty in the students," says Mrs. Lord. "I have heard some students confide that they had practiced very hard to learn a lesson well so they would not hurt Mrs. Eschliman's feelings."

The soundproofed room we were in during the session of musical kindergarten has special equipment: a jumbo keyboard, an electric organ, various rhythm instruments and two sets of tonal bells.

The pre-school children become acquainted with the keyboard by learning the letter names of the keys, the high and low registers, a five finger legato in each hand and simple rote pieces.

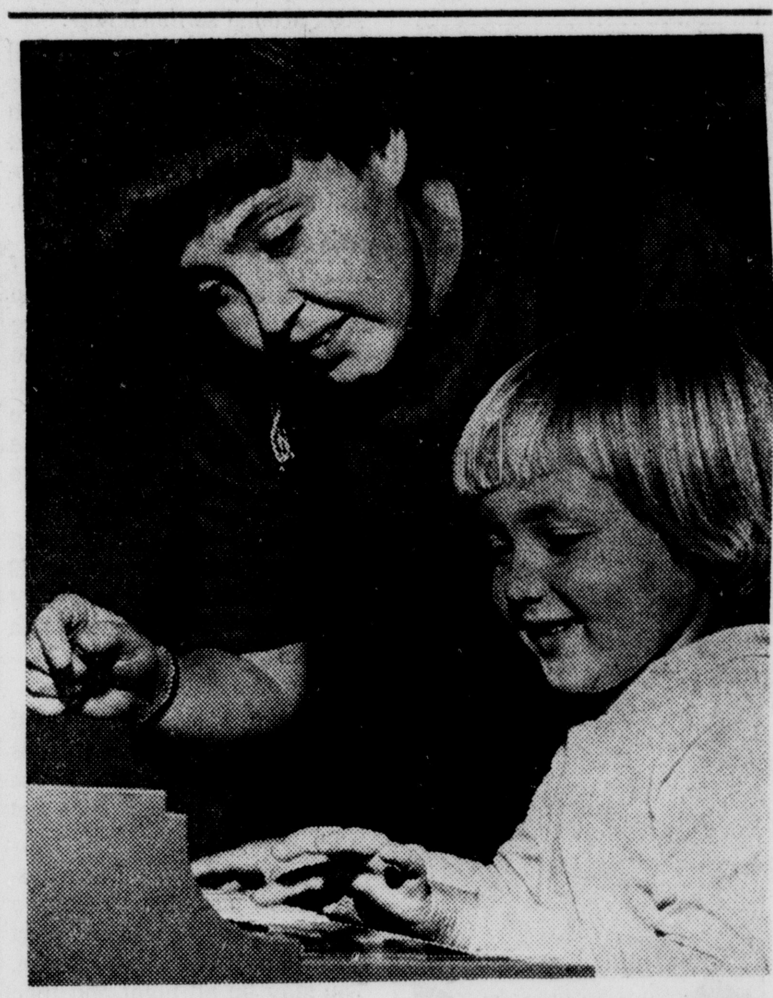
THE CHILDREN labored over staffed lined paper, drawing the music symbols. They were so engrossed by what they were doing, that they were totally unaware of being observed by a photographer and a reporter.

Ballet classes are taught by Mrs. Donald Dooley, who trained for five years with Ernest Belcher, was a junior dancer for three years with Metro Goldwyn Mayer and spent four years at the Ballet Theatre School of New York.

"DEBORAH took numerous teacher training courses as well as modern dance at Stanford University and has the true dedication of a ballerina," according to June Lord.

The two guitar teachers are Walter Ullner, a graduate of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and former member of the Tommy Dorsey band, who teaches classical guitar, and Mrs. Lewis Gill, a former professional singer, who has a teaching credential in elementary and special secondary education. Connie Gill has had training in teaching music to children including theory, appreciation and harmony and has taught privately for several years.

"CHILDREN LOVE THE guitar," Mrs. Lord explains. "We start teaching them at age seven because the guitar is easy to learn to play and gives a sense of achievement to the beginner. The group lessons are especially popular because instead of comparing his progress to the teacher, the student is more at ease when he sees others at his own level striving to attain the same goals."



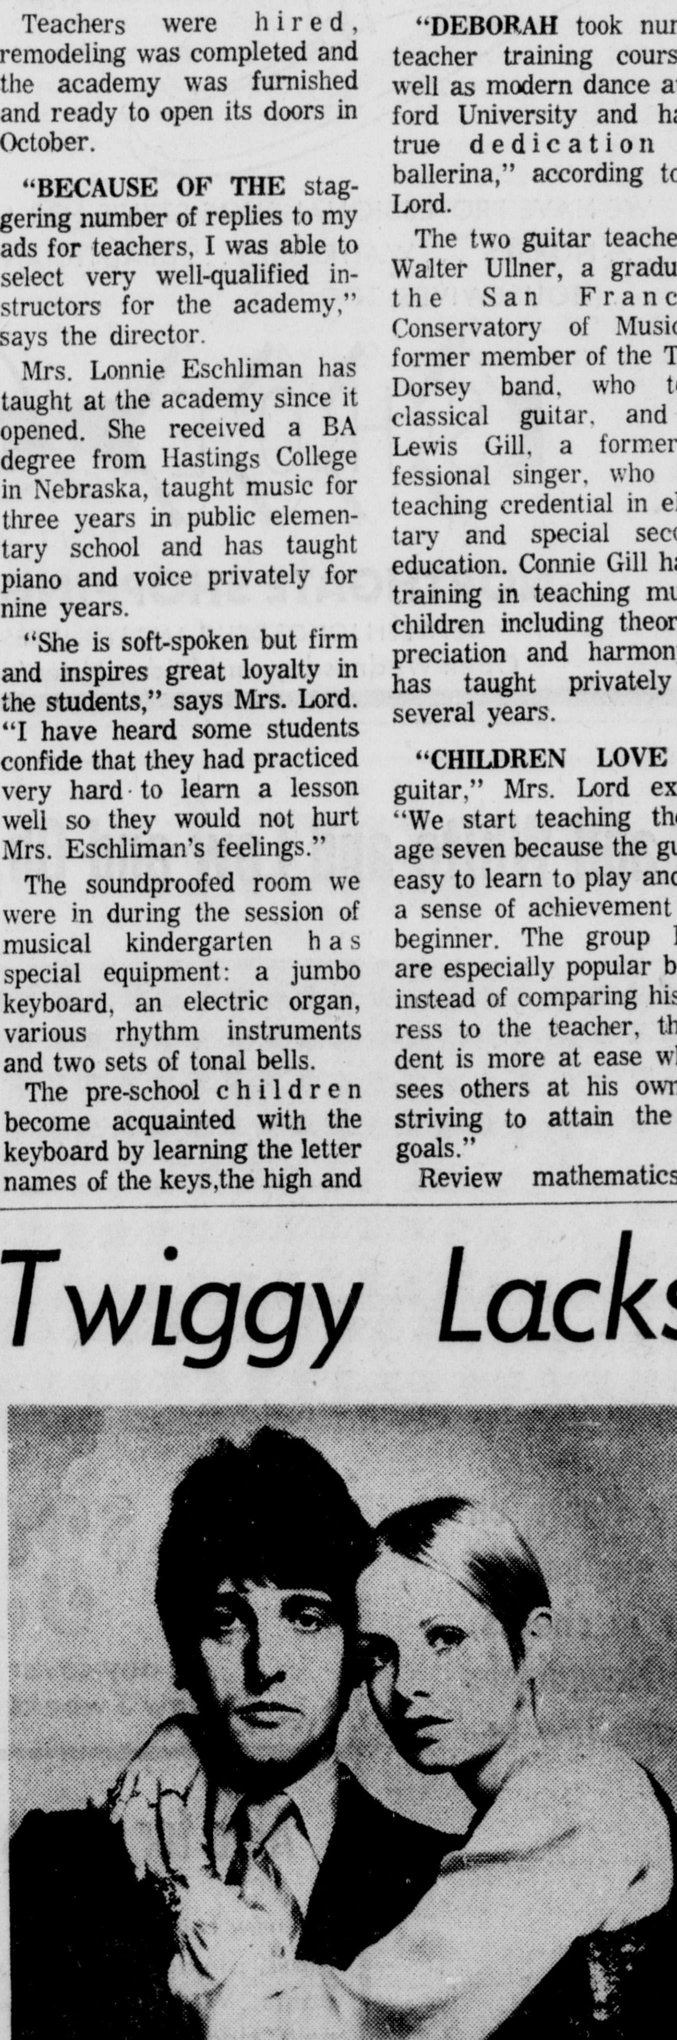
MAYA BAJEMA shows her teacher, Mrs. Lonnie Eschliman, the progress she has made on the electric organ. The pre-school children attend musical kindergarten once a week for two hours and instruction includes learning the letter names of the keys, the high and low registers, a five finger legato in each hand and simple rote pieces on the piano and organ.

Review mathematics was taught last year by Lonnie Eschliman for fourth through eighth grade students.

"We have not begun the math class yet this year," Mrs. Lord says, "because at the beginning of the school term no one had problems and has fallen behind the class. We will start it in a few week."

By nature shy and retiring, June Lord becomes a human dynamo when pursuing a project. Watching the way she works with children makes one wonder if his own children would listen if he spoke that softly and sweetly to them.

Twiggy Lacks Cooking Skill



TWIGGY WITH JUSTIN

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—When she gets around to marrying, Twiggy reckons she'll make a terrible wife.

"I don't want to get married yet. I think I'm too young," said the 18-year-old Cockney girl whose face and reedy figure have made her known the world around. "I don't see myself getting married till I'm 24 or 25. Then I'll want to have children, but I'm lazy and I can't cook.

"I'll be a terrible wife. I would hate to become a housewife and not go out."

For all her dislike of domesticity, she knows who her husband is going to be—Justin de Villeneuve, her 28-year-old manager, whose first marriage has just been dissolved on grounds of his desertion in 1964, some months before he met Twiggy as a schoolgirl.

"Twiggy and I have always been unofficially engaged," he said in a joint interview with UPI. "We eventually will get married. There's no question of that."

Twiggy glanced down at her hands, with a ring on just about every finger. "But I've got so many, I haven't any room," she said.

"We're very happy with the way we carry on," said De Villeneuve, who is called Justin just as Twiggy is called Twiggy, not by her real name of Leslie Hornby.

They are millionaires and very much of a pair. He does all the fashion photographs of Twiggy now and they pick and choose what they do.

Although Twiggy hates to cook, she loves to sew. The extraordinary thing is that with the fashion world at her feet, she makes many of her own

Mrs. Spiro Agnew Would Rather Cook Up Kettle Of Spaghetti

By JANET STAIHAR

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The spirit Judy Agnew takes into the social whirl of Washington, D.C., is one of simplicity, devotion to home life and a fierce desire to shun the limelight.

The 5-foot-4 brown-eyed brunette would rather cook up a kettle of spaghetti or cuddle her baby granddaughter than court publicity.

She hopes to seek the advice of the president-elect's wife, Pat Nixon, on several matters.

"We haven't been house-hunting yet. I want to talk with Mrs. Nixon and see what she suggests. She's been through this before.

"I'm also a little curious what the role of the wife of the vice president will be. Maybe she can tell me."

REMINDED THAT MRS. Nixon already had chosen her inaugural gown, Mrs. Agnew says she has not shopped for one yet.

As she and her husband stumped 51,000 miles, Mrs. Agnew had to forego reading and the theater which she enjoys so much.

A perpetual dieter, Mrs. Agnew often lunches on sliced chicken sandwiches and runs up and down the Maryland governor's mansion's spiral staircase to keep her weight down to 145 pounds.

A SIZE 12, Mrs. Agnew favors pastel knits "because they travel so well," and buys them at local stores.

A Baltimore city girl, she was born Elinor Judefind on April 2, 1921, to the late Dr. W. Lee Judefind, a chemist and vice president of the Davidson Chemical Co., of Baltimore. Her mother resides in suburban Baltimore.

It was at the Maryland Casualty Co., a Baltimore insurance firm, that she met Agnew. She was a secretary and he was employed during the days while attending a night law school.

THEY LIVED IN the same neighborhood and attended Forest Park High School, but she was graduated in 1940 and he three years before that.

They were married on May 27, 1942 and have four children — Pamela, a 25-year-old social studies teacher who is engaged; Susan, 20, a secretary, Kimberley, 12, and James Randy, 22, the father of year-old Michelle Ann.

LONDON (UPI)—When she gets around to marrying, Twiggy reckons she'll make a terrible wife.

"I don't want to get married yet. I think I'm too young," said the 18-year-old Cockney girl whose face and reedy figure have made her known the world around. "I don't see myself getting married till I'm 24 or 25. Then I'll want to have children, but I'm lazy and I can't cook.

"I'll be a terrible wife. I would hate to become a housewife and not go out."

For all her dislike of domesticity, she knows who her husband is going to be—Justin de Villeneuve, her 28-year-old manager, whose first marriage has just been dissolved on grounds of his desertion in 1964, some months before he met Twiggy as a schoolgirl.

"Twiggy and I have always been unofficially engaged," he said in a joint interview with UPI. "We eventually will get married. There's no question of that."

Twiggy glanced down at her hands, with a ring on just about every finger. "But I've got so many, I haven't any room," she said.

"We're very happy with the way we carry on," said De Villeneuve, who is called Justin just as Twiggy is called Twiggy, not by her real name of Leslie Hornby.

They are millionaires and very much of a pair. He does all the fashion photographs of Twiggy now and they pick and choose what they do.

Although Twiggy hates to cook, she loves to sew. The extraordinary thing is that with the fashion world at her feet, she makes many of her own

Girl Wins Prize And Loses Job Bringing Her Disappointment

DEAR HELEN:

You aren't always lucky when you win.

A local store put on a contest, with two weeks in Hawaii as first prize. Everybody in our office entered, just for kicks. Including the boss, except he doesn't do anything "just for kicks."

Wonderful surprise: I won! They telephoned the news and asked me to be at our television station next day to receive my prize. The other office girls were as thrilled as I was. But when I asked my boss for an hour off to be on TV, he said, with that terribly polite smile of his, "Sure, and on the way out, pick up your check. You're through!"

I couldn't believe it, as I'm a good worker with a good record and never asked time off before, though I often gave overtime.

He coldly explained that I'd not only expect this hour, but two weeks for the trip, so I'd be worthless to the company. (I would have saved it for my vacation.)

This was my first job and now I won's get a recommendation. I'll probably have to spend my Hawaii money on rent and food while I hunt for work.

Or should I stop worrying and go anyway? — FIRED SECRETARY

DEAR FIRED:

Choose Hawaii! You'll find work when you return, especially if word circulates on why you were fired — and it will.

Your ex-boss deserves a poison ivy lei and a fistful of poi in the face. May all his secretaries be fat and dumb! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You are a rat! My life was made until my mother read the letter from "Reaching For The Paddle."

I am 14 and was able to do anything I wanted. I never had to do chores or clean up my messy room. I had my parents trained so I didn't do anything, and was never punished. I even chiseled money from them for cigarettes.

The day my mother read your answer: "Don't just reach for the paddle, use it!" she changed. She told me to clean up my room. I sassed her. She said, "You've got an hour." I laughed merrily.

Now I am not laughing as I have a very sore behind and a big notice posted in my room about what I have to do or expect "no more privileges." I think my mother actually means it!

Only a finky anti-teen-ager would tell a mother she should spank a young lady! Please immediately take it back, as I hate housecleaning, and besides who has time for that junk? — SALLY

DEAR SALLY:

You'll have time for it, Sweetie, or else you'll be spending lots of time in a messy room.

I agree, young ladies shouldn't be spanked, but when a 14-year-old comes on like age-six, she should be treated accordingly. So glad your mother finally agrees with me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My mother cured my messy roomitis by inviting company to see the house, including my room. I got no new clothes, not even a pair of nylons. My father stopped my allowance, giving me some dumb excuse which I didn't believe. I got the point real soon. Now, after about three months, I'm quite neat. And my folks didn't nag once. They just acted.

If a girl is a real stinker, she needs an unexpected spanking to catch her up. But if she's just careless, as I was, she'll shape up when she is quitely — DEPRIVED

"I made this," she said, pointing at her brown mini dress with bloused sleeves and low u-neck hung with chain necklaces. "I've always loved sewing. I get kind of bursts of it. I won't do anything for months and then I make three outfits. I've got a lovely sewing machine which Justin gave me on my last birthday."

She has grown up as well, which is one of the reasons why Justin says he does all the fashion photographs of her.

"Neither Twiggy nor I liked the pictures that were taken at the old sessions. All the photographers see her as a teen-age cookie. I see her as more sophisticated, more mature," he said.

"We don't have to make all these personal appearances any more," he said, though they are going to the United States in October for promotions in Boston, Washington, New York and Miami.

"We have sort of semiretired. If you take the top 20 models in the world, Twiggy could buy them out with all the money we've made. I'm not being nasty to them and we're not boasting, but it's quite true. Now we're doing what we want, doing nice things."

A fashion range bearing Twiggy's name sells now in 40 countries, so she can afford not to bother any longer with modeling for the Paris collections.

"I just hate Paris," said Justin. "The whole thing is pathetic. The clothes are so terrible that Twiggy does not want to wear them."

Twiggy said, "It's just a justle. It's just like doing a catalogue. You're just recording what they make. You stay up all night and then the clothes don't fit."

Twiggy has time now to start new interests, like driving. She had just come back in bubbling form from her first lesson.

"I love it. It's great," she said.

She is getting a mini-car with automatic transmission. Justin, who has a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce, cautiously said he would see how she got on before venturing to become her passenger.

Less Multiple Birth Risk With New Pill

By BARBARA J. CULLITON
Science Service

WASHINGTON — Fertility drugs enable some childless couples to have a baby. Often, as is the case with Mrs. Norman Thorns, who gave birth to sextuplets in Birmingham, England, women taking these drugs have several babies.

Mrs. Thorns took gonadotrophins — powerful sex hormones that stimulate the release of ripe eggs from the ovaries. In the United States a drug called Perganol contains these hormones, but is still experimental because it carries such a high risk of multiple births. However, another less potent fertility drug, called Clomid, last year won Food and Drug Administration approval for commercial sale. In addition to inducing fertility, doctors suggest it may also offer women practicing the rhythm method an effective way of controlling ovulation — and conception.

Normally, the pituitary gland releases small amounts of gonadotrophins, and each month a single egg travels from the ovary to the uterus where it can be fertilized by sperm. It is a matter of delicate balance. If the pituitary fails to release gonadotrophins at the right time and in the right amount, ovulation does not occur.

Some cases of infertility can be attributed to the fact that the woman's hormone balance is off. Fertility drugs are potentially helpful only to women who are sterile for this reason. Scientists estimate that only 10 to 15 per cent of barren marriages fall into this category, and even within it, fertility drugs work less than 50 per cent of the time.

The problem with Perganol is knowing how much to administer. Although a non-ovulating woman is not producing enough gonadotrophins on her own, she may be producing some. Then, if she receives too much of the drug, her ovaries will be, in effect, overstimulated and will release several eggs.

The hormones in Perganol come from post-menopausal women who continue to produce gonadotrophins even though they no longer ovulate. The hormones are then excreted in urine.

Clomid, a less risky synthetic compound, is not as likely to trigger multiple births. Known chemically as clomiphene citrate, it works through the pituitary gland instead of acting directly on the ovaries. It attempts to mimic nature's delicate balance by synchronizing the pituitary's gonadotrophin production with other biochemical events. In other words, Clomid reminds the pituitary to release the hormones in proper fashion, setting off a natural reaction.

Jennifer Leaves Hospital For Home And Normal Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Four-year-old Jennifer Sawyer was only 13 months old when one of her kidneys was removed because of a malignancy, a rare condition called Wilm's tumor.

Two years later, the remaining kidney was found to be cancerous; radiation and chemotherapy did not stop the growth and Jennifer's condition worsened.

Her pediatrician, Dr. Floyd Denny, chief of pediatrics at the University of North Carolina's Memorial Hospital, then told the Sawyers that two other young children—also victims of Wilm's tumor — had been given new kidneys at the University of California's San Francisco Medical Center and were doing well.

Jennifer and her mother came to San Francisco and the girl became the 22nd child under 17 to receive a kidney at the Medical Center.

Before going home, Mrs. Sawyer said, "We will miss the friends we found here, but we're eager to show Jennifer's daddy how much she has improved. It won't be long until she'll be playing tag with her poodle, riding her tricycle and climbing trees."

ART REVIEW

Versatility Hurts Rather Than Helps

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Creative people often work in several of the arts finding satisfaction in each with each field bringing fresh concepts to the others. It is rare, however, that the level of accomplishment in all areas is equal. And the danger lurks, that without concentrating on any one of them, the time needed to dig deeply into problems, to solve them and to reach beyond just isn't there and the level of achievement is lowered.

Etel Adnan is a published poet, associate professor of French and humanities at Dominican College and an artist. The paintings, tapestries, enamels and watercolors she shows this month at the Unitarian Church, 240 Channing Way in San Rafael, suffer rather than benefit from her versatility.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

Miss Adnan's paintings are a blocky building of shapes and rough-edged bands into abstract compositions. But she is very self-conscious about putting the ingredients into a workable whole.

Her problems with structure preclude her working out the shortcomings which could be fixed most easily — the scrambled color, the unfinished look and the monotony of overall, squarish, knife-stroked textures. In short, the paintings have a long way to go.

One of her tapestries, a small color group within a large natural-toned area, has the same static look. The other, a boldly colored overlay of shapes and lines, has more of the interest felt in her bright, fluid enamels.

WATERCOLORS BEST

Of all her work, Miss Adnan's watercolors are most effective. They are unreserved with an adventurous use of detail and this same loose technique illustrates her long, unfolding poem, "Funeral March for the First Cosmonaut."

Obviously, Miss Adnan has a varied creative sense which spreads itself widely between several arts and within the visual arts as well. Witnessing the unevenness of the results, she might do well to concentrate more on a few of them. By exhibiting only the most fully realized, she would provide a more satisfying experience for those who will share them.

Westminster Organist To Give Concert

Martin Neary, organist and master of choristers at St. Westminster, London, will make his first American appearance in a public recital on Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

St. Margaret's is the parish church of the House of Commons, and many of its parishioners are members of Parliament.

A graduate of Cambridge University with a master of arts degree, Neary is a fellow of the Royal College of Organists and was a prize winner at the International Organ Festival at St. Albans in 1963.

In the same year he was awarded a scholarship by the Boston Symphony to study conducting. The year he was a diploma winner at the International Bach Competition in Leipzig. He has given many recitals in England and on the Continent.

Receiving its American premiere in this concert will be "Et Resurrexit" by the contemporary English composer Kenneth Leighton.

Works by J.S. Bach to be performed are Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C; Chorale Prelude on "Wenn Wir in Hochsten Nothen Sein," and Sonato No. 4 in E Minor.

Other numbers on the program will be three pieces by John Bull: "Why Ask You?," "English Toy," and "Dutch Dance" and "A Sad Pavane for These Distracted Times" by Thomas Eakins.

DRAMA REVIEW

ACT's 'Crucible' Is Total Theater

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Each time I see "The Crucible" I am become more convinced that it is one of the truly great dramatic works of the 20th Century. Even bad productions bear this out, and after seeing one with the scintillating brilliance of the current one by American Conservatory Theater, there is no question but that Arthur Miller's work deserves the label of "classic."

ACT is alternating the witch-hunt drama with "Hamlet" at the Geary Theater in a special daily matinee series for high school audiences, with regular performances on Friday and Saturday nights until the scheduled 1968-69 season opens with George Fedeau's "A Flea In Her Ear."

Although, as director Allen Fletcher points out, Miller's play was dismissed by many in its first production as a political tract because of the obcious parallels with the Senate McCarthy hearings, time shows that Miller has created characters and situations which are far more than Senate witch-hunts set in Puritan times.

From John Proctor, who must choose whether to gain his life by lying or die for insisting on truth, to Abigail Williams, who bears false witness to revenge Proctor's rejection of her, each character in the play is clearly delineated, logically motivated, and forced to the tragic conclusion by his or her fallibilities.

Added to this is the terrifying certainty that the human weaknesses which create the hysteria of "The Crucible" live on, and that indictment by accusation and conviction by innudendo can happen — and does — in any age and any place.

I liked ACT's "Crucible" last season with some minor reservations on Ramon Bieri's Proctor. Yesterday I watched his understudy play the role for the first time, with great success.

Marin audiences may remember Herman Poppe for his appearances with Marin Shakespeare Festival's 1967 season. As John Proctor, Poppe gives a crisp driving performance that leaves one breathless. He plays quietly when it is demanded and rises to roaring pitches of fury as he is gradually enmeshed in the witch-hunters' trap. His exit to the gallows is agonizing but never maudlin. My one complaint, and this falls upon Fletcher and co-director William Ball, is that Proctor is allowed to stump about with a broken knee in the prison scene until one wishes that he would come to rest for just a moent at least.

The reactions of a house full of high school age boys and girls is intriguing. The single burst of spontaneous applause yesterday came on the line from Tituba, the black woman: "In Barbados the devil be a pleasure man!" But the youngsters were attentive, cheered at the end, and all waited eagerly for the discussion period following the show. (which my schedule did not allow me to attend, I regret to say).

"The Crucile" is as close to total theater as we're likely to find in a long while. See it.

A dance using the theme "Jungle Fever," will be held at 9 p.m. on Nov. 16 in the student center of Redwood High School in Larkspur.

Widow Is Found Guilty Of Fraud

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — An attractive Atherton widow has been convicted of forgery and fraud in connection with claims she filed in a court suit to get her late husbands estate.

Mrs. Ina Funke Boales, 42, was convicted last night by a jury of six men and six women who deliberated only three hours after a 15-day trial in San Mateo County Superior Court.

Jury foreman Frederick Heinecke said the evidence was "overwhelming."

Judge Louis B. Dematteis set sentencing for Nov. 20.

Her husband, Siegfried Funke, a manufacturer who court records show was not wealthy, died in 1963, leaving no will. They had been married two years.

In a court contest with Funke's previous wife, Mrs. Boales, who retained the last name of her previous husband, was awarded the house but also asked for $76,735 from any other assets he might have had.

She claimed Funke had signed over promissory notes and a trust deed to her.

But criminologist Lowell Bradford testified that Funke's signature on some of the notes appeared to be false, and further testimony contended that one of the eight promissory notes involved, date two years before Funke died, was on a form printed after his death.

Mrs. Boales was convicted on 23 counts of perjury and forgery, for which she was indicted by a grand jury, and four counts of insurance fraud in connection with a reported theft of furs and jewelry.

Special Session

A special meeting of the Bolinas Fire Protection District board has been called for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Bolinas Fire Station to prepare an application to the Marin County Planning Commission requesting the rezoning of property on Mesa Road next to the Sherman Smith Ranch to allow the building of a firehouse.

Novato Cuts Manager List To 20 Persons

The Novato City Council in a closed meeting last night, screened applications for the city manager's position from the original 54 down to 20, according to Mayor Harley McAskill.

"This was done by eliminating those who were already making more than our top of $20,000, those who lacked the experience, or were apparently looking for retirement," MacAskill siid.

A committee composed of Councilmen J. Wayne Womack, Douglas M. Merrill and M. E. (Babe) Silva, will hold another closed meeting at 8:30 a.m., Saturday to arrange the final 20 into two groups of 10 each. Eleven of these will then be interviewed on Nov. 16 and 23, McAskill said.

Immediately following the League of California Cities meeting in Los Angeles, council members interviewed nine of the applicants from that area, McAskill said.

Garage Worker Is Found Slain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A night garage attendant in the Golden Gateway was shot to death last night by two gunmen, who took about $150 from his cash drawer.

Police identified the victim as Ronald Dehlinger, Pacifica, who would have been 22 next week. The shooting occurred less than an hour before his quitting time.

Authorities said Dehlinger, who apparently offered no resistance, was killed by one shot as he stood behind the counter in the Sacramento Street garage.

Ross, Kentfield Trustees Eye Philosophies, Merger

Possible unification of the Kentfield and Ross school districts was discussed last night at a joint meeting of the district boards, but no conclusions were reached.

Anthony G. Bacich, superintendent of the Kentfield district, said the main topic was the educational philosophy of each district and how applied.

He said the central question was whether a unified district would follow the Ross district approach of keeping the eight grades self-contained with one teacher to a room, or the Kentfield district practice of permitting students to engage in nongraded classes in mathematics, the language arts, and reading.

He said no judgment was passed on which system is more effective.

The Ross trustees then indicated they wished to discuss the possible unification among themselves further and schedule another joint meeting later.

The merger plan was first discussed last summer. Advantages mentioned include a wider tax base and larger number of junior high age students, making a broader curriculum possible.

The meeting was in the Adaline E. Kent School library.

Jury Acquits Man In Bad Check Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday acquitted Jessie Thomas, 42, of Oakland, of a bad check charge after deliberating only two hours.

Thomas had been accused of possessing a forged check with intent to defraud another person.

Bandit's Spelling Bad, But Works

OAKLAND (UPI)—A Bank of America branch was held up yesterday by a bandit who escaped with $914 despite his poor spelling.

"All the money in your drawer. Let's make this nice. I don't want to shoo. Put it right here," the bandit's note advised teller Sabina Frazier.

The teller assumed the bandit meant "shoot" instead of "shoo" since he apeared to have a gun in his pocket. She gave him the money.

Friends Call Werber Major Drug Importer

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Show business entrepreneur, Frank N. Werber of Sausalito, was described as a major importer and wholesaler of marijuana in a federal court filing yesterday.

The charges were made by Weber's codefendents Stanley Mulligan, 35, and Charles P. Barrett, 45, who asked that they be tried separately.

All three are charged in federal court with conspiracy to transport marijuana into the United States and Werber is also charged with transporting and concealing marijuana. Werber was to be arraigned today.

Mulligan and Barrett, owners of Latitude 38 in Sausalito, contended that to be tried with Werber would be grossly prejudicial to them. They said both have cooperated fully with the United States Government. Their motion will be heard Wednesday.

The three were arrested Oct. 14 at Werber's Richardson Bay mansion after customs agents followed Mulligan and Barrett and 258 pounds of marijuana to the plush home .

Mulligan and Barrett told customs agents, according to a federal court affidavit, that Werber contracted with them for delivery of the marijuana.

Werber, former manager of the Kingston trio, and Judith Ann Sloper, 30, who lives with him at 4 DeSilva Island, have been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury for allegedly growing and possessing marijuana.

Bryce Staples Wilson, a Kentfield writer, and Frank J. Mathison, a San Anselmo drummer, also arrested at Werber's home, was indicted for alleged possession of marijuana for sale.

Commissioners also named Ann O'Hanlon and Priscilla Dillingham as a committee of two to study Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission recommendations for the use of city parks and public buildings.

A special meeting was set for 8 p.m. Thursday at the city hall annex with Harvey E. Bragdon, planning director, to discuss city planning problems and to hear the subcommittee report on park use recommendations.

Coed Held On Kidnap After Campus Uproar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 18-year-old San Fernando Valley State College coed has been arrested on suspicion of helping seize a campus building and holding 34 persons hostage at knifepoint for more than four hours. (See also story on page 1.)

Marita Elaine Peet was arrested as she left class Wednesday, police said, and was booked on suspicion of kidnaping. She was being held at Van Nuys jail.

The district attorney's office filed criminal complaints against 11 students yesterday and police said more complaints are being readied. Meanwhile, college officials said 17 students would be suspended or disciplined.

Some of the hostages, including college officials, were forced into the administration building. There were reports students drew knives and sprayed some hostages with fire extinguishers.

The disturbance was broken up when college administrators met with student leaders and reportedly agreed to changes in athletic policies, admission of Negro students and adding Negro studies to the curriculum.

But the agreement was disavowed the next day by college officials who said the agreement had been made under duress.

Student Sit-Ins, AWOL GI Jailed In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 400 police moved into the Finley Student Center at City College of New York today and seized scores of antiwar sit-ins and a 19-year-old AWOL soldier they had been giving "sanctuary."

Police Chief Inspector Sanford D. Garelik said the youths were given a chance to leave first but refused. He said the students were generally "calm and orderly" during the arrests.

Police said at least 135 were taken to police stations around Manhattan for booking on charges ranging from criminal trespass to disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

The students had been living at the center in an effort to prevent the arrest of Pvt. William Brakefield, who has been AWOL from Fort Devens, Mass., for 33 days. He sought sanctuary at the college a week ago.

Police said Brakefield, 19, of Van Nuys, Calif., was charged with criminal trespass and resisting arrest and was being held for federal authorities.

Yesterday about 200 of the antiwar students, and Brakefield demonstrated for about 45 minutes on the lobby floor of the administration building on the Weshington Height' campus.

Brakefield was not in uniform at the demonstration where he burned what he said was his draft card in front of the building. The students were also protesting the Reserve Officer Training Corps Program at the college.

Second Russ Recalled In Spy Uproar

LONDON (AP) — A second Soviet diplomat has been recalled to Moscow, following disclosure that a spy was working from the diplomatic cover of the Soviet Embassy here, it was learned today.

Well-informed sources said at the same time the British government is considering restrictions on the size of the 79-man Soviet Embassy, which now has nearly twice as many diplomats as the British Embassy in Moscow.

Col. Valentin Elistratov, an assistant air attache at the Soviet Embassy, was the second Russian with diplomatic status to be quickly recalled in recent weeks.

The spy trial identified Alexander Ivanovich Borisenko, first secretary in the cultural department of the embassy here, as a spy.

The court sentenced Douglas Britten, a Royal Air Force technician later recruited by Borisenko, to 21 years in prison for spying. Borisenko left London for Moscow Sept. 20, six days after Britten made his first appearance in court.

Neighbors in the block of apartments where both Russians lived said both left unexpectedly at about the same time.

"They hardly gave us any notice at all," a spokesman for the landlord said.

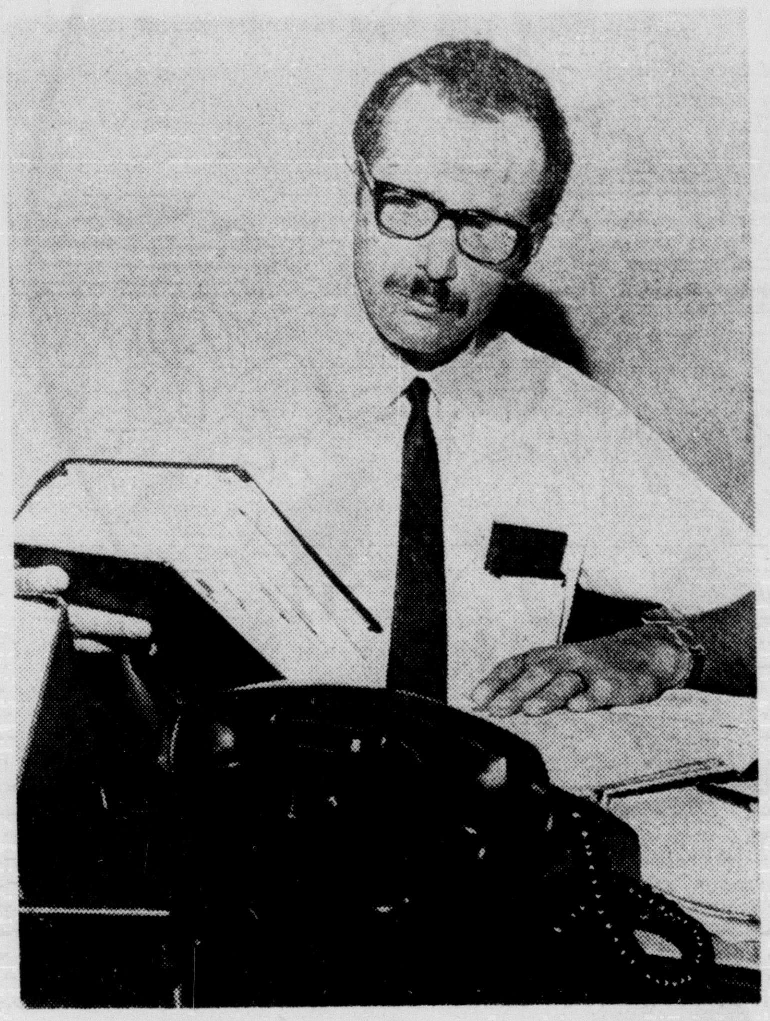
'JUSTICE FOR ALL'

New Legal Assistance Program For The Poor

By JOANNE GRANT



LEGAL SERVICES — Marin's new Legal Services Program attorney, James Kovacs, checks legal points of cases in his office in the Albert Building in San Rafael. His sole concern about the Marin program is that one attorney won't be sufficient to meet the demand. (Independent-Journal photo)

A system of providing "justice for all" — already operating successfully across the nation — has come to Marin.

Under a $20,000 federal grant, received more than two years after $80,000 was asked, Marin's poor are assured of an equal chance at justice in civil cases, at least until next March, when the grant expires.

The Legal Services Program, which opened offices here Oct. 21, is funded by the War on Poverty, but is not a government agency as such.

The $20,000, a six-month budget, includes $6,725 for an attorney, $2,004 for Mrs. Donna Iglehart, part-time receptionist who had been working with the Legal Aid Society program, $3,300 for a secretary and $1,275 for a community worker, neither of whom have been hired.

The original request for $80,000 included funds for three attorneys and supporting services.

Marin's program is run by the Legal Aid Society, a private corporation. Program directors are 10 members of the Marin County Bar Association, a judge, seven representatives of the poor and three of community groups.

The Legal Aid Scoiety has been operating a similiar program to handle emergencies. An office has been staffed by an attorney four hours a week through private donations and assistance from the United Bay Area Crusade.

The new program will handle the same types of cases, but will be able to take care of many more. In addition, it will be able to take more time consuming cases, including actions against public agencies and cases which require extensive investigation.

Attorney James Kovacs, 35, assistant director of the Legal Services Program in Ventura County for the past two years, has been named to operate the program.

Its sole purpose is to help the persons who cannot afford to pay an attorney, persons who requently see the law as a mysterious, theatening enemy, Kovacs said in an interview in his office in Room 210 of the Albert Building, 1010 B Street, San Rafael.

Kovacs said these people have many of the same problems as persons who are better off financially. But the lack of money magnifies the problems — "it becomes a matter of life or death," he said.

Persons are eligible for free legal help according to financial need, but there are no rigid rules. Each case is judged individually according to Kovacs.

The Legal Services Program has helped the poor even when it involves suing the government.

Kovacs said a major task is challenging laws believed unconstitutional.

He said the practice is no different from that of private attorneys who have long been challenging laws for clients.

"The poor have never had anyone to raise points in this way and there are so many that can be raised," he explained.

For example, it was the Legal Services Program which successfully tackled the residency requirement imposed as a qualification for welfare benefits.

The poor went to Legal Services Program attorneys 291,000 times last year, according to the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C. Of those complaints, 23,000 were against the government at some level.

It doesn't seem to bother the government as a whole, but some individuals, including Gov. Ronald Reagan, have complained — unsuccessfully, in the case of the governor, who said it wasn't right for the government to pay lawyers to sue the government.

The program was recognized in the report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, which said legal services had made a good beginning in providing legal assistance to the poor. The commission called for expanding the program.

The landmark cases of legal services have received the most attention, but the day-to-day divorce cases, debt and consumer problems, welfare inequities and others make up the bulk of the work, Kovacs said.

The number of divorce cases has surprised almost everyone connected with the program, he said. People come in who have been separated 10 or 15 years but have never been able to afford a divorce, he said.

In Ventura County, he said, a number of private attorneys cooperated in these cases and he is hoping to start a similar program here.

Whenever possible, persons wanting divorces are referred to marriage counselors, Kovacs said. "It's not really the objective of the War on Poverty to dissolve marriages."

Legal Services Program attorneys have also attacked landlords charging excessive rents to the poor; demanded an investigation of reportedly unfair utility rates in poor areas; uncovered frauds; and helped its clients in dozens of other areas.

Kovacs, hoping to make the Marin program as effective as possible, said he plans to have office hours in other parts of the county eventually. He said several Marin lawyers have volunteered to assist with the program.

Kovacs' chief concern is that the program will not be adequate to take care of present needs, even though he is not yet sure what the needs will be.

He compared it to Ventura County which has a population of about 300,000 and four attorneys on the legal services staff. Marin, two-thirds as large, has only one attorney.

Kovacs has lived in California since he was seven, coming here from his native Hungary. He received his law degree from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1961 and was admitted to practice in January 1962.

He spent two years in the Ventura County district attorney's office before going into private practice. He joined the Legal Services Program in 1966.

His wife and children, Danny, 6, Cindy, 8, and a 16-year-old foster daughter will move to Tamalpais Valley after their Ventura County home is sold, Kovacs said.

No Notice On Waldo Point Plan Talk Prompts Bianchi To Reply

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the developers of a proposed convention- marina project at Waldo Point, charged Marin County supervisors with a "breach of fairness" in discussing the matter Tuesday without notifying the developers or landowners.

Sausalito Associates and Tom E. Nowell Jr., property owner, are planning to fill 17 acres of tidelands in Richardson Bay for a $25 million convention-hotel-marina facilities.

During a discussion of the Saucelito Canal dredging on Tuesday, Supervisor Peter H. Behr declared he had changed his mind about the Nowell project and would vote against it when it came before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission of which he is a member. Supervisor Thomas T. Storer said he, too, had changed his mind.

"Why was there no advance notice that your board was about to consider this matter again?" asked Bianchi in a letter to the supervisors this morning ."How did the item happen to get on the agenda without the property owners even being notified?

"Gentlemen, I have the highest confidence in your board . . . nevertheless, I am serious in asking how this unfortunate breach of common fairness came about —and this time, I would like to be there when you supply the answers. You might even allow us to express our views before you act."

SIX COMMUNIST VOTES

McCarthy Leads Ballot Write-Ins

Marin voters cast 684 write-in ballots for president Tuesday, 603 of them for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Election workers counted write-ins only for six persidential candidates who had filed slates of electors. No other candidates met the write-in requirement of declaring his candidacy and paying the filing fee for the office.

Comedian Dick Gregory drew 63 write-in votes. Gregory was the Peace and Freedom Party candidate in some other states, but was supported in California by the Committee for the Write-In Vote for Dick Gregory.

Henning A. Blomen, Socialist Labor Party candidate, received 12 write-in votes, and Charlene Mitchell, the Communist Party candidate, received 6 votes.

No votes were recorded for the other two eligible write-in candidates, Kent M. Soeters (Berkeley Defense Group) and E. Harold Munn Sr. (Prohibition National Committee).

No write-ins were counted for Eldridge Cleaver, Peace and Freedom Party candidate who was ruled off the California ballot because he is too young to serve. His vice presidential candidate, Peggy Terry, who was still on the ballot, drew 566 votes.

Marin Vote Count 17th To Finish

Marin County was the 17th of California's 58 counties to report complete election returns early yesterday, the head of the county's election department, Peter C. Meyer, reported today.

In the June primary election, Marin was 41st.

Tuesday's general election was the first run by Meyer.

Meyer said he was told Marin's ranking by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. It was the best Marin had done in recent memory.

Marin reported its final results to Jordan's office at 1:08 a.m. yesterday, compared to 4:05 a.m. the morning after the June election.

Among counties using the International Business Machine Co.'s Votomatic system, Marin was the third county to report final returns, Meyer said.

Marin probably would have been the first county in the state to report its returns if an IBM counter had not broken down for more than an hour, Meyer noted. The cause of the failure was a broken wire brush that counts ballots.

Closed Pay Negotiating Talks Seen

When the county begins negotiating with county employees for next year's salaries and fringe benefits, the county's negotiating team will meet on occasion in closed session with the county supervisors to get instructions, County Administrator Alan Bruce announced today.

The county negotiators are County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Personnel Director Robert D. Elliott, and the county administrator.

Bruce said a new state law, Senate Bill 592, permits a legislative body to meet with its representatives (the county negotiating team) in private for instructions on what the negotiating team may present to the Marin County Employees Association.

The closed meeting with the supervisors will be used sparingly, said Bruce. He explained that when supervisors engage in direct bargaining with employees, the meeting will be open.

Zucker Telegram Meant For Baar

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said yesterday that his demand for retraction of statements made by successful supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Baar was aimed at Baar and not the Independent-Journal.

Baar called Zucker incompetent and said he would recommend a new planning director if elected. He made the remarks during a campaign appearance on KTIM's Sounding Board program, which was reported in the I-J.

Yesterday Zucker explained that the telegram he sent the I-J demanding a retraction should have been marked "copy," by Western Union as it was a replica of a message sent to Baar.

Enchanted Knolls Board Ousted

Members of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association, rebelling against directors' endorsement of the controversial proposal for development of the Enchanted Knolls Ridge, last night removed the board from office and named new officers.

The recall of the seven-man board on a 15-8 vote was precipitated by the board's public support of a density increase from five to eight units per acre for the 76 undeveloped acres on the ridge.

The increase, requested by developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal, is now under study by the Mill Valley City Council and planning commission. More than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents turned out Monday night to oppose the density increase at a council hearing.

The Ad Hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls, led by Byron Reynolds and Joseph Mendel, led the battle to remove the board.

Dr. Willard H. Pennell, ousted board president, said he and other directors has been asked to rescind their endorsement of the higher density and, when they refused, to resign.

Irma Barbu, removed as board secretary, said she and other directors had made the decision to support the density proposal after lengthy study and that they believed they should stand by their position.

However, she noted, "We were in the minority and as such, the dissident members certainly had the right to remove us."

The vote to remove the board came after a lengthy discussion on the legal quorum for a vote, Mrs. Barbu said.

She said that the challenging group presented a legal affidavit stating that in 1959 the bylaws were changed to require a 10 per cent quorum rather than 50 per cent as previously required.

Twenty-five voting members attended last night's meeting. There are 78 active members in the association.

New officers are Mendel as president; George Monardo, vice president; Clifford E. Hanssen, treasurer; Meta Spirz, secretary, and William H. Thomson, . D. Grandle and Fred W. Heide, directors.

After the election, Reynolds announced that he and Mendel were dissolving the ad hoc committee "Because, we believe, the board will now adequately represent our viewpoint."

Whenever possible, persons wanting divorces are referred to marriage counselors, Kovacs said. "It's not really the objective of the War on Poverty to dissolve marriages."

Legal Services Program attorneys have also attacked landlords charging excessive rents to the poor; demanded an investigation of reportedly unfair utility rates in poor areas; uncovered frauds; and helped its clients in dozens of other areas.

Kovacs, hoping to make the Marin program as effective as possible, said he plans to have office hours in other parts of the county eventually. He said several Marin lawyers have volunteered to assist with the program.

Kovacs' chief concern is that the program will not be adequate to take care of present needs, even though he is not yet sure what the needs will be.

He compared it to Ventura County which has a population of about 300,000 and four attorneys on the legal services staff. Marin, two-thirds as large, has only one attorney.

Kovacs has lived in California since he was seven, coming here from his native Hungary. He received his law degree from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1961 and was admitted to practice in January 1962.

He spent two years in the Ventura County district attorney's office before going into private practice. He joined the Legal Services Program in 1966.

His wife and children, Danny, 6, Cindy, 8, and a 16-year-old foster daughter will move to Tamalpais Valley after their Ventura County home is sold, Kovacs said.

No Notice On Waldo Point Plan Talk Prompts Bianchi To Reply

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the developers of a proposed convention- marina project at Waldo Point, charged Marin County supervisors with a "breach of fairness" in discussing the matter Tuesday without notifying the developers or landowners.

Sausalito Associates and Torn E. Nowell Jr., property owner, are planning to fill 17 acres of tidelands in Richardson Bay for a $25 million convention-hotel-marina facilities.

During a discussion of the Saucelito Canal dredging on Tuesday, Supervisor Peter H. Behr declared he had changed his mind about the Nowell project and would vote against it when it came before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission of which he is a member. Supervisor Thomas T. Storer said he, too, had changed his mind.

"Why was there no advance notice that your board was about to consider this matter again?" asked Bianchi in a letter to the supervisors this morning ."How did the item happen to get on the agenda without the property owners even being notified?

"Gentlemen, I have the highest confidence in your board . . . nevertheless, I am serious in asking how this unfortunate breach of common fairness came about —and this time, I would like to be there when you supply the answers. You might even allow us to express our views before you act."

SIX COMMUNIST VOTES

McCarthy Leads Ballot Write-Ins

Marin voters cast 684 write-in ballots for president Tuesday, 603 of them for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Election workers counted write-ins only for six persidential candidates who had filed slates of electors. No other candidates met the write-in requirement of declaring his candidacy and paying the filing fee for the office.

Comedian Dick Gregory drew 63 write-in votes. Gregory was the Peace and Freedom Party candidate in some other states, but was supported in California by the Committee for the Write-In Vote for Dick Gregory.

Henning A. Blomen, Socialist Labor Party candidate, received 12 write-in votes, and Charlene Mitchell, the Communist Party candidate, received 6 votes.

No votes were recorded for the other two eligible write-in candidates, Kent M. Soeters (Berkeley Defense Group) and E. Harold Munn Sr. (Prohibition National Committee).

No write-ins were counted for Eldridge Cleaver, Peace and Freedom Party candidate who was ruled off the California ballot because he is too young to serve. His vice presidential candidate, Peggy Terry, who was still on the ballot, drew 566 votes.

Marin Vote Count 17th To Finish

Marin County was the 17th of California's 58 counties to report complete election returns early yesterday, the head of the county's election department, Peter C. Meyer, reported today.

In the June primary election, Marin was 41st.

Tuesday's general election was the first run by Meyer.

Meyer said he was told Marin's ranking by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. It was the best Marin had done in recent memory.

Marin reported its final results to Jordan's office at 1:08 a.m. yesterday, compared to 4:05 a.m. the morning after the June election.

Among counties using the International Business Machine Co.'s Votomatic system, Marin was the third county to report final returns, Meyer said.

Marin probably would have been the first county in the state to report its returns if an IBM counter had not broken down for more than an hour, Meyer noted. The cause of the failure was a broken wire brush that counts ballots.

Closed Pay Negotiating Talks Seen

When the county begins negotiating with county employees for next year's salaries and fringe benefits, the county's negotiating team will meet on occasion in closed session with the county supervisors to get instructions, County Administrator Alan Bruce announced today.

The county negotiators are County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Personnel Director Robert D. Elliott, and the county administrator.

Bruce said a new state law, Senate Bill 592, permits a legislative body to meet with its representatives (the county negotiating team) in private for instructions on what the negotiating team may present to the Marin County Employees Association.

The closed meeting with the supervisors will be used sparingly, said Bruce. He explained that when supervisors engage in direct bargaining with employees, the meeting will be open.

Zucker Telegram Meant For Baar

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said yesterday that his demand for retraction of statements made by successful supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Baar was aimed at Baar and not the Independent-Journal.

Baar called Zucker incompetent and said he would recommend a new planning director if elected. He made the remarks during a campaign appearance on KTIM's Sounding Board program, which was reported in the I-J.

Yesterday Zucker explained that the telegram he sent the I-J demanding a retraction should have been marked "copy," by Western Union as it was a replica of a message sent to Baar.

Enchanted Knolls Board Ousted

Members of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association, rebelling against directors' endorsement of the controversial proposal for development of the Enchanted Knolls Ridge, last night removed the board from office and named new officers.

The recall of the seven-man board on a 15-8 vote was precipitated by the board's public support of a density increase from five to eight units per acre for the 76 undeveloped acres on the ridge.

The increase, requested by developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal, is now under study by the Mill Valley City Council and planning commission. More than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents turned out Monday night to oppose the density increase at a council hearing.

The Ad Hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls, led by Byron Reynolds and Joseph Mendel, led the battle to remove the board.

Dr. Willard H. Pennell, ousted board president, said he and other directors has been asked to rescind their endorsement of the higher density and, when they refused, to resign.

Irma Barbu, removed as board secretary, said she and other directors had made the decision to support the density proposal after lengthy study and that they believed they should stand by their position.

However, she noted, "We were in the minority and as such, the dissident members certainly had the right to remove us."

The vote to remove the board came after a lengthy discussion on the legal quorum for a vote, Mrs. Barbu said.

She said that the challenging group presented a legal affidavit stating that in 1959 the bylaws were changed to require a 10 per cent quorum rather than 50 per cent as previously required.

Twenty-five voting members attended last night's meeting. There are 78 active members in the association.

After the election, Reynolds announced that he and Mendel were dissolving the ad hoc committee "Because, we believe, the board will now adequately represent our viewpoint."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Joy Of Learning Fate Later Than At The Beginning

There is something to be said for the slam-bang approach to a problem: you learn your fate quickly. If you take your time about guessing the correct play of a king-jack combination you learn your fate later, but with more joy.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. South ruffed and noted that his contract would depend on limiting the spade loss to one trick.

Declarer drew trumps with the ace and queen and led a spade at once. "Have the tooth out!" South declared, and he glared at West ferociously.

West had been glared at before. He calmly played a low spade, and it was all up to South. After a moment of indecision South tried a finesse with dummy's jack. Down one.

COMPASSION

As compassionate bridge players we cannot scoff at a fellow artisan who makes an unlucky guess, but we can snicker at the man who puts himself to the guess and then makes the wrong choice. South should not have tried to solve his spade problem so early in the hand.

Declarer should draw trumps with the ace and ten, after which he leads a club from dummy. East plays low, and South puts up the queen. When West fails to win the trick, South can be sure that East has the ace of clubs. (If West had the ace he could not afford to refuse the first trick for fear that East had the king.)

FINDS ACE

Once South finds out that East has the ace of clubs, it is clear that West has the ace of spades for his opening bid. South can then lead a spade and can confidently put up dummy's king when West plays low. When two aces are missing, you can often locate one ace by first locating the other.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 9 7 5
♥—4
♦—9 7 2
♣—A J 9 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid four spades.

This promises strong trump support, a side singleton or void suit, and not more than nine points in high cards. The idea is to shut the opponents out without getting dangerously high. Partner should beware of trying for a slam unless he has an unusually strong hand.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Joy Of Learning Fate Later Than At The Beginning

There is something to be said for the slam-bang approach to a problem: you learn your fate quickly. If you take your time about guessing the correct play of a king-jack combination you learn your fate later, but with more joy.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. South ruffed and noted that his contract would depend on limiting the spade loss to one trick.

Declarer drew trumps with the ace and queen and led a spade at once. "Have the tooth out!" South declared, and he glared at West ferociously.

West had been glared at before. He calmly played a low spade, and it was all up to South. After a moment of indecision South tried a finesse with dummy's jack. Down one.

COMPASSION

As compassionate bridge players we cannot scoff at a fellow artisan who makes an unlucky guess, but we can snicker at the man who puts himself to the guess and then makes the wrong choice. South should not have tried to solve his spade problem so early in the hand.

Declarer should draw trumps with the ace and ten, after which he leads a club from dummy. East plays low, and South puts up the queen. When West fails to win the trick, South can be sure that East has the ace of clubs. (If West had the ace he could not afford to refuse the first trick for fear that East had the king.)

FINDS ACE

Once South finds out that East has the ace of clubs, it is clear that West has the ace of spades for his opening bid. South can then lead a spade and can confidently put up dummy's king when West plays low. When two aces are missing, you can often locate one ace by first locating the other.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠—Q 10 9 7 5
♥—4
♦—9 7 2
♣—A J 9 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid four spades.

This promises strong trump support, a side singleton or void suit, and not more than nine points in high cards. The idea is to shut the opponents out without getting dangerously high. Partner should beware of trying for a slam unless he has an unusually strong hand.

Ban Bottle Sales

MADRID (UPI)—Authorities have banned the sale or bringing in of glass bottles at all sporting events, including bullfights and soccer matches where high feelings have led to a spree of bottle throwing incidents.

however, we do call this property a "Sleeper," which we hasten to define as an "overlooked property"; the kind, whose potential could truly blossom under the guidance of a wide-awake buyer. Located directly across the street from the Ross Hospital, we offer this R-3 zoned property consisting of approx. 21,000 sq. ft. of valuable ground. One-half of which contains a fine single family residence (easily convertible), & the other-half a Von Rotz built duplex. CREAMPUFF '64 BUICK LeSABRE COUPE $1295

We sold this little silver 2-dr. hardtop coupe new in 1964 to local couple and the car has been used almost exclusively by the lady of the house as her husband has his own car. This clean Le Sabre has all the Buick extras including power steering, power brakes, power windows plus all the other Buick luxury items like automatic, tinted glass, etc.

Unusually low mileage. We can't find a thing to do to this car before putting it on the lot.

No Help Necessary For Folks In River

PINEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — After receiving a call that a number of people were being pulled from Cumberland River, the State Police post dispatched several officers to the scene.

They arrived just as an old-fashioned river baptizing was being conducted.

Downtown Novato Branch Sought By Post Office

The Novato Post Office is seeking a location for a substation in downtown Novato, according to Postmaster Harry M. Overly.

The bidder must furnish the space, clerical help, safe, and be open at least seven hours per day, Overly said. Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Friday in the Novato Post Office.

When the post office moved last August from its location on First Street near the downtown area to the Nave Shopping Center off South Novato Boulevard, the Downtown Merchants Association requested a substation for the downtown area.

Overly said that he had received aproval for the substation and posted a bid notice at the post office last week.

Marin City Group Sets Yule Events

A tour of homes decorated for Christmas was set for Dec. 22 from 4 to 7 p.m. by the Marin City Improvement Association last night, according to president Juanita Cobb.

A Christmas party at 9 p.m. in the Manzanita Center will be held the same day.

Marin City Resident Raps TV Reception

Housing Mgr. Melvin Randolph reported that, in a recent survey, 57 of 76 households in the community reported bad television reception.

"This comes as a complete surprise to me," said Earle Stanton, the contractor. "I talked to some of the tenants a month and a half ago and they told me the reception was fine."

"Well, I've been in the low rent area since 1960 and I've been complaining about the service for two years," said Authority Director Arthur Miller.

Stanton repeated his expression of surprise, but said he could do nothing about poor color television reception unless location of the antenna were moved to the private sector of Marin City.

"Leave the color out. Just bring me a good black and white picture at night," growled Miller.

Stanton, his head bobbing, said he would like to do just that.

Philip S. Erlich, chairman of the housing authority board, ordered Stanton to make a survey of Marin City reception and report back to the board at its next meeting Nov. 20.

The board also ordered a meeting between management and the authority's maintenance workers after Ronald Foster of the Marin City Council reported some of the men complained to him that wage increases for them were overdue.

Executive Director Donald O. Stutsman reported that the workers received a raise in April and are not due another.

Agenda Items

A special meeting of the Novato Plan Review Committee will be held at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Novato Community House to consider two items: Plans for landscaping, lighting, signing and location of a trailer sales office for Schuman Chevrolet Co., 7123 Redwood Highway, and plans for a 20,000 square-foot restaurant for Hoytt Enterprises on the east side of Seventh Street, south of Lee Brothers Market.

Corte Madera Sign Control Change Asked

A joint meeting last night of Corte Madera's Planning Commission and chamber of commerce members resulted in a general agreement that the town's sign control board should be enlarged.

William McBride, town zoning administrator, said the possibility of adding two persons — at least one a chamber representative — to the three member board of design was discussed and appeared acceptable to both chamber members and the commission.

The resulting five-member board, if approved by the town council, could be empowered to grant variances from the existing sign ordinance in special cases, he said. No action was taken, however, and both groups agreed to meet in the near future for further discussion.

The chamber has also recommended that the sign ordinance be amended to have a standard set of requirements for all signs along Highway 101, rather than the present variation of requirements according to zoning.

At present, the sign ordinance is absolute and there is no variance or appeal recourse available.

Cotati Planners Pass Lot Split For Apartments

The Cotati Planning Commission last night approved a lot split and zoning change for five lots on Williams Street, at the rear of the Post Office.

Requested by August Bianchi, the zoning was changed from single family residential to multiple units residential to allow the construction of apartments.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

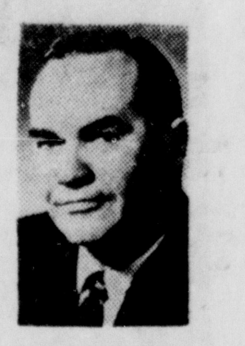
EXTERIOR — Approved plans for a change in the exterior of a building at 7885 Redwood Highway.

TRAFFIC — Decided to make a study of traffic patterns at the intersection of Redwood Highway and Commerce Boulevard.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parents Shouldn't Blame Selves In Mental Retardation Case



VAN DELLEN

What do parents do when they discover that their child is mentally retarded? Many go into a temporary state of shock. But when this passes, they rationalize by denying the condition and spend considerable time and money in search of opinions compatible with their own.

One mother told me, "My son is not subnormal, he is plain lazy." This woman hired a tutor to force the tyke to learn.

IN CONTRAST, others blame themselves, the doctor, or the hospital. Some families develop deep feelings of guilt or shame, especially those who put great stock in "brains."

They may punish themselves by spending all their time and resources on the mental defective to the detriment of the other children.

There is no need to feel guilty. Parents are not to blame. There are more than 100 known causes of mental retardation, including genetic factors, metabolic disorders, maternal infections, such as German measles during pregnancy, complications and injuries at birth, premature delivery, and meningitis in early life.

MONGOLISM, a common cause, stems from a chromosomal aberration. PKU and Rh incompatibility between mother and child are proven offenders. But known causes account for only one-fourth of all mental retardation.

The earlier retardation is detected, the more successful the treatment. Detection is easy in mongolism. In others, retardation is suspected when there is a delay in walking, speech, coordination, or habit training. Now and then the child fails to speak in sentences, or continues to play with very simple toys.

During the school years, the child is an academic failure with a low IQ.

IT IS WELL to remember that mental deficiency is not the only deterrent to learning. Defective hearing or vision, communication and language disorders, or emotional problems may be causative.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ARTHRITIS AND SWELLING

S. F. writes: Could arthritic knees and ankles cause swollen legs — not only the joints, but also the soft parts?

REPLY

Yes, but there are other more likely causes. In arthritis, swelling usually is confined to the joints but the lower extremities may become puffy when the individual is incapacitated or sits in a chair for a long time with the legs hanging down.

WHY MOTION SICKNESS?

A. P. writes: Why do some people get nauseated whenever they ride on a plane or boat or in a bus or an auto?

REPLY

Motion sickness is caused by the effect of movement on the balancing mechanism (labyrinth) of the ear. Psychology also plays a role, for some persons become seasick the moment they board a plane or ship.

SUBJECT TO HICCUPS

J. C. writes: Why do I hiccup before I eat, while I am eating, and after I eat?

REPLY

I don't know why you hiccup all the time. Peoople who suffer from persistent hiccups ultimately set some kind of record. Many get their names in the paper. You wouldn't be exaggerating a bit, would you?

ROUTINE ANTICOAGULANT

REPLY

No. The risk from bleeding would be greater than that from clotting.

Today's Health Hint — Crash diets are not effective on the long-term basis.

Downtown Novato Branch Sought By Post Office

The Novato Post Office is seeking a location for a substation in downtown Novato, according to Postmaster Harry M. Overly.

The bidder must furnish the space, clerical help, safe, and be open at least seven hours per day, Overly said. Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Friday in the Novato Post Office.

When the post office moved last August from its location on First Street near the downtown area to the Nave Shopping Center off South Novato Boulevard, the Downtown Merchants Association requested a substation for the downtown area.

Overly said that he had received aproval for the substation and posted a bid notice at the post office last week.

Marin City Group Sets Yule Events

A tour of homes decorated for Christmas was set for Dec. 22 from 4 to 7 p.m. by the Marin City Improvement Association last night, according to president Juanita Cobb.

A Christmas party at 3 p.m. in the Manzanita Center will be held the same day.

Marin City Resident Raps TV Reception

Housing Mgr. Melvin Randolph reported that, in a recent survey, 57 of 76 households in the community reported bad television reception.

"This comes as a complete surprise to me," said Earle Stanton, the contractor. "I talked to some of the tenants a month and a half ago and they told me the reception was fine."

"Well, I've been in the low rent area since 1960 and I've been complaining about the service for two years," said Authority Director Arthur Miller.

Stanton repeated his expression of surprise, but said he could do nothing about poor color television reception unless location of the antenna were moved to the private sector of Marin City.

"Leave the color out. Just bring me a good black and white picture at night," growled Miller.

Stanton, his head bobbing, said he would like to do just that.

Philip S. Erlich, chairman of the housing authority board, ordered Stanton to make a survey of Marin City reception and report back to the board at its next meeting Nov. 20.

The board also ordered a meeting between management and the authority's maintenance workers after Ronald Foster of the Marin City Council reported some of the men complained to him that wage increases for them were overdue.

Executive Director Donald O. Stutsman reported that the workers received a raise in April and are not due another.

Agenda Items

A special meeting of the Novato Plan Review Committee will be held at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Novato Community House to consider two items: Plans for landscaping, lighting, signing and location of a trailer sales office for Schuman Chevrolet Co., 7123 Redwood Highway, and plans for a 20,000 square-foot restaurant for Hoytt Enterprises on the east side of Seventh Street, south of Lee Brothers Market.

Corte Madera Sign Control Change Asked

A joint meeting last night of Corte Madera's Planning Commission and chamber of commerce members resulted in a general agreement that the town's sign control board should be enlarged.

William McBride, town zoning administrator, said the possibility of adding two persons — at least one a chamber representative — to the three member board of design was discussed and appeared acceptable to both chamber members and the commission.

The resulting five-member board, if approved by the town council, could be empowered to grant variances from the existing sign ordinance in special cases, he said. No action was taken, however, and both groups agreed to meet in the near future for further discussion.

The chamber has also recommended that the sign ordinance be amended to have a standard set of requirements for all signs along Highway 101, rather than the present variation of requirements according to zoning.

At present, the sign ordinance is absolute and there is no variance or appeal recourse available.

Cotati Planners Pass Lot Split For Apartments

The Cotati Planning Commission last night approved a lot split and zoning change for five lots on Williams Street, at the rear of the Post Office.

Requested by August Bianchi, the zoning was changed from single family residential to multiple units residential to allow the construction of apartments.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

EXTERIOR — Approved plans for a change in the exterior of a building at 7885 Redwood Highway.

TRAFFIC — Decided to make a study of traffic patterns at the intersection of Redwood Highway and Commerce Boulevard.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parents Shouldn't Blame Selves In Mental Retardation Case

VAN DELLEN

What do parents do when they discover that their child is mentally retarded? Many go into a temporary state of shock. But when this passes, they rationalize by denying the condition and spend considerable time and money in search of opinions compatible with their own.

One mother told me, "My son is not subnormal, he is plain lazy." This woman hired a tutor to force the tyke to learn.

IN CONTRAST, others blame themselves, the doctor, or the hospital. Some families develop deep feelings of guilt or shame, especially those who put great stock in "brains."

They may punish themselves by spending all their time and resources on the mental defective to the detriment of the other children.

There is no need to feel guilty. Parents are not to blame. There are more than 100 known causes of mental retardation, including genetic factors, metabolic disorders, maternal infections, such as German measles during pregnancy, complications and injuries at birth, premature delivery, and meningitis in early life.

MONGOLISM, a common cause, stems from a chromosomal aberration. PKU and Rh incompatibility between mother and child are proven offenders. But known causes account for only one-fourth of all mental retardation.

The earlier retardation is detected, the more successful the treatment. Detection is easy in mongolism. In others, retardation is suspected when there is a delay in walking, speech, coordination, or habit training. Now and then the child fails to speak in sentences, or continues to play with very simple toys.

During the school years, the child is an academic failure with a low IQ.

IT IS WELL to remember that mental deficiency is not the only deterrent to learning. Defective hearing or vision, communication and language disorders, or emotional problems may be causative.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ARTHRITIS AND SWELLING

S. F. writes: Could arthritic knees and ankles cause swollen legs — not only the joints, but also the soft parts?

REPLY

Yes, but there are other more likely causes. In arthritis, swelling usually is confined to the joints but the lower extremities may become puffy when the individual is incapacitated or sits in a chair for a long time with the legs hanging down.

WHY MOTION SICKNESS?

A. P. writes: Why do some people get nauseated whenever they ride on a plane or boat or in a bus or an auto?

REPLY

Motion sickness is caused by the effect of movement on the balancing mechanism (labyrinth) of the ear. Psychology also plays a role, for some persons become seasick the moment they board a plane or ship.

SUBJECT TO HICCUPS

J. C. writes: Why do I hiccup before I eat, while I am eating, and after I eat?

REPLY

I don't know why you hiccup all the time. Peoople who suffer from persistent hiccups ultimately set some kind of record. Many get their names in the paper. You wouldn't be exaggerating a bit, would you?

ROUTINE ANTICOAGULANT

REPLY

No. The risk from bleeding would be greater than that from clotting.

Today's Health Hint — Crash diets are not effective on the long-term basis.

McNear's Shale Has Hot Time Going Through Mill

Firm Makes Light Blocks For Building

By ALAN JONES

They are grinding McNear's Point into building blocks.

If that worries conservationists they can relax, because the grinding has gone on since the late 19th Century and will continue to the end of the 20th or beyond.

The McNear Co., which owns 285 acres of rock-rich land and 400 acres of tidelands on the point east of Peacock Gap, makes one basic product — light weight Haydite aggregate, used like natural sand or gravel in making concrete but 40 per cent lighter.

Some of the Haydite is sold in bulk like gravel, but most of it goes into building blocks. The McNear plant can turn out 16,000 blocks a day, which would produce more than 4 million blocks a year.

The raw material is Franciscan shale, a rock that forms most of the upper levels of McNear's Point. The shale is ground from the earth, broken up and roasted in a giant rotating kiln that burns away impurities and expands the remaining rock into a lava-like substance full of tiny air pockets.

The Haydite is then cooled, sized, mixed with cement, water and coloring and converted into building blocks in a nearly endless variety. A McNear catalog shows 88 shapes which can be molded, each in several available colors.

How long will the hill last! "That's the first question everyone asks," said general manager Clayton K. Rice. "There are a lot of variables but I usually say 25 to 35 years."

Quarrying may not end even when the hill is flattened, though, A tenant company at the point. Basalt Rock Co., Inc., is already quarrying several feet below sea level for blue rock, used in highways, marine riprap and airfield construction.

There are three sorts of usable material in the hill, Rice explained. The upper level is clay, suitable for bricks and other uses. The middle level is Franciscan shale, and lower levels are the basaltic blue rock.

The McNear Co., runs only the Haydite plant and block plant, but has several tenants on the site. Founder of the company was John A. McNear, who bought 2,500 acres in 1868. The family sold the land west of San Pedro Road in 1955 for subdivision, and McNear's Beach was bought in 1965 and is now part of the Peacock Gap Country Club.

Owners of the family firm are two brothers and a sister, Lawrence P. McNear Sr., Miller M. McNear and Mrs. Lucretia Thomas, the third generation in the company.

Another tenant makes ceramic kilns, another terrazzo tiles and yet another architectrual castings, all using the subsurface riches of McNear's Point.

The main show, though, is the Haydite production of 100,000 cubic yards a year. Rice said the company sells its products from Santa Cruz to the Oregon border, with 92 per cent being sold beyond Marin.

McNear started making Haydite in 1932, one of the first five plants in the world. During World War II, the plant produced material for 27 concrete barges, a development made possible by Haydite's light weight.

In more recent times, McNear's block has been used in the Marin Civic Center, the new federal building and the Crown-Zellerbach building in San Francisco, and many small projects such as the Independent-Journal's Novato office and the Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo.

HEAT BATH—Kiln tender Alex Perry pokes clinkers free in the business end of the 90-foot kiln which roasts the shale into Haydite. The oil-fed kiln, roaring like a jet engine, produces 2800-degree temperatures as the glowing rock cascades down its length. The plant has four such kilns for periods of high production.

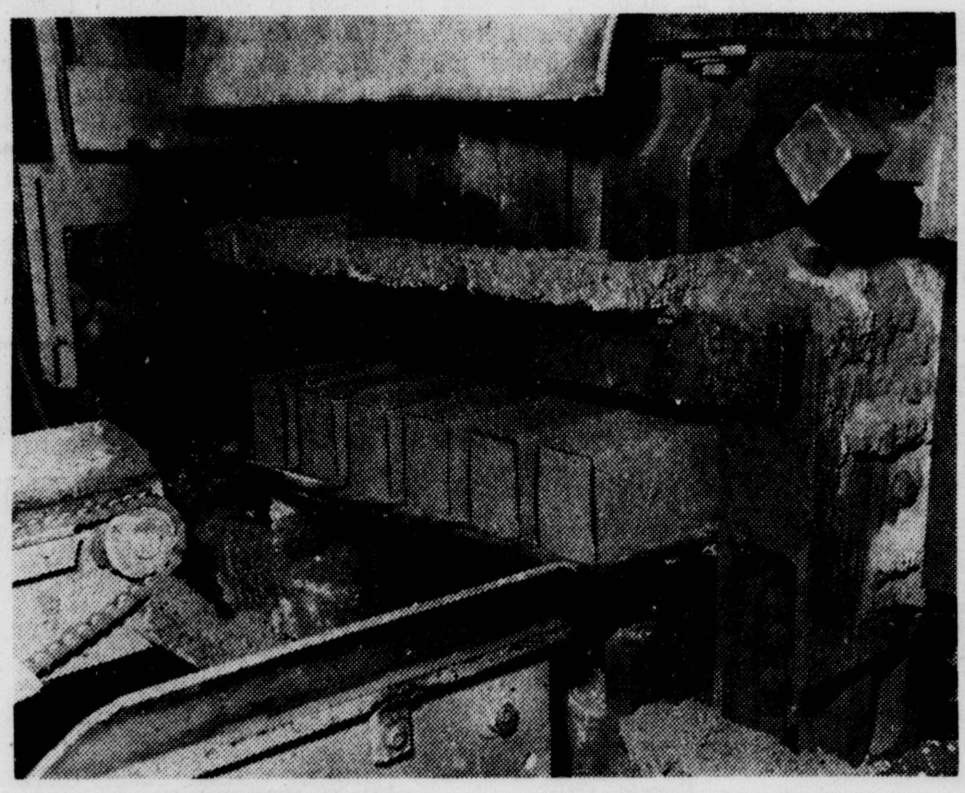
THE SHAKEDOWN — The roast shale is carried, after cooling, into the mill at right for grinding, then is sorted into three sizes of aggregate in the lower building at left. Fine grade is used for building blocks, coarser grades for such uses as heavy-duty concrete. The fine aggregate is poured into giant mixers in the fully-automated block-making plant.



BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW—A set of six slump blocks emerge from the forming machine, produced in 11 seconds according to electronic timing. The blocks are made of a "dry mix" concrete using as little water as possible, which gives greater strength. In the forms, the machinery then vibrates the blocks into higher density before sliding them out onto drying racks.

DOUBLE LOAD—Two racks of slump block (Slumplite is McNear's trade name for them) are carried by a forklift to curing sheds, where they will be bathed for 24 hours in low temperature steam and carbon dioxide. The curing produces a stronger block than would a week of natural drying, according to general manager Clayton K. Rice.

12 Servicemen Reported Behind The Iron Curtain

TOKYO (AP) — Twelve U.S. servicemen, aided by two Japanese antiwar groups, fled to the Soviet Union between April and August, police said today.

Police learned this while investigating the case of a U.S. sailor detained Tuesday night and later turned over to U.S. military authorities for being absent without leave since Sept. 14 from the U.S. Navy base at Yokosuka.

American spokesmen identified the sailor as Seaman Recruit Geral L. Meiers. They said he and two Japanese were in a car stopped for speeding in Kushiro, on Japan's northernmost main island, Hokkaido.

Police said the Japan Committee to Aid Antiwar Deserters — the Japan Committee for Peace in Vietnam—arranged for the Russians to take deserters from the Hokkaido port of Nemuro.

Officers said police plan to watch the two organizations although Japan has no laws providing for punishment of Japanese who help U.S. deserters to escape from Japan.

Two Brothers Accused Of Star's Killing

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two young brothers, described by police as transients from the Chicago area, were booked on suspicion of murder last night in the bludgeon death of silent screen lover Ramon Novarro.

Paul Robert Ferguson, 22 and his 17-year-old brother, Thomas Scott Ferguson, were arrested in Bell Gardens, just southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

INDICTMENTS ASKED

"After checking out the physical evidence, we decided we had enough of a case to ask for indicements," police Lt. G. W. Lauretzen said.

No further hint of "the physical evidence" or what led officers to the brothers was disclosed.

The older Ferguson arrived in the Los Angeles area about five months ago, Lauretzsen said, and was arrested last night in a restaurant. His brother was taken into custody at the home of a friend with whom he had been staying. Police said Thomas ran away from their mother's home in Round Lake, Ill., three weeks ago.

Novarro's male secretary, after entering the house with his own key, said he discovered the actor's nude body on a bed a week ago today.

SUFFOCATION DEATH

An autopsy indicated the old-time star suffocated on blood from his broken nose and battered mouth while lying unconscious. Furniture was overturned, and Novarro's glasses had been smashed. Bloodied clothing was found outside.

A weapon described only as "a striking instrument" was found the next day, investigators said.

There were no reported sign of robbery or forced entry into the $150,000 Laurel Canyon house, where Novarro lived alone. He never married.

12 Servicemen Reported Behind The Iron Curtain

TOKYO (AP) — Twelve U.S. servicemen, aided by two Japanese antiwar groups, fled to the Soviet Union between April and August, police said today.

Police learned this while investigating the case of a U.S. sailor detained Tuesday night and later turned over to U.S. military authorities for being absent without leave since Sept. 14 from the U.S. Navy base at Yokosuka.

American spokesmen identified the sailor as Seaman Recruit Geral L. Meiers. They said he and two Japanese were in a car stopped for speeding in Kushiro, on Japan's northernmost main island, Hokkaido.

Police said the Japan Committee to Aid Antiwar Deserters — the Japan Committee for Peace in Vietnam—arranged for the Russians to take deserters from the Hokkaido port of Nemuro.

Officers said police plan to watch the two organizations although Japan has no laws providing for punishment of Japanese who help U.S. deserters to escape from Japan.

Two Brothers Accused Of Star's Killing

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two young brothers, described by police as transients from the Chicago area, were booked on suspicion of murder last night in the bludgeon death of silent screen lover Ramon Novarro.

Paul Robert Ferguson, 22 and his 17-year-old brother, Thomas Scott Ferguson, were arrested in Bell Gardens, just southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

INDICTMENTS ASKED

"After checking out the physical evidence, we decided we had enough of a case to ask for indicements," police Lt. G. W. Lauretzen said.

No further hint of "the physical evidence" or what led officers to the brothers was disclosed.

The older Ferguson arrived in the Los Angeles area about five months ago, Lauretzsen said, and was arrested last night in a restaurant. His brother was taken into custody at the home of a friend with whom he had been staying. Police said Thomas ran away from their mother's home in Round Lake, Ill., three weeks ago.

Novarro's male secretary, after entering the house with his own key, said he discovered the actor's nude body on a bed a week ago today.

SUFFOCATION DEATH

An autopsy indicated the old-time star suffocated on blood from his broken nose and battered mouth while lying unconscious. Furniture was overturned, and Novarro's glasses had been smashed. Bloodied clothing was found outside.

A weapon described only as "a striking instrument" was found the next day, investigators said.

There were no reported sign of robbery or forced entry into the $150,000 Laurel Canyon house, where Novarro lived alone. He never married.

One Marin Car Finishes Grueling Mexican Race

I-J Special Report

One Marin County car chugged across the finish line of the Mexican 1,000 off-road race from Ensenada to LaPaz today but the other one conked out about 200 miles from the starting gate.

A Ford Cortina, driven by Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax, crossed the LaPaz finish line at 4 a.m., ending the 832-mile (as the crow flies) race just under 45 hours.

A Volkswagen buggy driven by Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington of Sausalito suffered a breakdown in the rear suspension and failed to finish.

Californians Larry Berquist of Duarte and Gary Preston of West Covina, set a record of 20 hours, 38 minutes in winning the grueling race. The team, trading positions on a Honda motorcycle, broke the old mark of 27:45 for the test down the wild Baja California peninsula by more than seven hours.

A total of 233 vehicles was entered in the race which started Tuesday morning.

Winkelmann telephoned his wife in Marin County just as soon as he finished today.

"He was happy to just finish the race,'' said Mrs. Winkelmann. "He said it was just unbelievable. Their gear shift lever broke and they used a screw driver in its place for the last 300 miles of the race."

Mrs. Winkelman said her husband thought he was 84th vehicle across the line. "He was very happy just to finish the race. It was the first Ford Cortina to ever finish this race, I believe," she said.

"Just after the third check point, about 200 miles out at Rancho Santa Ynez, the shock mounts in the rear suspension broke," Hilton said.

"They limped back to Rancho Santa Ynez and discontinued the race," Hilton said. "They're in Ensenada this morning.

"We learned some lessons in the race . . . they'll come in handy next year. I hope to have three cars in the race next year," he said, his spirit not dampened by the car's first failure.

Berquist and Preston were followed by another motorcycle team of A. R. Rogers of Burbank, and Don Bohannon of Northridge in 21 hours flat.

Placing third over-all and first in their class were Larry Minor and Jack Bayer, both of Hemete, in a four-wheel-drive Ford Bronco. They finished in 21 hours, 11 minutes.

Andy De Vercelly Jr., of Coronada, and Tim McClelland of Spring Valley, were first in their class when they arrived in a Volkswagen-powered dune buggy in 22 hours, 37 minutes.

Last year's record of 26 hours, 8 minutes was set by Ted Mangels of Newport Beach, and Vic Wilson of Costa Mesa. They were eliminated this time when their Volkswagen-powered buggy conked out.

Only 100 of the 233 vehicles in the race had completed half the race when Berquist and Preston reached the tip of the Baja California peninsula. Nine entries finished and 16 others were within 100 miles of La Paz at 10 a.m.

One crash occurred 100 miles south of Ensenada when the developer of last year's winning dune buggy was seriously injured. Bruce Meyers of Fountain Valley, was taken to a San Diego hospital for treatment of injuries.

Howard Mapes of San Jose suffered a possible broken back when two dune buggies and a motorcycle collided at a refueling stop near Camaulu.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

It's Stiff Test For USC

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern California, with a bit of tarnish on its No. 1 reputation, faces a stern threat this weekend of having it completely blackened.

The Trojans, whose advantage over Ohio State in The Associated Press poll has been shaved to a paper thin edge, square off against defensive-minded California Saturday in a match that will probably not only determine one of the Rose Bowl participants but also the national champion.

67 YARDS

Sensational O. J. Simpson was held to 67 yards and Southern Cal needed a touchdown with just 1:13 left last week to squelch unheralded Oregon State 20-13 for its sixth straight.

Since Ohio State, also 6-0, is an overwhelming favorite against hapless Wisconsin, 0-6, Saturday, the Trojans undoubtedly will have to be impressive to maintain their hold on the top spot.

And, they will have to do it against a stingy defense. California, ranked No. 11, has permitted only 39 points in rolling to a 5-1-1 record.

While Ohio State should have an easy time of it, No. 3 Kansas and No. 4 Penn State—both eyeing Orange Bowl bids—face strong foes in their efforts to remain unbeaten.

Kansas, fresh from a 27-14 coast past Colorado for its seventh straight, plays host to stubborn Oklahoma, 3-3, and Penn State, 6-0, which survived a late rally to subdue Army 28-24, entertains erratic but strong Miami, Fla., 5-2.

No. 5 Tennessee, 5-0-1, tackles No. 18 Auburn, 5-2, in the second of a big day-night doubleheader involving two important Southeast Conference games at Birmingham, Ala. No. 20 Louisiana State meets Alabama in the afternoon game.

No. 6 Purdue travels to Minnesota for a Big Ten game that will be nationally televised.

No. 7 Michigan draws lowly Illinois, No. 8 Missouri plays Iowa State, No. 9 Georgia meets Florida at Jacksonville and No. 10 Texas travels to Baylor.

In other games, No. 12 Notre Dame plays host to Pittsburgh, No. 13 Houston has a night game at Memphis State, No. 14 Arkansas faces Rice, No. 15 Oregon State meets UCLA, No. 16 and unbeaten Ohio University is at Bowling Green, No. 17 Michigan State tests Indiana and No. 19 Wyoming is idle.

Warriors Expected To Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The last note in the San Francisco Warriors vs. Rick Barry suit has not been sounded.

Although Superior Court Judge Walter Carpeneti yesterday officially concluded the case, the National Basketball Association team is expected to go before a higher court to seek $365,000—the amount which Carpeneti said he feels the Warriors lost when Barry decided to jump to the Oakland Oaks of the rival American League.

However, in making his final statement, Carpeneti said if such monies were actually to be awarded, a higher court would have to decide it, an action which paves the way for the Warriors to appeal the case.

Ron Begins Second Golf Year In Hawaii

JIM SHORTS:

This weekend's Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament marks the beginning of San Rafael resident Ron Cerrudo's second year as a touring pro.

It was just a year ago that Cerrudo, then 22 years old, made his play-for-pay debut in Honolulu and drew a blank at the pay window.

However, the husky young man has since found the secret to success. In 30 subsequent tournaments he won a check 24 times. Last Sunday's $550 finish in the Lucky International at San Francisco's Harding Park brought his rookie year total of earnings to $33,562.51.

His goal as a sophomore? "I hope to double that amount," he said as he headed toward the greenery of pro golf.

IT DIDN'T really rain in Petaluma last weekend. All that moisture came from tears spilled by followers of the Petaluma High School Trojans football team. And you can't blame 'em.

They Call It A 'Miracle'

You see, Petaluma hadn't won a game all season — six straight setbacks — going into its traditional battle with the Santa Rosa Panthers Friday night. After trailing 19-0 in the first half, the spunky Trojans launched a sensational comeback that saw them storm into a 21-19 lead on Don Figone's pass to Bob Garcia with only 13 seconds to go in the game.

Fans from the cackleberry capital of California (that's a yoke, son) were about to celebrate one of the great triumphs in the 49-year history of their "big game" until Santa Rosa took the ensuing kickoff and pulled what folks up that way call a "miracle." On the last play of the game Panther quarterback Ken Alton tossed a screen pass to track star Carl Sagon who sprinted 58 yards to a touchdown. Santa Rosa 25, Petaluma 21.

THINGS WEREN'T really happy around the Rohnert Park campus of Rancho Cotate High School, either.

All three TDs in Healdsburg's 20-0 victory over the Cougars came on punt returns of 76 and 70 yards by Tony Frye and 60 yards by Corky Griffin.

Practice Session Theme

SPEAKING OF themes, they should call Saturday night's Marin Catholic of Kentfield-St. Elizabeth's of Oakland high school football game in Kentfield the "Stale Yale Bowl."

Marin Catholic, which has posted a 3-3-1 won-lost-tied record, ends its season against a Mustang team that has played four ties in its seven games. Both teams have key men and combinations for success, so

Mullins' Shot Wins For S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a tight situation, the San Francisco Warriors give the ball to guard Jeff Mullins.

Mullins came through last night for the second time this season with a field goal at the last moment—this time with three seconds left — to give the Warriors a 94-93 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Knicks.

TRIES FOR FOUL

"I drive for the basket hoping for a foul," said Mullins after the squeaker before nearly 3,000 in the Civic Auditorium. "If I see I'm not going to get fouled I just take the best shot I can."

Dick Barnett put the Knicks ahead 93-92 on a basket with seven seconds left. The Warriors called a timeout and set up Mullins for the final shot.

The Warriors had come from a 13-point deficit in the third quarter.

Clyde Lee, 6-foot-10, forward, appeared for the Warriors for the first time in two weeks and led the club with 25 points. Rudy LaRusso scored 240, 10 of them in the final quarter, and Mullins scored 20.

Cazzie Russell led New York with 18.

Cal's Coaches, Players Confident

BERKELEY (AP) — Coaches and players expressed confidence after the California football team worked out on a muddy field in preparation for Saturday's game against University of Southern California.

Coach Ray Willsey said yesterday he expected USC's O.J. Simpson might be used as a receiver if the Bear defense, one of the best in the nation, stops his running.

GRIDDERS PRAY FOR RECOVERY OF UCLA STAR

He is partially paralyzed from the neck down and remains in serious condition in University Hospital.

The Tennessee coaches, players and many coeds have visited Chrestman.

"He has so much courage," said guard David Browne.

Davis Cup Chief Is Confident, But Careful

SAN JUAN (AP) — With the United States Davis Cup tennis interzone playoff against India set for this weekend, Donald Dell, America's non-playing captain, is confident but careful.

Dell admits that his singles players, Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va. and Clark Graebner of New York, should give the U.S. an eddge but is wary of Ramanthan Krishnan, India's top player.

"Although we should be favored," said Dell, "it's going to be very close. Krishnan is one of the great Cup players. He can beat any given player on any given day."

Dell picked Ashe and Graebner as his singles players and named a doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, both of Los Angeles.

The winner of the U.S.-India match will challenge Australia for the Cup late next month. The United States last won the hardware in 1963.

Oaks Take On Indiana Pacers

The Oakland Oaks, compiling the best ABA record at 6-1 behind ABA scoring leader Rick Barry, entertain the Indiana Pacers, last in the Eastern Division with a 1-6 record at 8 o'clock.

Casper, Texan Smash Hawaii Course Mark

HONOLULU (AP) — Playing in tradewinds so weak they could barely make a palm whisper, favored Billy Casper and young Texan Jack Montgomery shot record 64s for the Waialae course, tuning up for the $125,000 Hawaiian International, which got under way today.

Casper's round was particularly spectacular, as golf's leading money winner this year made 10 birdies.

Casper had two bogeys and only six pars in his round of 31-33 in the Pro-Am portion of the tournament yesterday.

"I didn't know whether I would ever make a par," he said. "After 10 holes I had eight birdies and two bogeys. It was one of the finest rounds I ever played.

"I feel good and I am playing well," said Casper, the pre-tournament favorite.

"I won last week and although you can never tell in a golf tournament, I feel I have a good chance to repeat. I'm driving well, hitting my irons nicely and putting beautifully."

Montgomery, 27, from Fort Worth, scored 32-32. He and Casper broke the competitive course record for the 7,000-yard par 72 Waialae.

Hawaii's trade winds were weak to nonexistant and the sun half baked out the sometimes fierce rough making the course easy to play.

Gene Littler, whose 65 was the former course record, had 66 in the pro-am. So did Miller Barber and Terry Wilcox. Defending Open champion Lee Trevino scored 71.

Bosley Remains On Doubtful List

Bosley sprained his left knee in last Sunday's loss to Cleveland.

Forrest Blue, the 49ers' No. 1 draft choice, will start at center.

Oaks Take On Indiana Pacers

The Oakland Oaks, compiling the best ABA record at 6-1 behind ABA scoring leader Rick Barry, entertain the Indiana Pacers, last in the Eastern Division with a 1-6 record at 8 o'clock.

One Marin Car Finishes Grueling Mexican Race

I-J Special Report

One Marin County car chugged across the finish line of the Mexican 1,000 off-road race from Ensenada to LaPaz today but the other one conked out about 200 miles from the starting gate.

A Ford Cortina, driven by Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax, crossed the LaPaz finish line at 4 a.m., ending the 832-mile (as the crow flies) race just under 45 hours.

A Volkswagen buggy driven by Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington of Sausalito suffered a breakdown in the rear suspension and failed to finish.

Californians Larry Berquist of Duarte and Gary Preston of West Covina, set a record of 20 hours, 38 minutes in winning the grueling race. The team, trading positions on a Honda motorcycle, broke the old mark of 27:45 for the test down the wild Baja California peninsula by more than seven hours.

A total of 233 vehicles was entered in the race which started Tuesday morning.

Winkelmann telephoned his wife in Marin County just as soon as he finished today.

"He was happy to just finish the race,'' said Mrs. Winkelmann. "He said it was just unbelievable. Their gear shift lever broke and they used a screw driver in its place for the last 300 miles of the race."

Mrs. Winkelman said her husband thought he was 84th vehicle across the line. "He was very happy just to finish the race. It was the first Ford Cortina to ever finish this race, I believe," she said.

"Just after the third check point, about 200 miles out at Rancho Santa Ynez, the shock mounts in the rear suspension broke," Hilton said.

"They limped back to Rancho Santa Ynez and discontinued the race," Hilton said. "They're in Ensenada this morning.

"We learned some lessons in the race . . . they'll come in handy next year. I hope to have three cars in the race next year," he said, his spirit not dampened by the car's first failure.

Berquist and Preston were followed by another motorcycle team of A. R. Rogers of Burbank, and Don Bohannon of Northridge in 21 hours flat.

Placing third over-all and first in their class were Larry Minor and Jack Bayer, both of Hemete, in a four-wheel-drive Ford Bronco. They finished in 21 hours, 11 minutes.

Andy De Vercelly Jr., of Coronada, and Tim McClelland of Spring Valley, were first in their class when they arrived in a Volkswagen-powered dune buggy in 22 hours, 37 minutes.

Last year's record of 26 hours, 8 minutes was set by Ted Mangels of Newport Beach, and Vic Wilson of Costa Mesa. They were eliminated this time when their Volkswagen-powered buggy conked out.

Only 100 of the 233 vehicles in the race had completed half the race when Berquist and Preston reached the tip of the Baja California peninsula. Nine entries finished and 16 others were within 100 miles of La Paz at 10 a.m.

One crash occurred 100 miles south of Ensenada when the developer of last year's winning dune buggy was seriously injured. Bruce Meyers of Fountain Valley, was taken to a San Diego hospital for treatment of injuries.

Howard Mapes of San Jose suffered a possible broken back when two dune buggies and a motorcycle collided at a refueling stop near Camaulu.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

It's Stiff Test For USC

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern California, with a bit of tarnish on its No. 1 reputation, faces a stern threat this weekend of having it completely blackened.

The Trojans, whose advantage over Ohio State in The Associated Press poll has been shaved to a paper thin edge, square off against defensive-minded California Saturday in a match that will probably not only determine one of the Rose Bowl participants but also the national champion.

67 YARDS

Sensational O. J. Simpson was held to 67 yards and Southern Cal needed a touchdown with just 1:13 left last week to squelch unheralded Oregon State 20-13 for its sixth straight.

Since Ohio State, also 6-0, is an overwhelming favorite against hapless Wisconsin, 0-6, Saturday, the Trojans undoubtedly will have to be impressive to maintain their hold on the top spot.

And, they will have to do it against a stingy defense. California, ranked No. 11, has permitted only 39 points in rolling to a 5-1-1 record.

While Ohio State should have an easy time of it, No. 3 Kansas and No. 4 Penn State—both eyeing Orange Bowl bids—face strong foes in their efforts to remain unbeaten.

Kansas, fresh from a 27-14 coast past Colorado for its seventh straight, plays host to stubborn Oklahoma, 3-3, and Penn State, 6-0, which survived a late rally to subdue Army 28-24, entertains erratic but strong Miami, Fla., 5-2.

No. 5 Tennessee, 5-0-1, tackles No. 18 Auburn, 5-2, in the second of a big day-night doubleheader involving two important Southeast Conference games at Birmingham, Ala. No. 20 Louisiana State meets Alabama in the afternoon game.

No. 6 Purdue travels to Minnesota for a Big Ten game that will be nationally televised.

No. 7 Michigan draws lowly Illinois, No. 8 Missouri plays Iowa State, No. 9 Georgia meets Florida at Jacksonville and No. 10 Texas travels to Baylor.

In other games, No. 12 Notre Dame plays host to Pittsburgh, No. 13 Houston has a night game at Memphis State, No. 14 Arkansas faces Rice, No. 15 Oregon State meets UCLA, No. 16 and unbeaten Ohio University is at Bowling Green, No. 17 Michigan State tests Indiana and No. 19 Wyoming is idle.

Casper, Texan Smash Hawaii Course Mark

HONOLULU (AP) — Playing in tradewinds so weak they could barely make a palm whisper, favored Billy Casper and young Texan Jack Montgomery shot record 64s for the Waialae course, tuning up for the $125,000 Hawaiian International, which got under way today.

Casper's round was particularly spectacular, as golf's leading money winner this year made 10 birdies.

Casper had two bogeys and only six pars in his round of 31-33 in the Pro-Am portion of the tournament yesterday.

"I didn't know whether I would ever make a par," he said. "After 10 holes I had eight birdies and two bogeys. It was one of the finest rounds I ever played.

"I feel good and I am playing well," said Casper, the pre-tournament favorite.

"I won last week and although you can never tell in a golf tournament, I feel I have a good chance to repeat. I'm driving well, hitting my irons nicely and putting beautifully."

Montgomery, 27, from Fort Worth, scored 32-32. He and Casper broke the competitive course record for the 7,000-yard par 72 Waialae.

Hawaii's trade winds were weak to nonexistant and the sun half baked out the sometimes fierce rough making the course easy to play.

Gene Littler, whose 65 was the former course record, had 66 in the pro-am. So did Miller Barber and Terry Wilcox. Defending Open champion Lee Trevino scored 71.

Bosley Remains On Doubtful List

Bosley sprained his left knee in last Sunday's loss to Cleveland.

Forrest Blue, the 49ers' No. 1 draft choice, will start at center.

Warriors Expected To Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The last note in the San Francisco Warriors vs. Rick Barry suit has not been sounded.

Although Superior Court Judge Walter Carpeneti yesterday officially concluded the case, the National Basketball Association team is expected to go before a higher court to seek $365,000—the amount which Carpeneti said he feels the Warriors lost when Barry decided to jump to the Oakland Oaks of the rival American League.

However, in making his final statement, Carpeneti said if such monies were actually to be awarded, a higher court would have to decide it, an action which paves the way for the Warriors to appeal the case.

East German Home After All

BERLIN (AP) — Horst Koehler, East German dressage champion, returned home today and denied reports he had planned to stay in the West after the Olympic Games, the official East German news agency ADN said.

Informed sources said yesterday that Koehler, who placed fifth in the Olympic dressage competition Saturday, had decided to remain in the West.

Tamalpais Fullback Hector Gains Stature In The Mud

He's Picked As I-J Grid Prep Of Week

The game decided no championships, set no record, caused no ripples of worry or wonder back East.

For San Rafael High School it was another dreary loss of missed opportunities; for rejuvenated Tamalpais High School of Mill Valley, it was another step toward a winning season in a 12-6, rain-muddy, windy-cold victory with several hundred unpaid seagulls attending.

Earthshaking or not, there was Dave Hector, big smile on his face, a thick coat of dripping mud obscuring face, number and shoelaces, running in abandon toward the nearest mud puddle and rolling in it in sheer goofy delight. And pretty soon, quarterback Don Mackin jumped in and frolicked.

126 YARDS

Hector should have been happy. He had sloshed, ripped, faked, skidded, and dug out 126 yards on a turf right out of a bad jungle movie. If you'd make cement imprints of every indentation on San Rafael's field, you could probably get a composite of David Hector, including a set of feet in the end zone.

Hector, "little" brother of coach Willie Hector, amassed the yardage on 21 carries, romped off on a twisting run of 35 yards to the one-yard line to set up one touchdown and slpashed in to score another touchdown while putting in a whole tough game at defensive end. It was an Independent-Journal Prep of the Week performance.

CLASSIC

Hector looks and runs something like the classic fullback, a knock-em-down, rambling blaster, but he has quite a few good moves when he gets out in the open that resemble classic halfback shifts more than, say, Jim Brown.

"You can't always run right over everybody," he said. "Which just goes to show you that a fullback CAN run around people."

He might make all-league, he might not, but whatever happens, it probably won't affect him all that much. He's a fellow that knows how to enjoy things. Like mountain-climbing, of which he says "you never really know the feeling until you've tried it." . . . or like rolling, laughing in the mud after a football victory.

HE'S NO. 1—Dave Hector of Mill Valley's Tamalpais High is Prep of the Week, as selected by the sports staff of the Independent-Journal. (Independent-Journal photo)

Lamonica Skips Raider Practice

"It's a charley horse, just above the joint," Lamonica said yesterday. "But the swelling is disappearling and I still think I'll play this week."

George Blanda, Cotton Dayidson and rookie Eldridge Dickey have been working out at quarterback, but Dapidson has not been activated from the taxi squad.

Mercer Tries For Packers' Kicking Job

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Mike Mercer, who kicked for Kansas City when the Chiefs bowed to the Packers 35-10 in the first Super Bowl, was in Green Bay yesterday — looking for a job.

"I think he can do the job," said Packer Coach Phil Bengtson after watching Mercer kick field goals on the rain soaked practice field. "He looked pretty good."

The 32-year-old veteran has kicked for four teams, in both the National and American Football Leagues.

He was drafted by the NFL's Minnesota Vikings in 1961 but was dropped. He also had kicked for Oakland, Buffalo and Kansas City in the AFL.

But Mercer may not get the job. Jerry Kramer, the guard who was Green Bay's kicker when the season started, has been place kicking for the first time since injuring his knee Oct. 20 and looks pretty good, Bengtson said.

Cardinals Just Keep Hitting Home Runs

NIIGATA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals kept up their home run barrage—belting four more out of the park—and held the Yomiuri Giants to just two hits today, scoring an 8-1 victory.

Two two-run homers by Curt Flood and one each by Mike Shannon and Lou Brock accounted for all the Cardinal runs. The National League baseball champions have hit nine home runs in their last two games.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton held the Japanese champion Giants scoreless for four innings and reliever Mike Torrez, who was credited with the victory, gave up only two hits, including a home run by Yomiuri catcher Makoto Tsuchida.

Yale Football Win Streak Longest Since 1909-10 Era

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Coach Carmen Cozza has moved Yale football from one of the low points in the school's proud gridiron history to the longest victory streak Yale has had since 1909-10.

The onetime quarterback-defensive back at Miami of Ohio saw one of Yale's longest football streaks broken in his first game as head coach in 1965. Now he's the first Yale coach to win 14 consecutive games since the days of bare-headed football, when touchdowns were worth only five points.

In his head-coaching debut against the University of Connecticut, the 1965 Yale team lost 13-6, snapping a string of 86 consecutive victories by Yale over other Connecticut college teams.

Now atop the Ivy League with a chance for its first perfect season since 1960, Yale has been transformed from a squad noted for tough defense to one that is averaging 36 points per game in the 6-0 record so far.

Key to the switch is the magic touch of senior quarterback and team captain Brian Dowling. The balding, 36-year-old Cozza and Dowling both came to Yale from suburbs of Cleveland. Cozza left Parma, Ohio, to become a 60-minute-per-game player at Miami of Ohio, where he set a pass interception record that still stands.

Dowling, from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, was sought by some 100 colleges. He chose Yale after his late father, a steel company president, told Brian to "go first class."

Things have been first class ever since for Yale football. The Elis haven't lost when the 6-foot-3, 195-pound Dowling was available to play. All of the team's defeats in 1966 and in the first game of 1967 came with Dowling sidelined by injuries.

This season Yale is primarily a running team, with fast, powerful seniors such as Calvin Hill and Bob Levin operating behind a wall of experienced blockers.

Dowling has thrown only 101 times, which is just 19 per cent of Yale's offensive plays. But he's completed 59 for 1,064 yards—and that's 37 per cent of the yards Yale has gained.

Last Saturday Dowling's 324 yards passing and running broke Yale's total offense record as the Bulldogs routed Dartmouth 47-27. His 24 touchdown passes, in only 14 games, is a Yale career mark.

The fact that Dartmouth scored 27 points calls attention to Cozza's main worry—a defense that has suffered injuries. The current starters at defensive end weigh only 175 pounds each.

"We move around a lot on defense so the other team can't tell what we're up to," Cozza says.

Yale has been forced to "shoot all our guns at once," Cozza says, in an attempt to get ahead early in every game it has played.

"If we're ahead we force the other team into a gambling situation. Brian has been the perfect man for the job. He gets us ahead and he's kept us there whether the defense has held up or not," Cozza says.

Kentucky Coaching Job Sought By Many

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky already has received at least a dozen applications for the head football coaching job which Charlie Bradshaw is giving up at the end of the season.

Harry Lancaster, acting athletic director, says the list contains some well known names, adding that no deadline has been set for obtaining a replacement.

East German Home After All

BERLIN (AP) — Horst Koehler, East German dressage champion, returned home today and denied reports he had planned to stay in the West after the Olympic Games, the official East German news agency ADN said.

Informed sources said yesterday that Koehler, who placed fifth in the Olympic dressage competition Saturday, had decided to remain in the West.

Tamalpais Fullback Hector Gains Stature In The Mud

He's Picked As I-J Grid Prep Of Week

For San Rafael High School it was another dreary loss of missed opportunities; for rejuvenated Tamalpais High School of Mill Valley, it was another step toward a winning season in a 12-6, rain-muddy, windy-cold victory with several hundred unpaid seagulls attending.

Earthshaking or not, there was Dave Hector, big smile on his face, a thick coat of dripping mud obscuring face, number and shoelaces, running in abandon toward the nearest mud puddle and rolling in it in sheer goofy delight. And pretty soon, quarterback Don Mackin jumped in and frolicked.

126 YARDS

Hector should have been happy. He had sloshed, ripped, faked, skidded, and dug out 126 yards on a turf right out of a bad jungle movie. If you'd make cement imprints of every indentation on San Rafael's field, you could probably get a composite of David Hector, including a set of feet in the end zone.

Hector, "little" brother of coach Willie Hector, amassed the yardage on 21 carries, romped off on a twisting run of 35 yards to the one-yard line to set up one touchdown and slpashed in to score another touchdown while putting in a whole tough game at defensive end. It was an Independent-Journal Prep of the Week performance.

CLASSIC

Hector looks and runs something like the classic fullback, a knock-em-down, rambling blaster, but he has quite a few good moves when he gets out in the open that resemble classic halfback shifts more than, say, Jim Brown.

"You can't always run right over everybody," he said. "Which just goes to show you that a fullback CAN run around people."

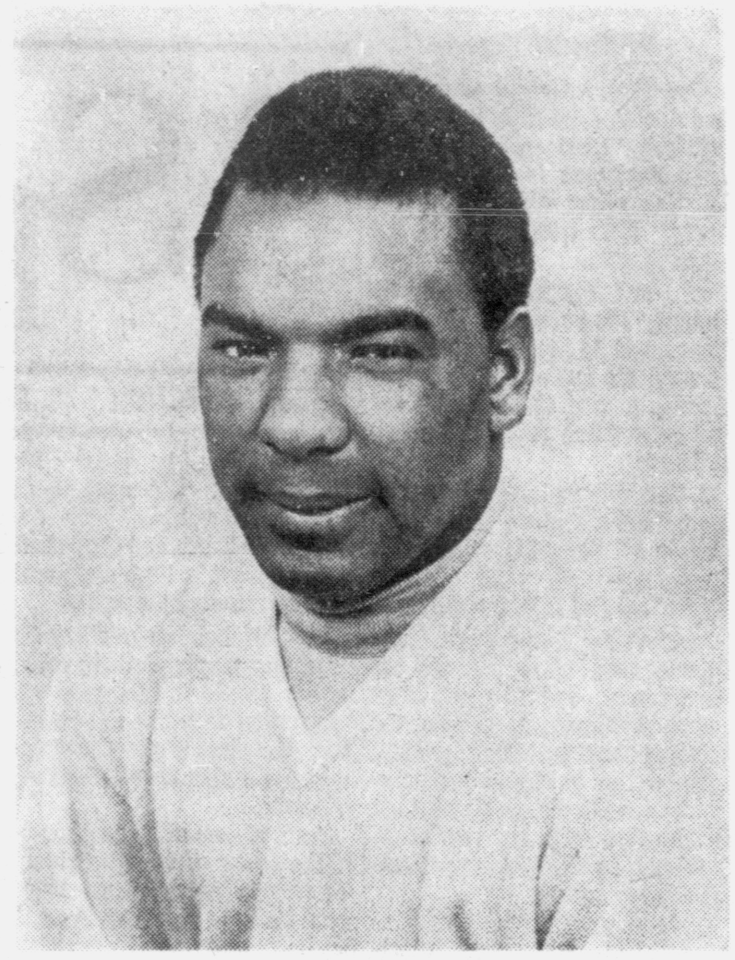
He might make all-league, he might not, but whatever happens, it probably won't affect him all that much. He's a fellow that knows how to enjoy things. Like mountain-climbing, of which he says "you never really know the feeling until you've tried it." . . . or like rolling, laughing in the mud after a football victory.



HE'S NO. 1—Dave Hector of Mill Valley's Tamalpais High is Prep of the Week, as selected by the sports staff of the Independent-Journal. (Independent-Journal photo)

Lamonica Skips Raider Practice

"It's a charley horse, just above the joint." Lamonica said yesterday. "But the swelling is disappearling and I still think I'll play this week."

George Blanda, Cotton Dayidson and rookie Eldridge Dickey have been working out at quarterback, but Dapidson has not been activated from the taxi squad.

Mercer Tries For Packers' Kicking Job

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Mike Mercer, who kicked for Kansas City when the Chiefs bowed to the Packers 35-10 in the first Super Bowl, was in Green Bay yesterday — looking for a job.

"I think he can do the job," said Packer Coach Phil Bengtson after watching Mercer kick field goals on the rain soaked practice field. "He looked pretty good."

The 32-year-old veteran has kicked for four teams, in both the National and American Football Leagues.

He was drafted by the NFL's Minnesota Vikings in 1961 but was dropped. He also had kicked for Oakland, Buffalo and Kansas City in the AFL.

But Mercer may not get the job. Jerry Kramer, the guard who was Green Bay's kicker when the season started, has been place kicking for the first time since injuring his knee Oct. 20 and looks pretty good, Bengtson said.

Cardinals Just Keep Hitting Home Runs

NIIGATA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals kept up their home run barrage—belting four more out of the park—and held the Yomiuri Giants to just two hits today, scoring an 8-1 victory.

Two two-run homers by Curt Flood and one each by Mike Shannon and Lou Brock accounted for all the Cardinal runs. The National League baseball champions have hit nine home runs in their last two games.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton held the Japanese champion Giants scoreless for four innings and reliever Mike Torrez, who was credited with the victory, gave up only two hits, including a home run by Yomiuri catcher Makoto Tsuchida.

Yale Football Win Streak Longest Since 1909-10 Era

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Coach Carmen Cozza has moved Yale football from one of the low points in the school's proud gridiron history to the longest victory streak Yale has had since 1909-10.

The onetime quarterback-defensive back at Miami of Ohio saw one of Yale's longest football streaks broken in his first game as head coach in 1965. Now he's the first Yale coach to win 14 consecutive games since the days of bare-headed football, when touchdowns were worth only five points.

In his head-coaching debut against the University of Connecticut, the 1965 Yale team lost 13-6, snapping a string of 86 consecutive victories by Yale over other Connecticut college teams.

Now atop the Ivy League with a chance for its first perfect season since 1960, Yale has been transformed from a squad noted for tough defense to one that is averaging 36 points per game in the 6-0 record so far.

Key to the switch is the magic touch of senior quarterback and team captain Brian Dowling. The balding, 36-year-old Cozza and Dowling both came to Yale from suburbs of Cleveland. Cozza left Parma, Ohio, to become a 60-minute-per-game player at Miami of Ohio, where he set a pass interception record that still stands.

Dowling, from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, was sought by some 100 colleges. He chose Yale after his late father, a steel company president, told Brian to "go first class."

Things have been first class ever since for Yale football. The Elis haven't lost when the 6-foot-3, 195-pound Dowling was available to play. All of the team's defeats in 1966 and in the first game of 1967 came with Dowling sidelined by injuries.

This season Yale is primarily a running team, with fast, powerful seniors such as Calvin Hill and Bob Levin operating behind a wall of experienced blockers.

Dowling has thrown only 101 times, which is just 19 per cent of Yale's offensive plays. But he's completed 59 for 1,064 yards—and that's 37 per cent of the yards Yale has gained.

Last Saturday Dowling's 324 yards passing and running broke Yale's total offense record as the Bulldogs routed Dartmouth 47-27. His 24 touchdown passes, in only 14 games, is a Yale career mark.

The fact that Dartmouth scored 27 points calls attention to Cozza's main worry—a defense that has suffered injuries. The current starters at defensive end weigh only 175 pounds each.

"We move around a lot on defense so the other team can't tell what we're up to," Cozza says.

Yale has been forced to "shoot all our guns at once," Cozza says, in an attempt to get ahead early in every game it has played.

"If we're ahead we force the other team into a gambling situation. Brian has been the perfect man for the job. He gets us ahead and he's kept us there whether the defense has held up or not," Cozza says.

Kentucky Coaching Job Sought By Many

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky already has received at least a dozen applications for the head football coaching job which Charlie Bradshaw is giving up at the end of the season.

Harry Lancaster, acting athletic director, says the list contains some well known names, adding that no deadline has been set for obtaining a replacement.

Watch Out For Saban And His Denver Broncs

OAKLAND — American Football League fans (there are several in Oakland alone) are quite thrilled about the tight race for the Western Division championship of the second-rate circuit.

Just when everyone expected the Raiders to run away with the division title, along came Kansas City and San Diego to complicate things — not to mention provide sellout crowds the rest of the year in, of all places, Kansas City, San Diego and Oakland.

Those with their ear to the AFL ground (an out-and-out menace to the aural nerve) suggest that San Diego can be discounted as a title threat. They must still play K.C., the Raiders and New York, supposedly the only teams in the league capable of an above-average performance.

YET BOTH Oakland and Kansas City are hampered by hurts to their quarterbacks. Lord knows when Daryle Lamonica and Leonard Dawson will once again be fit to fling the pigskin mightily, or whatever.

Gee whiz but it's gonna be close. Or is it?

Overlooked in the tingling suspense over the K.C.-San Diego-Oakland title tiff is the existence of yet another Western Division team — the Denver Broncos. Actually, millions of Americans overlook the existence of ANY football team in Denver, or possibly Denver itself.

WERE DENVER not surrounded by topographic beauty, it wouldn't matter a bit, save for the habitation there of a tabloid daily newspaper, a curiosity west of the Merchandise Mart.

Denver has always been fine for minor league baseball. After all, the Twins sent Billy Martin to managerial prep school there.

There also is a suburb sporting a face on a barroom floor. Otherwise, forget it.

That's why the Broncos must win the AFL West this year. Denver needs it, much as Oakland desperately had to have a football title last year. Cities depend now on their teams not their people for emotional sustenance.

THE BRONCOS have always been terrible in the AFL. Then they decided to lure Lou Saban out of the college ranks, to which he'd been driven by the insanity of coaching AFL stuff in Buffalo.

Saban was supposed to build something out of the Denver gridiron holocaust. Lotsa luck.

But all of a sudden everything has jelled for Denver and kind of fallen into a stalemate for San Diego, K.C. and Oakland. If there were ever a year for the likes of Steve Tensi, that unforgettable quarterback, and running back Floyd Little, the pride of Syracuse U., to topple the titans, '68 seems it.

DENVER CAN start that march to the top on Sunday with a victory over the Raiders. Then they can beat Oakland later on in the season at the Coliseum. The Broncs can also knock off K.C. and San Diego in single games — and of course win all other tilts in their schedule.

This would leave Denver with only four losses on the year. The Raiders too would have four. Figuring that K.C. and San Diego will each lose one more (the Chiefs to San Diego and San Diego to Oakland), that creates a four-way tie in the West's final standings.

THE BRONCOS most certainly appear on their way to Miami and a Superbowl meeting with Dallas — sometime in late February, of course, after the elongated AFL playoffis.

And why shouldn't Steve Tensi have every right in the world to be in the Super Bowl? He should live and be well.

ABA All-Star Game In Miami?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — George Mikan, American Basketball Association commissioner, said yesterday the new league may hold its second annual All-Star Game at Convention Hall here.

"Several other towns—primarily Louisville—want the game this year," Mikan said. "But the enthusiasm I see here leads me to believe it would be wise to put the game in here. Maybe around Jan. 28, or maybe a little later."

Mikan said he would promote a Miami Beach All-Star Game with the league's board of directors.

Seals May Move Back To 'Palace'

OAKLAND (UPI) — The possibility the Oakland Seals might move across the bay to San Francisco's Cow Palace was revealed yesterday by Frank Selke Jr., general manager of the National Hockey League team.

In an interview with a local television station (KBHK), Selke said, "If we can't improve our attendance (in the Oakland Coliseum Arena), we have to look at the Cow Palace."

The Seals, now in their second NHL season and among the top teams in the Western Division, has drawn an average of 4,000 fans in Oakland's two-year-old arena which holds more than 12,000 persons.

POSSIBLE

"It's safe to say if the Seals were to draw in games over there (five games are scheduled for the Cow Palace), we would have to reassess the entire Bay Area picture, depending on what we do in attendance the rest of the season in Oakland," Selke said.

One of the major objections of playing in the Cow Palace by league fathers was that the rink was too small—it is 15 feet short of standard NHL arenas.

But, Selke said, "There isn't any question a hockey team could get by very comfortably there."

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Just before the Minnesota Classic, pro Mac McLendon bought three golf balls for $1 in a hole-in-one contest. He sank his second shot and won an automobile.

Brewer's 67 Tops Australian Golf

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Gay Brewer Jr., of Dallas, the 1967 U.S. Masters champion, fired a six-under-par 67 today for the opening round lead in the Wills Masters Golf Tournament.

The Texas professional had a one-stroke edge over Peter Thomson of Australia, five-time winner of the British Open, with three other players another shot back at 69.

Tied at 69 were Gary Player of South Africa, Peter Townsend of Britain and John Newton of Australia. Guy Wolstenholme of Britain followed with a 70.

ABA All-Star Game In Miami?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — George Mikan, American Basketball Association commissioner, said yesterday the new league may hold its second annual All-Star Game at Convention Hall here.

"Several other towns—primarily Louisville—want the game this year," Mikan said. "But the enthusiasm I see here leads me to believe it would be wise to put the game in here. Maybe around Jan. 28, or maybe a little later."

Mikan said he would promote a Miami Beach All-Star Game with the league's board of directors.

More Than Just Age Needed To Get Free Fishing License

STEVENS

A senior citizen (aged 71) asks if he is eligible for a free fishing license, and just what are the requirements to get one.

In the first place, age alone doesn't qualify a person for a free fishing license. He must be over 65, or 62 if a woman, a resident of California for the last five years, must be receiving aid to the aged under the Old Age Security law (not federal Social Security), and his total income must be under $140 per month is he is single.

"Income" includes salaries, pensions, interest, rents and other forms of income. If he can meet the above requirements, a fishing license will be issued free.

THE LICENSES are valid only for ocean fishing, but may be validated for inland fishing by the purchase of the proper $1 license stamps, two of which are necessary for trout fishing.

Persons receiving aid to the aged and who desire a free fishing license may obatin an application from their county welfare officer. Persons who are not receiving such aid but who meet the other requirements may obtain an application from the License Section, Department of Fish and Game, 1416 Ninth Street, Sacramento, 95814.

GOOD NEWS OF fishing the Klamath River, especially in the Happy Camp area. The report from Jim Roads, Klamath River Guide Service, reads: "Happy Camp Area: First good run of steelhead in the Happy Camp Area now. We took fish up to 8 pounds with limits or near limits on an 11-mile float trip; turned back steelhead of 4-5 pounds. A good storm has moved into the area which will also bring more fish upstream on the Klamath River.

"Have hooked several silver salmon (the first return of these from a plant a few years ago) up to 18 pounds."

An 18 pound silver salmon is a definite trophy fish. Seldom does a silver salmon attain a weight over 15-16 pounds.

STRIPER STRIVING locally remains unchaged. Both salmon and bass might be classified as spotty. Ditto in the back country. With cooler nights the bass are hitting a bit better. Catfishing has certainly improved and sturgeon fishing has held the spotlight this past week.

Most sturgeon have been lured by shrimp baits, which have also taken stripers.

Scoring Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bradley, former Princeton all-American, holds the single game scoring record in an NCAA championship basketball tournament when he threw in 58 points in the Tigers' 118-82 win over Wichita in 1965.

Pheasant Season Nearing

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

California's general pheasant season begins Saturday, Nov. 23. An army of shotgun addicts numbering close to 250,000 is expected to head afield in search of the gaudy roosters, imported nearly a century ago from the Orient.

While the birds are reckoned in fine supply in both major valleys virtually all the better hunting areas are located on private property.

If you haven't got a farmer or a rancher for a relative or a friend your best bet will probably be one of the 17 state and federal areas that will be open to the general public during the 16-day season.

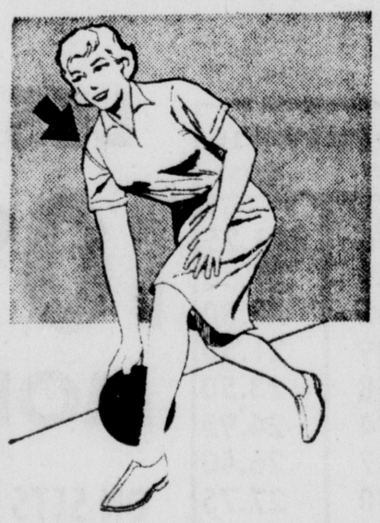
The Department of Fish and Game will operate three cooperative pheasant areas at Grimes, Colusa County; Tyer Island, Sacramento County, and Staten Island in San Joaquin County.

Five state wildlife areas — Honey Lake, Gray Lodge, Grizzly Island, Los Banos and Mendota—will also be open to pheasant shooters, although Honey Lake in Lassen County will be restricted to the waterfowl shooting days of Wednesday, Saturdays and Sundays.

Pheasant hunting also will be allowed on waterfowl shootdays on the Colusa, Delevan, Merced, Sacramento, San Luis and Sutter National wildlife refuges throughout the ringneck season. In addition the 1,160 acres of the San Luis National Wildlife Refuge will permit public hunting on Nov. 25, 26 and 29.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Perhaps it is because they are overcome by the weight of the ball, but many women bowlers are guilty of allowing the right shoulder to move too low at the release (illustrated). Such an error will usually cause the ball to miss to the left. Make it a point to keep your shoulders as level as possible at all times during the delivery and release.

Bullets Must Be For Real

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If an election were held today for the most surprising team in the National Basketball Association, the Baltimore Bullets would win hands down.

After five years of finishing in the depths of the Eastern Division, the Bullets have suddenly sprouted into a contender, and they picked up a few more votes last night with a rousing 140-119 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

FIFTH

The triumph was the fifth in a row for the Bullets, tying their longest winning streak since they returned to the NBA six years ago, and was also their ninth victory in 12 outings.

Only Cincinnati's 133-122 decision over the Chicago Bulls kept the Bullets from jumping into first place as they stand only 28 percentage points behind the 7-2 Royals and remained tied with the 6-2 Boston Celtics.

In the American Basketball Association, New Orleans defeated Miami 123-109, Denver defeated Indiana 109-107 in overtime, Kentucky crushed Minnesota 131-112, and Los Angeles overhauled Dallas 123-117.

UNSELD

The addition of rookie center Wes Unseld to compliment Earl Monroe has made the difference in Baltimore and they scored 22 and 29 points respectively along with 24 by Kevin Loughery against the Hawks. But it was Leroy Ellis and Ray Scott who led a 49-point fourth quarter surge that moved them from a 12-point deficit in the third period to a 104-90 lead.

Ellis hit all his 15 points and Scott 10 of his 14 in the final half.

BREEZE

Jerry Lucas and Tom Van Arsdale shot Cincinnati into a 69-42 lead in the first half and Oscar Robertson added 31 points as the Royals breezed.

Detroit won for the fifth time in six starts as its exploded from a 111-111 tie in the final period behind Dave Bing, who finished with 37.

Seattle Coach Al Bianchi drew three straight technical fouls and was ejected along with center Bob Rule.

Elgin Baylor's 33 points as Los Angeles broke open a tight game in the final period. Wayne Embry had 30 points for the Bucks.

Weekend Preview Scheduled For Import, Antiques Firm

A new imports, antiques and auction house will open at 810 B Street, San Rafael — with a public preview on Saturday and Sunday.

John Filipello and his wife, who have operated in Sonoma for about eight years, have leased space formerly occupied by Ripple Date Gardens through John Manzone and Gabriel Lehrer of Tamarin Realty Associates, Inc. They will call the business Filipello and Filipello.

Auctions will be held starting on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

WICKES LUMBER AND SUPPLY CO., which has an outlet at 5400 Old Redwood Highway, Petaluma, plans on entering the industrialized housing field. Additional products and supplies for builders and contractors will be sold through the company's retail stores such as the one in Petaluma.

ROBERT C. KANYUCK of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president of Redwood National Bank — a newly created post in the installment loan department at San Rafael headquarters. He has been with the bank for three years.

ROBERT H. LUCHESE of Novato has been appointed assistant controller at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co. He joined the company in 1958 as an assistant statistician at New York City and later joined the staff of the assistant controller there. He transferred to San Francisco in 1964 and for the past two years has been chief accountant at this office.

JOHN N. RADOVICH of Mill Valley is $845 richer this month as a result of winning a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. suggestion plan award. His idea was for using a computer to facilitate cost estimates on construction costs by compiling records of past experience on various types of work and running statistical analyses on the information.

FRED RUDOW of San Rafael has been promoted to the newly created position of manager of corporate planning for Foremost-McKesson, Inc. of San Francisco. He has been manager of internal audit. Before joining the company in 1965 he was director of internal audit for Rexall Drug and Chemical Co., Los Angeles, for three years.

Terra Linda resident and past Vallecito Parents and Teachers Association president Vincent Traina has joined the Frank Howard Allen office in San Rafael. He was formerly with John Reynolds Realty and has been in real estate for many years. . . . Also Vernon F. Wilson of Peacock Gap has joined Allen's Kentfield office. Prior to coming to the Bay Area two years ago he was with a building materials firm in New Jersey and in real estate in New Jersey and Florida.

Brown Shoe Co. Earnings Climb

ST. LOUIS (BW) — Brown Shoe Co. has declared a quarterly dividend of 37.5 cents per share, payable Dec. 2 to shareholders of record Nov. 15.

The board's action places the dividend at an annual rate of $1.50. The rate was increased to $1.30 last year and was again increased to $1.40 in June 1968. Brown has increased its dividend rate each year for 10 consecutive years.

Yule Club Checks Total $786,921

Bank of America Christmas Club checks to Marin County residents will total $786,921 when they are distributed this month.

Leroy Rudolph, vice president and manager of the San Rafael main office, said this compares with $731,529 in last year's local savings. The number of account holders is 3,609 this year, compared with 3,645 in 1967. He said the checks will be distributed in time for the holiday shopping season.

Market On Plus Side At Closing

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed today with increasing selective strength, although losses still outnumbered gains. Trading became more active.

Strength by a key blue chip, Johns-Manville, helped the industrial average climb back from the losing column.

Selling pressure eased and traders gradually began to buy as the market rallied from its lows. No particular news was connected with the improvement.

Prices near the close included:

Steels were generally lower as U.S. Steel followed other companies in announcing price cuts for hot-rolled sheets. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem lost about a point each.

The decline on average was cushioned by an upsurge of half a dozen points by Johns-Manville, a key blue chip. Wall Street sources talked of the company's previously announced uranium find in Canada.

Kayser-Roth, up about 3, also was very active as it continued to respond to the break-off of merger talks with Penn Central which dropped about a point in quieter trading.

Grumman was heavily traded and up 1½. Analysts said the company was helped by Nixon's strong statements on defense.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

International Paper Prospects Improving

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. During this period of inflation, should I invest some of my $38,000 savings? I am living on Social Security and own 100 shares of International Paper. I would appreciate your opinion on this company also. — G. P.

A. A recent decision to enter the field of disposable health-care products has strengthened International Paper's long-term outlook. Marketing of this new line of nonwoven fiber products will be facilitated by the planned acquisition of Davol, Inc., a manufacturer of professional and consumer medical products.

Nine-month earnings showed a moderate gain and full-year results should be well ahead of the $2.03 a share of 1967.

Your obvious uneasiness about your savings is well founded, with inflation in just the last two years cutting the spending power of $1 to 92 cents. Investing at least half your savings in conservative blue-chip issues would allow your capital a better opportunity for keeping pace with the economy.

Q. I have held American Electronic Laboratories for several years and have an excellent profit. The price drop and subsequent sideways action has left me wondering if I should take profits now. — N. G.

A. I see no reason to sell. Sales and earnings for the fiscal nine months through August were up significantly. Full-year earnings could reach 65 cents a share on sales of $24 million, if he current level of gain is maintained in the final quarter.

Several areas of the company's commercial business hold great promise: micro-circuitry, CATV equipment and medical electronic devices. Because government contracts account for 80 per cent of volume — divided between hardware and research — there is an element of risk in AEL.

With backlog now at $26 million and new order inflow at a good level, American Electronic Labs should continue to expand its uptrending sales record. Shares are trading at about 38x estimated 1968 earnings, rather high but not out of line with its group.

Bethelehem Steel Declares Dividend

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (BW) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has reported net income for the third quarter of 1968 at $21,738,000, equivalent to 49 cents per common share, compared to $23,158,000, or 50 cents a share in the same 1967 period.

At the same time directors declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 12.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Weekend Preview Scheduled For Import, Antiques Firm

A new imports, antiques and auction house will open at 810 B Street, San Rafael — with a public preview on Saturday and Sunday.

John Filipelio and his wife, who have operated in Sonoma for about eight years, have leased space formerly occupied by Ripple Date Gardens through John Manzone and Gabriel Lehrer of Tamarin Realty Associates, Inc. They will call the business Filipello and Filipello.

Auctions will be held starting on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

WICKES LUMBER AND SUPPLY CO., which has an outlet at 5400 Old Redwood Highway, Petaluma, plans on entering the industrialized housing field. Additional products and supplies for builders and contractors will be sold through the company's retail stores such as the one in Petaluma.

ROBERT C. KANYUCK of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president of Redwood National Bank — a newly created post in the installment loan department at San Rafael headquarters. He has been with the bank for three years.

ROBERT H. LUCHESE of Novato has been appointed assistant controller at the San Francisco home office of Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co. He joined the company in 1958 as an assistant statistician at New York City and later joined the staff of the assistant controller there. He transferred to San Francisco in 1964 and for the past two years has been chief accountant at this office.

JOHN N. RADOVICH of Mill Valley is $845 richer this month as a result of winning a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. suggestion plan award. His idea was for using a computer to facilitate cost estimates on construction costs by compiling records of past experience on various types of work and running statistical analyses on the information.

FRED RUDOW of San Rafael has been promoted to the newly created position of manager of corporate planning for Foremost-McKesson, Inc. of San Francisco. He has been manager of internal audit. Before joining the company in 1965 he was director of internal audit for Rexall Drug and Chemical Co., Los Angeles, for three years.

Terra Linda resident and past Vallecito Parents and Teachers Association president Vincent Traina has joined the Frank Howard Allen office in San Rafael. He was formerly with John Reynolds Realty and has been in real estate for many years. . . . Also Vernon F. Wilson of Peacock Gap has joined Allen's Kentfield office. Prior to coming to the Bay Area two years ago he was with a building materials firm in New Jersey and in real estate in New Jersey and Florida.

Brown Shoe Co. Earnings Climb

ST. LOUIS (BW) — Brown Shoe Co. has declared a quarterly dividend of 37.5 cents per share, payable Dec. 2 to shareholders of record Nov. 15.

The board's action places the dividend at an annual rate of $1.50. The rate was increased to $1.30 last year and was again increased to $1.40 in June 1968. Brown has increased its dividend rate each year for 10 consecutive years.

Yule Club Checks Total $786,921

Bank of America Christmas Club checks to Marin County residents will total $786,921 when they are distributed this month.

Leroy Rudolph, vice president and manager of the San Rafael main office, said this compares with $731,529 in last year's local savings. The number of account holders is 3,609 this year, compared with 3,645 in 1967. He said the checks will be distributed in time for the holiday shopping season.

Market On Plus Side At Closing

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed today with increasing selective strength, although losses still outnumbered gains. Trading became more active.

Strength by a key blue chip, Johns-Manville, helped the industrial average climb back from the losing column.

Selling pressure eased and traders gradually began to buy as the market rallied from its lows. No particular news was connected with the improvement.

Prices near the close included:

Steels were generally lower as U.S. Steel followed other companies in announcing price cuts for hot-rolled sheets. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem lost about a point each.

The decline on average was cushioned by an upsurge of half a dozen points by Johns-Manville, a key blue chip. Wall Street sources talked of the company's previously announced uranium find in Canada.

Kayser-Roth, up about 3, also was very active as it continued to respond to the break-off of merger talks with Penn Central which dropped about a point in quieter trading.

Grumman was heavily traded and up 1½. Analysts said the company was helped by Nixon's strong statements on defense.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

International Paper Prospects Improving

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. During this period of inflation, should I invest some of my $38,000 savings? I am living on Social Security and own 100 shares of International Paper. I would appreciate your opinion on this company also. — G. P.

A. A recent decision to enter the field of disposable health-care products has strengthened International Paper's long-term outlook. Marketing of this new line of nonwoven fiber products will be facilitated by the planned acquisition of Davol, Inc., a manufacturer of professional and consumer medical products.

Nine-month earnings showed a moderate gain and full-year results should be well ahead of the $2.03 a share of 1967.

Your obvious uneasiness about your savings is well founded, with inflation in just the last two years cutting the spending power of $1 to 92 cents. Investing at least half your savings in conservative blue-chip issues would allow your capital a better opportunity for keeping pace with the economy.

Q. I have held American Electronic Laboratories for several years and have an excellent profit. The price drop and subsequent sideways action has left me wondering if I should take profits now. — N. G.

A. I see no reason to sell. Sales and earnings for the fiscal nine months through August were up significantly. Full-year earnings could reach 65 cents a share on sales of $24 million, if he current level of gain is maintained in the final quarter.

Several areas of the company's commercial business hold great promise: micro-circuitry, CATV equipment and medical electronic devices. Because government contracts account for 80 per cent of volume — divided between hardware and research — there is an element of risk in AEL.

With backlog now at $26 million and new order inflow at a good level, American Electronic Labs should continue to expand its uptrending sales record. Shares are trading at about 38x estimated 1968 earnings, rather high but not out of line with its group.

Bethelehem Steel Declares Dividend

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (BW) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has reported net income for the third quarter of 1968 at $21,738,000, equivalent to 49 cents per common share, compared to $23,158,000, or 50 cents a share in the same 1967 period.

At the same time directors declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 12.

What Of Tomorrow's High School Students?

The San Rafael city schools administration is toying with the idea of turning San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools into "cluster schools." Board of education members seemed pleased with the notion at a special meeting at which it was discussed last Saturday.

To create the "cluster schools," some buildings would be remodeled, some changed in use, some new ones added. The result would be a sort of "school within a school" concept in which the student body would be divided into units of not more than 200 students each, although central facilities would be shared by all.

This "small group" concept was advanced by Aubrey Haan of Educational and Community Consultants and Planners, who formerly headed the school of education at San Francisco State College. The plans for its implementation were worked out by architects Richard C. Marshall and Chester Bowles Jr., employed by the city schools to plan future development of both high and elementary schools. A "feasibility study team" headed by Supt. John F. Plank participated in the study.

IN THE PRESENTATION, the study team and its consultants emphasized that both San Rafael and Terra Linda could be converted to the new concept at less than half the cost of building new schools. During Saturday's discussion, board member John C. Pfeiffer talked of a cost of $11 million to $12 million.

The report contained much language about designing schools "with reference to the problems of our time," etc. It held that high school students feel their education bears too little relationship to the real world, and that the "small group" concept, plus more orientation toward community participation and training in service skills, could help correct this.

The whole approach sounds interesting.

BUT IF YOU NOTICED something was missing — well, it was.

The $11 million to $12 million package would convert the present two high schools without expanding them. Each would still accommodate 2,000 students.

What about the additional students for whom the board of education has been discussing a third high school!?

Nothing about them.

IT SEEMS TO US that the San Rafael Board of Education should put first things first. The proposed plan might be a vast improvement over the present schools. But the present schools are operable. Curriculum revisions may be made with little or no building costs. Meantime, some provision needs to be made for the additional students who will soon reach high school age.

We suggest the "small groups" idea be tried for the third high school. Then, if it works as well as the proponents think it will, the citizens of the high school district might be willing to put up the additional $11 million or $12 million to put it into San Rafael and Terra Linda highs.

Let's not wind up with overcrowding and an impossible debt load for something that looks fine but may not be necessary — and may prove not very desirable.

What's In A Name?

To some of Marin's more scholarly gardeners, the scientific name of a shrub or plant is of vital importance. As they correctly note, common names vary from country to country, and even from place to place, making it impossible to convey reliable inofrmation through their use.

Many of our busy and devoted gardeners prefer the friendly and familiar sound of a common name. As one green-thrumber recently pointed out, it's a lot easier and more fun to say Toyon or Christmas berry tree than it is to try to pronounce hetermeles arbutifolia.

One couple of diligent gardeners even have fun with the common names of their plants, changing them in order, as they smilingly say, to keep in step with modern semantics. For example, pampas grass achieves such a size in Marin they have renamed it pompous grass. California Tapping Further Gas Supplies From Far Away

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Over the years, it has been necessary for California to import natural gas to keep up with industrial progress and the tremendous increase in population.

This fuel for home and industry is piped into the state from great distances, Canada and Texas, and the amount used is staggering to the imagination.

PACIFIC GAS and Electric Co. alone, which serves northern and central California, announced recently it is installing new compressor facilities which will cost $11.2 million. These will be on two major pipelines and will handle increased volumes of out-of-state natural gas approved for delivery by the Federal Power Commission.

The FPC approved delivery of 200 million cubic feet of additional gas daily from Canadian sources by Pacific Gas Transmission Co., and 103 million cubic feet daily from fields in the southwest operated by El Paso Natural Gas Co.

These new supplies, according to Shermer L. Sibley, president of Pacific Gas and Electric, will bring the company's average out-of-state gas imports to 815 million cubic feet daily from the Alberta-California pipeline, and 1.14 billion cubic feet daily from El Paso.

"These additional gas resources," Sibley said, "will provide for the growth of our customers' demands for the next several years."

In bolstering the system to supply more gas to customers, no additional pipelines will be laid, as the new compressors will increase the transmission capacity of the existing lines.

THE COMPANY will build a $5.6 million compressor station at Burney, in Shasta County, for the Canadian gas.

Compressor stations at Hinkley and Kettleman on the PG&E "superinch" pipeline reaching from the California-Arizona border to San Francisco Bay are being expanded, and these will handle the increased El Paso gas.

Considering the fact that importation of gas was developed as a supplement to the fields located in California, one can get a general idea of the magnitude of the operation.

(Reprinted from Riverside Press)

Two lame duck members of Congress, both defeated for renomination in their party primary, are getting in on one last junket abroad at taxpayer expense.

Sen. Edward Long, D-Mo., is in the middle of a two-month world tour that will take him to 19 countries. And Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill., left late last month for a month-long trip to Africa.

The ostensible purpose of congressional trips abroad is to gather information to make legislative recommendations. Even in normal times, too often the suspicion is that the members are enjoying a vacation.

In the cases of Senator Long and Representative O'Hara, however, it is an out-and-out boondoggle. They are not going to be in a position to make any recommendations which they could help implement. Congress has adjourned and neither man will be back when the new session convenes in January.

Apparently, their committee chairman authorized both men to make the tours, during which they will collect a $50-a-day allowance.

This business of giving departing members a final shot of congressional overseas largesse isn't anything new; but the precedent does not make it any more palatable. The practice ought to be outlawed.

If their colleagues want to give the lame-duck congressmen a farewell gift, let them pass the hat.

Five Laud Pose Of Two Sprinters

The black fists of sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos, held high in a symbol of value at the 1968 Olympic Games, were appropriate by our scale of values. Dignity begins first of all in the individual, and the "black fist" represents a call for all blacks to affirm their basic worth and their right to participate equally in American society. These two Americans reveal in their highest athletic moment that they have not forgotten their deepest commitment. The Americans who screamed that "they" have disgraced America, fail to see that they are the embodiment of American ideals — free men! Whether Smith and Carlos were looking up or down isn't the crucial point. What matters is that they know who they are and they want to help others to find themselves.

Conservation League Bay Stand Backed

Richardson Bay is one of the precious natural resources of Marin. All our citizens should have the maximum possible opportunity to see and use the bay. That is why the county master plan calls for a marina green — with pedestrian and bicycle paths, fishing and boating facilities — on the shore south of Richardson Bay Bridge.

The right place for convention facilities in Marin, as the master plan shows, is at the Civic Center. We can regulate houseboats and dredge the channel without changing Richardson Bay into a miniature Miami Beach. There would be some tax revenue from the Nowell hotel project, also many costs in additional public services. And the marina green plan would be gone forever!

Mrs. Mary Summers was one of the authors of the county master plan. Now she's fighting for its best features through the Marin Conservation League. She and the league deserve support.

Racism Charged In Book Removal

I am the parent of a student currently attending Vallecito Junior High School and the parent of a student who previously attended Vallecito and is now at Terra Linda High School.

I am not surprised but I am once again alarmed at this latest expression of a more subtle form of racism in our schools.

"Nigger," a book by Mr. Dick Gregory, acknowledged nationally as an important statement which can contribute to our better understanding of a most crucial problem, has been declared as unfit reading for junior high school students at Vallecito.

It has been consistently demonstrated in the Dixie District, by the elimination of current black-white problems as part of our curriculum, that we care very little, if at all, about educating our children to cope with the problems, in this area, they must eventually confront. . . .

I am confident that our students need and can very well handle the material presented in "Nigger." I am not so sure about Mr. Willis, our superintendent.

Cooperation Helps Bridge Experiment

The 90-day test of the one-way toll system on the Golden Gate Bridge has gotten off to a good start. The early and apparent success of this experiment has been due in large part to the high public cooperation. This cooperation was readily apparent from the beginning moment of the experiment.

Campaign Spending Goes Up, Up, Though Remedies Are Available

WASHINGTON — The pious talk and the pious proposals for putting an effective curb on campaign spending are conveniently forgotten when a presidential election rolls around. The orgy of spending just ended — it unquestionably set a record — suggests that we are nearer than we would like to think when an election can be swung by the sheer power of money.

The new element, the dominant element, is television. The Nixon camp is reported to have spent close to $15 million on television and radio alone. Because they were hard pressed for money at the start, the Humphrey managers were able to commit far less time in the critical wind-up period.

The federal statute governing campaign contributions is virtually meaningless. How meaningless is shown by the cavalier way in which the Nixon managers passed over the Oct. 26 deadline for filing reports of campaign receipts and expenditures under the Corrupt Practices Act. This insured that the voters would have no opportunity to learn the names of the Nixon contributors and how much they contributed prior to election day.

THE BIG spending is when the operators for the several candidates go into the marketplace and compete for prime television time. Those are the evening hours when the fattest profits accrue from sponsored programs that have lately come in for wide criticism for their stress on violence.

While television is the most conspicuous aspect of the spending orgy, it is only part of a system that has grown up with the money game tied into politics. The big contributors can shuffle their contributions in a variety of ways to get around the $5,000 limit imposed by the meaningless statute. The report filed by the Humphrey managers showed that 18 contributors gave or loaned $100,000 each, some upping this to $200,000.

SURELY NO ONE at this late date is naive enough to believe that the fat cats do not expect a return on their investment. There may be ardent partisans giving for the love of party. But time and again the rewards have been made evident after the returns are in. They come in an ambassadorship or some other fairly innocuous showy appointment. Far more important are the cash nexus and the regulatory agencies that rule on issues directly related to the big corporate contributors.

The Washington Post has shown how the executives of, say, a brokerage firm can be organized to make individual contributions and thereby circumvent the prohibition on direct corporate giving. Candidate Richard Nxion had assured the brokers in a letter intended to be private that his administration would see that the Securities and Exchange Commission took a more lenient view of the marketplace.

SPOKESMEN for the Democratic National Committee insist that all the reports required by law for the deadline of Oct. 26 were filed on time. They note that the law provides a penalty of one year in jail for failure to file and two years for wilful failure. Their big-money contributors made headlines.

Under pressure to make their lists available after the filing deadline, the Republicans replied that their staff was insufficient to do the job. Republican National Committee treasurer J. William Middendorf said the delay was due to a last-minute influx of contributions for a total of $300,000. The Nixon top campaign staff is made up almost entirely of members of the Nixon law firm who surely know the law on filing returns.

The real issue is not disclosure, but spending itself. Numerous remedies have been proposed over the years — and income tax deduction for small contributions, really meaningful restrictions on contributions, government financing for all or part of a campaign limited to three or four weeks. They are there if a new Congress cares to reflect on the biggest spending spree of all.

Liu Ouster Does Not Mean End Of China Rift

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

Mao Tse-tung appears to have won another round in the bitter power struggle raging within the Red Chinese hierarchy but it is only a round, and an end to the tortures which grip the Chinese mainland is not in sight.

The Chinese Communist news agency Hsinhua announced that a previously undisclosed meeting of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party formally had expelled President Liu Shao-chi from all party and other posts.

The announcement denouncing Liu as a "traitor, renegade and scab" marked the first time he had deen mentioned by name in a party declaration since the beginning of the party purge in 1966. previously he had been identified only as "China's Khrushchev."

IT WAS a victory for Mao at what appears to have been a rigged meeting of the Central Committee, packed with Mao's followers and its success assured by the presence of "responsible" leaders of the socalled revolutionary committees in the provinces and municipalities and of the army in whose hands Mao's fate now rests.

The story of the convulsions wracking Red China comes out but slowly.

Seemingly it began in 1966 with the announcement of Mao's cultural revolution.

Actually, it began in 1959 in the midst of chaos left by Mao's "great leap forward" and the organization of China's millions into thousands of huge communes in 1958.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT in 1959 declared that Mao was giving up his position as head of state to Liu Shao-chi in order that he might have greater freedom in party and state affairs.

Later Mao was to complain that Liu and his other arch-foe, Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Teng Hsiao Ping, "treated me as if I were their dead parent at a funeral."

"I was most dissatisfied with the decision," he said, "but there was nothing I could do about it."

In 1966, he made his move, using the army as his base and rampaging youthful Red Guards as his spearhead.

Lin Piao, Red Chinese defense minister, became his heir apparent and Liu Shao-chi, for nearly 30 years his chief lieutenant, first reduced in rank and then disgraced.

BUT THOUGH the formal action against Liu would suggest Mao no longer fears him politically, the battle still is far from over.

Presumably, Liu technically remains chief of state, since it is an elective post determined by the National's People's Congress which has not met since 1965.

Indicating continuing fear of violent opposition in the provinces was the failure to set a date for the ninth National Party Congress, now more than 10 years overdue.

Hong Kong analysts say Mao is unlikely to risk such a congress unless he can be sure of 100 per cent unity.

Government, in the last analysis, is organized opinion. Where there is little or no public opinion, there is likely to bef ound, so in the bosom of sooner or later becomes autocratic government. — W. L. Mackenzie King.

The ostensible purpose of congressional trips abroad is to gather information to make legislative recommendations. Even in normal times, too often the suspicion is that the members are enjoying a vacation.

In the cases of Senator Long and Representative O'Hara, however, it is an out-and-out boondoggle. They are not going to be in a position to make any recommendations which they could help implement. Congress has adjourned and neither man will be back when the new session convenes in January.

Apparently, their committee chairman authorized both men to make the tours, during which they will collect a $50-a-day allowance.

This business of giving departing members a final shot of congressional overseas largesse isn't anything new; but the precedent does not make it any more palatable. The practice ought to be outlawed.

Five Laud Pose Of Two Sprinters

The black fists of sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos, held high in a symbol of value at the 1968 Olympic Games, were appropriate by our scale of values. Dignity begins first of all in the individual, and the "black fist" represents a call for all blacks to affirm their basic worth and their right to participate equally in American society. These two Americans reveal in their highest athletic moment that they have not forgotten their deepest commitment. The Americans who screamed that "they" have disgraced America, fail to see that they are the embodiment of American ideals — free men! Whether Smith and Carlos were looking up or down isn't the crucial point. What matters is that they know who they are and they want to help others to find themselves.

Conservation League Bay Stand Backed

Richardson Bay is one of the precious natural resources of Marin. All our citizens should have the maximum possible opportunity to see and use the bay. That is why the county master plan calls for a marina green — with pedestrian and bicycle paths, fishing and boating facilities — on the shore south of Richardson Bay Bridge.

The right place for convention facilities in Marin, as the master plan shows, is at the Civic Center. We can regulate houseboats and dredge the channel without changing Richardson Bay into a miniature Miami Beach. There would be some tax revenue from the Nowell hotel project, also many costs in additional public services. And the marina green plan would be gone forever!

Mrs. Mary Summers was one of the authors of the county master plan. Now she's fighting for its best features through the Marin Conservation League. She and the league deserve support.

Racism Charged In Book Removal

I am the parent of a student currently attending Vallecito Junior High School and the parent of a student who previously attended Vallecito and is now at Terra Linda High School.

I am not surprised but I am once again alarmed at this latest expression of a more subtle form of racism in our schools.

"Nigger," a book by Mr. Dick Gregory, acknowledged nationally as an important statement which can contribute to our better understanding of a most crucial problem, has been declared as unfit reading for junior high school students at Vallecito.

It has been consistently demonstrated in the Dixie District, by the elimination of current black-white problems as part of our curriculum, that we care very little, if at all, about educating our children to cope with the problems, in this area, they must eventually confront. . . .

I am confident that our students need and can very well handle the material presented in "Nigger." I am not so sure about Mr. Willis, our superintendent.

Please be advised that I am considering terminating my home subscription to your newspaper. I am most disturbed by an increasing tendency toward sensational press evidenced by the Independent-Journal. Cooperation Helps Bridge Experiment

The 90-day test of the one-way toll system on the Golden Gate Bridge has gotten off to a good start. The early and apparent success of this experiment has been due in large part to the high public cooperation. This cooperation was readily apparent from the beginning moment of the experiment.

Everyone here at the bridge is deeply appreciative of the help received from you and your staff. Let me say "thank you" on behalf of all of us here at the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Campaign Spending Goes Up, Up, Though Remedies Are Available

WASHINGTON — The pious talk and the pious proposals for putting an effective curb on campaign spending are conveniently forgotten when a presidential election rolls around. The orgy of spending just ended — it unquestionably set a record — suggests that we are nearer than we would like to think when an election can be swung by the sheer power of money.

The new element, the dominant element, is television. The Nixon camp is reported to have spent close to $15 million on television and radio alone. Because they were hard pressed for money at the start, the Humphrey managers were able to commit far less time in the critical wind-up period.

The federal statute governing campaign contributions is virtually meaningless. How meaningless is shown by the cavalier way in which the Nixon managers passed over the Oct. 26 deadline for filing reports of campaign receipts and expenditures under the Corrupt Practices Act. This insured that the voters would have no opportunity to learn the names of the Nixon contributors and how much they contributed prior to election day.

THE BIG spending is when the operators for the several candidates go into the marketplace and compete for prime television time. Those are the evening hours when the fattest profits accrue from sponsored programs that have lately come in for wide criticism for their stress on violence.

While television is the most conspicuous aspect of the spending orgy, it is only part of a system that has grown up with the money game tied into politics. The big contributors can shuffle their contributions in a variety of ways to get around the $5,000 limit imposed by the meaningless statute. The report filed by the Humphrey managers showed that 18 contributors gave or loaned $100,000 each, some upping this to $200,000.

SURELY NO ONE at this late date is naive enough to believe that the fat cats do not expect a return on their investment. There may be ardent partisans giving for the love of party. But time and again the rewards have been made evident after the returns are in. They come in an ambassadorship or some other fairly innocuous showy appointment. Far more important are the cash nexus and the regulatory agencies that rule on issues directly related to the big corporate contributors.

The Washington Post has shown how the executives of, say, a brokerage firm can be organized to make individual contributions and thereby circumvent the prohibition on direct corporate giving. Candidate Richard Nxion had assured the brokers in a letter intended to be private that his administration would see that the Securities and Exchange Commission took a more lenient view of the marketplace.

SPOKESMEN for the Democratic National Committee insist that all the reports required by law for the deadline of Oct. 26 were filed on time. They note that the law provides a penalty of one year in jail for failure to file and two years for wilful failure. Their big-money contributors made headlines.

Under pressure to make their lists available after the filing deadline, the Republicans replied that their staff was insufficient to do the job. Republican National Committee treasurer J. William Middendorf said the delay was due to a last-minute influx of contributions for a total of $300,000. The Nixon top campaign staff is made up almost entirely of members of the Nixon law firm who surely know the law on filing returns.

The real issue is not disclosure, but spending itself. Numerous remedies have been proposed over the years — and income tax deduction for small contributions, really meaningful restrictions on contributions, government financing for all or part of a campaign limited to three or four weeks. They are there if a new Congress cares to reflect on the biggest spending spree of all.

Liu Ouster Does Not Mean End Of China Rift

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

Mao Tse-tung appears to have won another round in the bitter power struggle raging within the Red Chinese hierarchy but it is only a round, and an end to the tortures which grip the Chinese mainland is not in sight.

The Chinese Communist news agency Hsinhua announced that a previously undisclosed meeting of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party formally had expelled President Liu Shao-chi from all party and other posts.

The announcement denouncing Liu as a "traitor, renegade and scab" marked the first time he had deen mentioned by name in a party declaration since the beginning of the party purge in 1966. previously he had been identified only as "China's Khrushchev."

IT WAS a victory for Mao at what appears to have been a rigged meeting of the Central Committee, packed with Mao's followers and its success assured by the presence of "responsible" leaders of the socalled revolutionary committees in the provinces and municipalities and of the army in whose hands Mao's fate now rests.

The story of the convulsions wracking Red China comes out but slowly.

Seemingly it began in 1966 with the announcement of Mao's cultural revolution.

Actually, it began in 1959 in the midst of chaos left by Mao's "great leap forward" and the organization of China's millions into thousands of huge communes in 1958.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT in 1959 declared that Mao was giving up his position as head of state to Liu Shao-chi in order that he might have greater freedom in party and state affairs.

Later Mao was to complain that Liu and his other arch-foe, Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Teng Hsiao Ping, "treated me as if I were their dead parent at a funeral."

"I was most dissatisfied with the decision," he said, "but there was nothing I could do about it."

In 1966, he made his move, using the army as his base and rampaging youthful Red Guards as his spearhead.

Lin Piao, Red Chinese defense minister, became his heir apparent and Liu Shao-chi, for nearly 30 years his chief lieutenant, first reduced in rank and then disgraced.

BUT THOUGH the formal action against Liu would suggest Mao no longer fears him politically, the battle still is far from over.

Presumably, Liu technically remains chief of state, since it is an elective post determined by the National's People's Congress which has not met since 1965.

Indicating continuing fear of violent opposition in the provinces was the failure to set a date for the ninth National Party Congress, now more than 10 years overdue.

Hong Kong analysts say Mao is unlikely to risk such a congress unless he can be sure of 100 per cent unity.

Government, in the last analysis, is organized opinion. Where there is little or no public opinion, there is likely to bef ound, so in the bosom of sooner or later becomes autocratic government. — W. L. Mackenzie King.

Marin Collegians Demonstrate Command Of Four-Letter Words

There's a fear that if you publicize the use of obscenity, the young will be even more prone to use it.

I'm not fearful, however, that this is the case at College of Marin. As evidenced at a recent "Controversy" speech gathering with no less than 2,000 young men and women students attending, they aren't likely to learn many new four-letter words.

And if some of those who spoke during the question-answer period are examples, the words already are very much part of their speaking vocabularies, and publicity (or lack of it) will have little to do with their popularity.

I CAN'T SAY I was shocked — well, maybe a little — when the speaker from Berkeley first tossed off a phrase that makes the more "common" four-letter words seem almost respectable. And once, when a red-haired co-ed stood up and brought forth words once reserved exclusively for men, I'll grant that it tasted peculiar to me. But mostly I was far from what they would have defined as uptight about the blue word haze.

For one thing, the occasion was to have been a presentation by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver. Anyone in his unblown mind should have expected to be riddled and pommeled with shock phrases (and probably some jolting but deserved accusations).

Too, although Cleaver didn't show up, the co-speaker was the founder of the Youth International Party, a group not overly impressed with homes in the suburbs, the PTA, and sexual abstinence until marriage. It was this fellow, Jerry Rubin, who set the pace, of course. The readiness and ease with which the students tossed it back, however, was something else again.

TRUE, THE USE of such words is not novel at the college. Part of the orientation of incoming freshmen this fall was mimeographed copies of "The Student as Nigger" by Gerald A. Farber. The essay is well-salted with four-letter words, obscenities and pornography thrown in. Two students last April turned an antidraft rally at the college into a vehicle for delivering a few obscene epithets.

There were faculty members present at the latter affair. They weren't offended, although one later said some of the language was unfortunate.

Frankly, I rather enjoyed Rubin. His get-up of Viet Cong flag for a cape and dangling gold crosses for earrings was kooky enough for any Halloween atmosphere. I couldn't concur more with him that taking tremble-lipped offense at also wearing the American flag is nonsense. The British even make paper flag handbags that can be used to wrap fish in, if someone has such poor taste.

Almost immediately, Rubin had the huge gymnasium crowd laughing with him. It was difficult to do otherwise. He needled the pomposity of politics and the sometimes exaggeration of the evils of marijuana. I laughed and laughed at how neatly he fielded questions from the audience. Maybe my lips trembled a mite at some of the obscenity, but mostly it was entertaining.

IT WASN'T until later that I realized that I was downloose not only because the humor was fast and twinkle-eyed, but because I didn't really know any of the girl students there and therefore wasn't offended or embarrassed on behalf of some sweet and pure-minded thing whose family are friends of my family and who was being exposed to such a session.

In short, it was fun but I guess I wouldn't want my sister to attend.

If a nation values anything more than freedom, it will lose its freedom; and the irony of it is that if it is comfort or money that it values more, it will lose that also. — W. Somerset Maugham.

High Price For Blowing Fuses When Administration Changes

WASHINGTON — It is only natural, as the Johnson administration nears its end, that magazine and book publishers should be descending on the White House to sign up everybody in sight for their memoirs.

The sidewalk in front of the White House is jammed these days with editors carrying satchels of money that they have been ordered to give out in advances to anyone who can offer insights into the Johnson years. The competition for memoirs is something fierce.

AS I WAS LEAVING a White House briefing the other afternoon, several editors ran up to me at the gate and shoved contracts in front of my face.

"I don't work in the White House," I explained. "I don't know any more about what went on there in the last five years than you do."

Disappointed, they turned away from me and then rushed up to a man in overalls carrying a bag of tools.

"What do you do in the executive mansion?"

"I'm an electrician," he said.

"I'LL GIVE YOU $10,000 to write the story of how you wired the White House," an editor shouted.

"Fifteen thousand," a book publisher yelled, "if you tell us the inside story on how President Johnson made you change all the bulbs."

"Are you crazy?" the electrician said. "I've already been offered $25,000 by Life magazine to write about the time the President blew a fuse during the Fulbright Gulf of Tonkin hearings."

"Don't sign," the Look editor said, waving 35 $1,000 bills. "We'll give you this, plus a percentage, if you tell the inside story of when Johnson switched from AC to DC over Vietnam."

THE ELECTRICIAN shook his head. "There are certain things between me and the President that I can't talk about, even after he leaves office. They're in my diary and that's where they're going to stay."

"You kept a diary?" a publisher asked.

"Sure. How else would I know where all the plugs were? That's a big house."

"I'll give you $50,000 for the diary without reading it," the publisher said.

"Gosh," the electrician shook his head. "I don't know what to say. There's some stuff in there that's very personal, like the time I put in an extension cord for the President's electric blanket when Lynda Bird decided to tell her parents about her engagement to Captain Robb."

"I'll give you $75,000," another publisher shouted.

"WHAT ELSE is in the diary?" the editor of the Ladies Home Journal demanded.

"Well, there was the day when Walt Rostow was briefing the President on the Pueblo and he got so excited he stuck his finger in a socket and got a shock."

The Harper & Row editor said, "I'll bid $100,000."

The electrician looked confused. "Is it worth that much?"

"Of course. You'd be the first one to shed any light on the Pueblo incident."

"I THINK I better talk this over with my agent," the electrician said. "All these offers are bewildering. I knew my memoirs were worth something, but I didn't think they would fetch $100,000."

"Why not?" the Putnam publisher said "You controlled the power in the White House, didn't you?"

"Now that you mention it," the electrician said, " I guess I did. What am I offered for the movie rights?"

People who read journals of opinion do so either to find their own opinions supported or for the perverse pleasure of noting how idiotic the opposing opinion has become. — Frank Getlein in Washington Star.

Antismoking Class Still Has Some Openings

A "smoking withdrawal clinic" being offered by Redwood High School's adult evening school, starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, still has a few openings, according to Duncan MacSwain, instructor.

The clinic, which is also sponsored by the Marin Interagency Council on Smoking and Health, will feature six two-hour sessions for people who want to quit smoking.

MacSwain said the program is "quite frankly experimental."

On the first night participants will attempt to evaluate their smoking habits. After a six-day break, he class will meet again on Nov. 18 and on three successive nights to hear physicians and psychiatrists discuss smoking.

The class will meet once more during the following week to conclude the session.

Auditing Session

The finance and auditing committees of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board will meet at 10 a.m. tomorrow in district offices at the toll plaza. The regular meeting of the full board follows at 10:30 a.m.

TRAVEL FRAUD CLAIMED

Olympic Blues For Marinites

By ALAN JONES

Marin authorities said today that a San Rafael travel agent sold phony tickets to the Olympic Games in Mexico City and then invented his own Olympic event — the running start.

The district attorney's office today filed three counts of grand theft against Richard C. Palmer, charging he sold airline tickets and accommodations for the Olympics, but pocketed the money himself.

Specified thefts total $2,207, but additional thousands may be involved, authorities said.

Deputy Dist. Attorney Gary W. Thomas said Palmer joined Century 21 Travel Agency of San Rafael and became controlling partner, then diverted travel payments from Earl Josephson of Oakland, R. P. Hooper of San Francisco and Rudolph Benton of San Francisco.

Benton, according to the complaint, is still in Mexico City after arriving there during the Olympics to find no accommodations in return for $800 he had given Century 21.

Josephson, the complaint charged, paid $433.80 to the World Explorers Club, another organization of Palmer's, for Olympic tickets but arrived at San Francisco airport Oct. 17 to be told his airline reservations had been canceled because Palmer was out of funds.

Hooper told San Rafael police he paid $974 to the World Explorers Club for an Olympic tour by himself and his son-in-law, but was notified a few days before departure that their accommodations were not available. Hooper asked for a refund, but found the Century 21 office at 1414 Fourth Street closed and empty.

Mrs. Virginia M. Yarbrough, who ran Century 21 before Palmer became controlling partner, told police that Palmer had stripped the office of its furniture and records. Another employee, Stan F. Lando, told police Palmer rented a van Oct. 17, took the furniture to San Francisco and sold it.

Palmer and his wife ap-

Judge Favors Constitution Rewordings

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court has proposed the U.S. Constitution be amended to make Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination apply at the time of arrest rather than during trial.

The judge advocated the change in an open letter yesterday to Democrat Sen.-elect Alan Cranston and Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

He pointed out that recent Supreme Court decisions have in effect applied the Fifth Amendment from the moment of apprehension, and that most other countries of the free world require that an accused person answer questions put to him during trial.

"The clamor for law and order in every part of the American community, from Nob Hill to the ghetto, demands and will receive attention," the judge wrote the two lawmakers.

Warning against the possibility of a drift into a police state, he suggested that the proposed constitutional change "will assist in protecting the public and convicting the criminal without in any way moving toward fascism or destroying safeguards deserving protection."

"During the past decade the decisions of the United States Supreme Court have made it clear that it is useless for an accused person to have the right to remain silent when his case comes to trial if a usable confession has been exacted from him prior to the day of trial. Therefore, the privileges and protections of the Fifth Amendment have been carried back to meaningful points at the time of arrest and in the police station by the enlightened decisions of the court. . . .

"There is no longer any reason why we should allow a person to plan his criminal acts with the shelter of the Fifth Amendment in mind, or to come into court and hide behind any part of the Constitution which we have designed to protect all of the people, rather than just criminal elements. Most of the free world has thought it proper to require that a person charged with crime shall stand in open court in the light and with the protection of the public gaze, in the presence of the press, and

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch reported today that unscrupulous professionals are bilking the state's vast medical care program for the poor by $6 million to $8 million a year.

In a report on an investigation started eight months ago, Lynch charged that physicians, druggists, nursing homes, hospitals and optometrists and others paid by Medi-Cal received kickbacks, faked claims and "overserviced" patients.

The report named no names and called for no indictments. The probe was conducted chiefly to learn the nature of abuses, he said.

It recommended major remedial reforms—including hiring at least 10 investigative agents —and criticized the $600 million a year program as "hastily conceived and implemented."

It was created two years ago to help 1.5 million "medically indigent," those not necessarily on welfare but unable to pay their medical bills.

Chief Deputy Atty. Gen. Charles A. O'Brien, who ordered the investigation, said funds cheated from Medi-Cal constituted about 1 per cent of the yearly program budget. He equated it with million dollar bank robberies.

Recent published reports quoted sources as saying abuses could run as high as 20 to 30 per cent.

Thieu Invites Nixon Journey To Saigon Before Inaugural

'WHOLE NEW BALL GAME'

President-Elect Gets Rides In Official Jet, Limousine

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — The Richard M. Nixon who sweated out the tabulating of presidential ballots early yesterday doesn't look, act or think any differently today but, as President-elect, somehow he's different—and his world is vastly different.

Departing from Kennedy International Airport, he was taken aboard a military version of the KC-135 refueling tanker, predecessor of the civilian Boeing 707. The Air Force craft —called "The Tomb" by its crew because it has only four windows—marked Nixon's new status as heir to the nation's highest office.

Then driving from Andrews Air Force Base, Md., to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's bedside at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, Nixon rode in a White House limousine. Moreover, it was THE limousine, the recently delivered presidential bubbletop that even Lyndon B. Johnson hasn't used.

Everywhere Nixon went, security seemed tighter than when he was just a candidate. And there were cheering crowds in places where candidate Nixon had drawn only a few of the curious just a few days ago.

Part of that ball game involves the alloting of federal appointments in the Nixon administration—a subject that arose immediately within the camp of the President-elect because of election developments in his old home state of California.

The trigger was the election of a Republican-controlled Assembly in California, which means the GOP must find a successor for Democrat Jesse M. Unruh as speaker.

A number of Republicans, quite naturally, covet this powerful post. But they must take account of the fact that Nixon may award a federal post to the state's lieutenant governor, Robert Finch, who is one of Nixon's oldest and closest political advisors.

Should Finch move to Washington, Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan would appoint a successor—and some of the same political figures who would like Unruh's job might like the lieutenant governorship even more.

The President-elect is expected to spend several days here on this island connected by causeway to Miami. He'll be resting, relaxing and starting work on the formation of a new administration.

Marin City's Planner Role Is Debated

By STEPHEN COOK

Has the Marin County Redevelopment Agency abdicated its active role in Marin City planning in favor of local planning control by the non-governmental Marin City Council? (Another Marin City story, page 19.)

Not even the directors of the agency are certain, as evidenced by spirited debate at their meeting last night in Marin City.

Whatever the outcome, it was evident at the meeting that various public and private organizations at work in Marin City are in a state of flux out of which many hope will evolve responsible local control and a viable plan for development.

Director Phillip S. Erlich Jr. told the board that the agency has "withdrawn from an active planning role. We are no longer the prime mover in master planning. In the sense of the community, this is invested in the city council."

That is impossible, said Director Vera Schultz. The function of the redevelopment agency, as created by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, is to review and implement the Marin City Master Plan, she said.

She objected to the "indefineable way that this agency is permitting its function to be taken over by voluntary groups. I am for involvement by all the people of Marin City. I don't think this is going to be accomplished by meetings that are secretly held."

Mrs. Schultz was referring to an unannounced meeting Monday of the Marin City Community Services District, Marin

U.S. Losses Rise; Red Rockets Kill Civilians

SAIGON (UPI)—A Communist rocket slammed into a suburban Saigon hamlet, killing three Vietnamese, military spokesmen said today.

A pregnant woman and two other persons killed by the 107 mm rocket blast 10 miles southeast of Saigon were the first civilians dead in Red shellings which have continued since all bombing of North Vietnam stopped.

Five other civilians suffered wounds.

The shelling yesterday coincided with a battle on the northern coast that possibly marked the end of what military observers had been calling a month-long lull in major ground fighting.

U.S. headquarters today said 150 Americans died in action last week, the highest toll in three weeks. Another 1,214 were wounded. South Vietnamese battle deaths also rose, to 129 killed, and Communist losses were put at 1,393 dead.

The northern coastal battle erupted 20 miles south of the U.S. base at Da Nang. A patrol of U.S. Marines ran into a Communist fortress and summoned tanks and jet planes to batter the stronghold.

In Tokyo, Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, assistant commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, told newsmen today the Communists had pulled back from South Vietnam's cities because of a series of military defeats.

"The enemy there is an

San Francisco State Quiet After Temporary Closure

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Classes resumed at troubled San Francisco State College today as student pickets marched outside campus entrances in an effort to enforce a strike that backfired yesterday.

Roving bands of nonwhite militants terrorized classes on the 18,000-student campus yesterday, resulting in administration orders for a complete shutdown of the college. No arrests were made.

Members of the police tactical squad left the campus yesterday after the protest was broken up. A surveillance squad remained through the night but a college spokesman said all city police were off campus this morning.

Placard-carrying pickets stopped students entering the campus today and explained the aims of the strike.

Some turned away, but a college spokesman said that at the business and social science buildings "for the most part they seemed to be entering."

The student group called the protest tobring pressure on the administration for 10 demands by the Black Student Union.

Faculty members said the

'On-The-Spot' Look At Vietnam Urged

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyan Van Thieu, seeking to establish close ties quickly with the prospective Republican administration invited Richard M. Nixon today to visit South Vietnam.

In Key Biscayne, Fla., where the President-elect is on vacation, an aide said there would be no immediate comment. And there was no indication in Saigon as to whether Thieu had reason to believe Nixon would accept.

The White House declined to say whether Thieu had discussed the invitation previously with Washington. The State Department had no comment.

In a message congratulating Nixon on his victory, Thieu said: "The Vietnamese government, the Vietnamese people and our soldiers fighting in the front lines against Communist aggression will be most happy to receive on Vietnamese soil a staunch defender of freedom, which you have been for many long years."

Thieu said Nixon would be most welcome "if you wish to make an on-the-spot assessment of the war and the situation ahead." Thieu presumably meant before Nixon takes office in Jan. 20.

Thieu's message to Nixon, warm in tone, suggested official enthusiasm in Saigon over the Republican victory.

STRONGER BONDS

"I am confident that with you at the helm of the United States, the very close bonds of friendship and solidarity which for many years have united our two countries will be strengthened and our efforts, together with those of our allies, to attain the common goals we have set—the preservation of freedom in this part of the world and the establishment of a durable peace in honor and with justice—will be crowned with success."

While South Vietnamese leaders have been officially neutral on the U.S. election, many were known to be ardent supporters of Nixon against Hubert H. Humphrey, particularly since the split over the Paris talks.

Nixon in the campaign expressed readiness to go to Paris or Saigon before his inauguration if President Johnson felt such a mission to either capital would help toward peace.

EARLIER VISITS

Nixon already has made seven trips here. His most recent visit was a four-day stopover in April 1967 on a world fact-finding tour to lay groundwork for his political campaign.

Problems of security and safety could make difficult any visit to Saigon by so prominent a figure as the American president-elect.

President Johnson has made two visits to the huge U.S. coastal supply base at Cam Ranh Bay, under the tightest secrecy. The base was considered to be the most secure in Vietnam but even it has been shelled since Johnson's last visit.

Boycotted Paris Talks Mark Time

PARIS (AP) — U.S. negotiators marked time today while hoping for developments in Washington and Saigon that could clear the way for starting the delayed new round of talks on ending the Vietnam war.

At this juncture in U.S. negotiating strategy, a peace mission by President-elect Richard M. Nixon—if he undertakes one before his Jan. 20 inauguration —would perhaps be more worthwhile to Saigon than to Paris.

NIXON OFFER

Nixon has said he would travel to either capital if President Johnson felt this would help the stalled peace discussions. President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam invited Nixon there today.

The principal hangup now is with Thieu, whose boycott of a planned expanded Paris conference forced the Americans to put off its scheduled opening yesterday.

Thus a Nixon notice to Thieu that he is backing Johnson's peace effort, it is reasoned, could carry considerable weight in Saigon.

No word has arrived on the new formula which the South Vietnamese government says it will present for joining an expanded conference.

PRESENT TOPICS

As matters now stand the allies are negotiating about procedures. Thieu objects to the U.S. formula for expanding the Paris sessions from the previous two parties—the United States and North Vietnam—to four parties, including the South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

Meanwhile, the Harriman delegation has some items it can talk over with the North Vietnamese.

For example: Whether the inaugural meeting of the expanded conference will be open to press coverage, and what room will be used for the meeting.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Italy Flood Threat

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — The Po, Italy's biggest river, rose to the danger level today. Farm homes in the delta lowlands were evacuated. Crews stood ready to repair any breaks in the dikes.

The big river across northern Italy was swollen to the level of the disastrous 1966 and 1951 floods by waters pouring in from Alpine streams which devastated large sections of Piedmont and Lombardy last weekend and took more than 100 lives.

Kiesinger Struck

BERLIN (AP) — A woman rushed up to West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger today and hit him in the face while he was signing autographs at his Christian Democratic party's convention in West Berlin.

Apparently prompted by the incident, the convention gave the chancellor a standing ovation approving a motion of confidence.

The woman was led out of the convention hall for questioning. A party spokesman said she was Beate Klarsfeld, a German-born French citizen who made headlines months ago when she shouted "Nazi Kiesinger" during a session of the West German Parliament.

Jordan Calm Again

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — The army withdrew its troops from the streets of Amman today. Palestine guerrilla sources said they interpreted this as a sign of good intentions by King Hussein's government.

Armored cars and troops remained in the streets of the capital yesterday after the curfew was lifted, and the guerrillas said tension would reain high until the troops returned to their barracks. But the commandos emphasized they would do nothing to provoke the government.

No incidents were reported during the night, and the troops withdrew early today. Schools reopened and Amman returned to normal.

Fatal Plane Holdup

MANILA (AP) — Four men armed with guns and hand grenades seized control of a Philippine Air Lines plane bound for Manila last night, robbed the passengers, and killed one of them.

Two other men were wounded. One was a member of the gang and the other a secret police agent on the plane who exchanged shots with the gunmen.

Vitaliano Pagaran, 51, a local municipal official, was killed. The wounded police agent was Florencio Villarin, 35.

The twin-engine plane was on a 150-mile flight from Mactan to Manila and was about half way when the four gunmen forced their way into the pilot's compartment.

Police Recover Coin Collection

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nearly all $87,000 worth of gold and rare coins stolen Oct. 28 from a Market Street collector's shop have now been recovered by police.

Officers reported yesterday they found about $15,000 worth of coins in a black box carried by George Blass, 30, when he was stopped Tuesday night.

They said another $25,000 worth of the coins was found later in his apartment.

Blass was booked on charges of robbery and receiving stolen property.

Heart Case Dies

VALPAIRAISO, Chile (AP) — Marie Elean Penaloza, 25, Chile's first heart transplant patient, died today and a hospital spokesman said death was caused by a general brain infection.

Tokyo Students Riot

Police said 366 students were taken in custody on charges of violence and obstruction of police duties.

Dressed in steel helmets and armed with wooden staves, 1,200 students clashed with about 1,000 riot police when they tried to break into the prime minister's residence.

The first wave of the demonstrators were pushed back by riot police using tear gas and water cannon.

Then a second wave of about 1,500 attacked police with stones and wooden staves. Police again pushed back the mob and dispersed it.

U.S. And Bonn Studying Troops

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany and the United States began talks today on a new agreement to neutralize the foreign exchange costs of stationing 225,000 American troops in this country. The agreement will cover the 1969-70 U.S. fiscal year.

Reliable informants said the United States is asking the West Germans to offset $900 million through purchases in the United States.

The U.S. demand is the highest on record because for the first time Washington has included the cost of German employees working for the American forces.

January Draft Call: 26,800

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced today a January draft call of 26,800 men to serve in the Army. This is the biggest monthly quota since May when the total reached 45,900.

The January quota is 9,300 more men than December's 17,500 call and 16,800 more than the 10,000-man call for this month, lowest so far this year.

Monagan Is Likely Successor To Unruh

ROBERT T. MONAGAN
To reshape Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Robert T. Monagan, heir apparent to the Assembly speakership, and the newly-elected GOP lower houes majority, today began preparations for reorganizing the Assembly.

The GOP wrested control of the Assembly from Democrats in Tuesday's election for the first time in 10 years. Republicans won 41 of the 80 Assembly seats and the Democrats 39. The 40-member state Senate remained evenly split at 20-20.

The first task for Assembly Republicans when the new Legislature convenes Jan. 6 will be selecting a speaker to replace Democrat Jesse M. Unruh of Inglewood. Monagan apparently has the backing of fellow Republicans for the powerful post.

Unruh, first elected speaker in 1961, held the position longer than anyone in California history. As a probable candidate for governor in 1970, Unruh could have benefitted from re-election as speaker.

The reorganization also will include selection of a speaker pro tempore and appointment of committee chairmen. Assembly rules give the speaker sole power to appoint and remove committee chairmen.

The three lawmakers most prominently mentioned for the second spot as speaker pro tem are Republicans Charles J. Conrad of Sherman Oaks and Robert E. Badham of Newport Beach and Democrat Carlos Bee of Hayward who has held the post under Unruh.

Conrad is a former speaker pro tem and Badham represents the GOP's conservative wing. Bee emerged as a possible compromise candidate because he is well liked by both Republicans and Democrats.

Probably the most important committee chairmanship is ways and neans, now held by Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, vice chairman of the committee, acted for Gov. Ronald Reagan during the past two years representing the administration's positions before the committee. He is considered the most likely candidate to take over the committee.

There will be seven freshmen members of the Legislature when the 1969 session convenes.

Democratic caucus chairman Winfield Shoemaker of Lompoc lost to Santa Barbara Mayor W. Don MacGillivray, and Democrat David Negri of Granada Hills was defeated by Republican Henry Arklin of Pacoima and F. James Bear of San Diego lost to city councilman Tom Hom.

Democrat Henry Waxman defeated incumbent Lester McMillan of Los Angeles in the June primary election and went on to win Tuesday.

Three assemblymen did not seek re-election. They were Charles W. Meyers, D-San Francisco, Edward E. Elliott, D-Los Angeles and Stewart Hinckley, R-Redlands.

San Francisco Supervisor Leo T. McCarthy, a Democrat, won Meyers' seat; Democrat Alex P. Garcia won in Elliott's district, and Jerry Lewis, a Republican, replaced Hinckley.

Senate leader Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, probably will retain his post. A switch in only one Senate district was needed to give either party control of the upper house, but all 20 incumbent senators up for re-election won.

Oregon Killings Brought Up In Braun Penalty Hearing

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Prosecutor Arthur Broaddus yesterday introduced testimony concerning two killings in Washington and Oregon in an effort to secure the death penalty for Thomas Braun convicted a third slaying in California.

Braun, 20, was convicted Oct. 29 of the first degree murder of Timothy Luce, 17, of Ukiah and the shooting of Luce's girlfriend, Susan Bartolomei. Yesterday was the first day of the penalty phase of Braun's trial.

Another Ritzville, Wash. youth, Leonard Maine, 20, was convicted of second degree murder and will be sentenced by Judge Joseph Kelly Nov. 15.

Broaddus, Mendocino County district attorney, questioned witnesses on the deaths of Mrs. Deanna Buse, 22, Monroe, Wash. who was shot to death Aug. 19, 1967, and Samuel Ledgerwood, Portland, Ore. who was killed Aug. 20.

Authorities claim the killings, which occurred just prior to the Luce slaying, were the first phase of a murderous rampage by Braun and Maine.

Dr. Alexander Robertson, an Everett, Wash. pathologist, testified that he performed the autopsy on Mrs. Buse. He said she died from multiple bullet wounds in the head, but there was no evidence of sexual attack.

He said at least one wound indicated the gun was held right next to the woman's face.

Detective Thomas Hart, Snohomish County sheriff's office, said he found Mrs. Buse's nude body in woods down an embankment from a dirt road.

Mrs. Buse's car was stolen at the time of her murder and later found burned near the body of Ledgerwood in Oregon.

A unique sidelight to the long trial—moved from Ukiah to San Jose because of the emotional climate in Luce's hometown—was a political contest between Broaddus and Braun's defense attorney Merle Orchard.

Broaddus and Orchard were both seeking a Mendocino county judgeship in Tuesday's election. Broaddus won the election.

Wheels Turn For Nixon's Takeover

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew are beneficiaries of more advance planing for their transfer of government than ever before in United States history.

They will be the first to avail themselves of a $750,000 transitional expense account provided by Congress in 1964 which President Johnson as the incumbent didn't need.

And Johnson himself acted months ago to smooth the way by appointing a liaison man to plan with representatives of the three major candidates for the 76 days of decision that would face the new presidential team.

Every department and agency is handing over transition briefing papers to spell out administrative and budget problems and catalogue important jobs the president-elect will have to fill.

President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey get $75,000 each to ease them through the first six months of their transition to private life.

Fifty rooms in two executive office buildings near the White House have been furnished and fully equipped for the staffs of the new presidential team. However, Nixon said he would continue to work out of his New York offices.

In the days between now and inauguration, one of the biggest tasks facing the president-elect is finding new people to fill hundreds of important posts. He also must acquaint himself with pressing diplomatic and budgetary problems and start work on his own important State of the Union messages.

Marin City's Future Official Guides Argue

City Council and the Development Corp. of Marin City.

At that meeting, the organizations agreed that the city council will be the official planning body for future Marin City plans and development.

According to Erlich, the Redevelopment Agency has recognized this for at least three months. He said he reported long ago that a committee, appointed by the services district and the agency, had agreed to leave local planning to the city council. Mrs. Schultz said she never heard that report.

Rev. Samuel Banks Jr. said the Marin City Council is not exactly a volunteer group, since its officers were elected in a general Marin City election. Banks is chairman of the council.

Mrs. Schultz countered that it is not a public body and cannot be legally entrusted with planning authority. She pointed out that the city council election was not an ordinary one, since 18-year-olds were allowed to vote.

Banks toldher "we are not trying to take any legal authority away from the agency . . . we recognize our position as a non-legal entity. We see no conflict with the agency."

Erlich argued that this is not the time for rigidly defined roles and legal and non-legal classifictions. He appluded the local interest in Marin City planning and recommended the agency adopt a "play it by ear" policy.

"We can't push through a development if it is at cross-purposes with the community anyway," he said. "The citizens of the community are going to have their say. We can accept this, or fight it and tie up the whole damned process."

He rejected suggestion that the board of supervisors set guidelines for the roles of the agency, the city council and other organizations in Marin City.

"We should let this process evolve, rather than ask the supervisors to settle responsibilities. We have to be aware of the chance of being misunderstood by the citizens of Marin City. I hope we can be given the elbow room to work this out without too many suggestions from on high because of the potential for resentment," he said.

Erlich also cautioned Banks that resentments come from both directions and "we expect the council to let us know what is going on so these resentments won't build up."

James O. Quiett, chairman of the agency, assured Mrs. Schultz "we are not abdicating anything at this point. We simply recognize changes in the attitudes of the community."

Banks said an Independent-Journal report of Monday night's joint meeting incorrectly stated that the Development Corp of Marin City plans to succeed California Development Corp., which has held options on redevelopment land in Marin City for years.

The story also incorrectly stated that the meeting brought to light the existence of the Development Corp of Marin City. Its officers have appeared at earlier redevelopment agency meetings to tell of plans for a commercial development.

Corporations plans are for local control of a commercial development on redevelopment agency lands, not to take over all agency lands, Banks said.

Daniel Hayden, a director of the new corporation, said it now has an option on one acre of land for first phase development of a shopping center.

He asked for options on the remaining nine acres of land slated for commercial use, saying he does not want to tie up the land, but wants assurance that if the commercial venture succeeds, it will be able to expand.

Richard Adams, speaking for California Development Corp., which hold options on the commercial land, expressed reluctance to give up the corporation's options on all land without assurance that it can be used by the local corporation.

California Development Corp. is willing to assure the Development Corp. of Marin City that its commercial developments will be of a noncompetitive nature, though, he said.

Director Richard Harding of the agency agreed to meet with representatives of both corporations to seek a compromise solution.

Alto Firemen Slate Yule Party, Training

Alto volunteer firemen last night agreed to hold their annual Christmas party for firemen's children at 7 p.m. Dec. 23 at the fire house, Chief Carl O. Heynen Jr. reported.

Members also voted to send two firemen to the oil fire school, sponsored by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association, on Nov.22 and 23 at San Rafael Fire Station No. 4, Heynen said.

parently left the Bay Area a few days after Oct. 17 and have not been seen since. Mrs. Palmer, employed by a San Francisco newspaper, told her employer she was returning to New York City because of a death in the family.

Although only three complaints were filed, police reports indicate others may have been bilked by Palmer.

Elliot M. Wilson of 396 Pine Hill Road, Mill Valley, told police he had paid Palmer $588 in August toward a 1969 trip to Europe, but checked on Oct. 22 with the Kaiser Employees Travel Club, through whom the arrangements were to be made, and found none had been made.

Jack E. Parle of Sacramento reported that he had paid Palmer more than $500 for Olympics accommodations but arrived in Mexico City to find none.

Arson Suspected In Empty House

A fire — said to have been deliberately set — badly damaged a vacant house at 3:21 p.m. yesterday at 376 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley.

Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald said hippies had been seen in the area recently and the inside of the house had been ransacked.

About $5,000 damage was done to the interior, Oswald estimated. The exact cause of the blaze is still being investigated, but had to have been set, he said.

The house had been vacant since summer when its previous owner, Mrs. Florence Miller, was taken to a rest home. She died not long after. The house is now owned by Mrs. Miller's daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Spinney of Sherman Oaks.

Chief Oswald said the house was a cluttered mess with aisles through the debris, and this helped feed the blaze.

Redwoods Park Lands Face Long Haggling

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Federal provisions for a redwoods national park in California may lead to long negotiations, a State Forestry Division official said today.

Paul Cox, the division's planning officer, told the State Forestry Board that problems include ownership of private land within park boundaries, watersheds, roads and a park headquarters site.

BSU wants basically a bigger share of the educational effort and a bigger voice in how it is applied.

One of the demands is for reinstatement of George Mason Murray, a part-time instructor who is a member of the Negro militant Black Panther party. Murray was suspended last week after he urged Negro students to arm themselves against the "racist administration."

Unwillingly, Smith ordered the suspension on instructions from Dr. Glenn Dumke, chancellor of the State College System.

Generally nonviolent, the demonstration yesterday nevertheless turned threatening, Smith said, when nonwhite students invaded classrooms and reprimanded other students for not joining the strike.

One typewriter was thrown through a window and several windows were broken, but overall damage was minor.

Classes were disrupted when someone turned on the school fire alarm, emptying the buildings. Smith called police and closed the school.

entirely different breed of cat," said Walt, who commanded Marines in Vietnam until mid-1967. "He is not properly trained. He is not disciplined. He is not equipped to go on the battlefield."

"I am confident that we are winning the war," he said.

Barred from northern missions, American pilots logged 561 strikes yesterday against Communist bunkers, sampans and troops in South Vietnam.

War communiques said the raids killed 30 guerrillas and destroyed or damaged 343 fortifications, 313 bunkers and 33 sampans.

B52 bombers, in seven missions yesterday and today, bombarded Communist troop bivouacs in the Mekong Delta, along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon and in the Central Highlands, war reports said.

Citizens' Group, Teachers View Reed Programs

The Reed School District's Citizens Committee on Programs and Finances last night discussed the district's programs with five representatives of the Reed School District Teachers Association, Supt. H. Joe Edgington reported.

Edgington said the meeting was "informational only" and no action was taken on any item discussed.

Committee members and teachers talked about teacher evaluation, in-service training, salaries, educational programs, materials and ways to obtain objective evidence of a student's achievement, he said.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Del Mar School to hear a report on a selected sample study of the achievement of Reed students at Redwood High School. A report on results of an informal neighborhood survey on the district taken by committee members is also scheduled.

State Employees Seek 7.5 Per Cent Raises

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California State Employees Association, representing more than 100,000 workers, asked today for a $124 million pay raise package next year.

The association asked the State Personnel Board to recommend to Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature a 7.5 per cent general pay increase for all state civil service workers, plus aditional raises up to 10 per cent in jobs where 'pay is badly lagging."

Morse Race Still Hangs On Absentees

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Counting boards in a dozen Oregon counties will determine today whether Wayne Morse, a U.S. senator for 24 years, has been replaced by Robert Packwood, 36, Portland Republican.

Absentee ballots held the decision after the unofficial count wound up with Packwood ahead by 2,433 votes, 395,574 to 393,141.

Some county clerks said it would be late today before they finished the tally of absentee votes.

Because nearly 5,000 of the 14,000 absentee ballots to be counted were in Lane, Morse's home county, there was no certainty that Packwood would hold his lead.

Packwood's margin fluctuated through yesterday's counting and at times appeared almost decisive. At no time did Morse move ahead but he managed to keep close on Packwood's heels.

There is general speculation that if the final unofficial count makes Packwood a narrow winner and this is confirmed by the official canvass, a recount is expected. Morse, an opponent of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, is expected to refuse to give up without a recount if he sees a chance of victory.

Meanwhile he made no statement and Packwood claimed no victory.

then and there be required to explain his conduct."

Judge Gardiner suggested that a restatement of the Fifth Amendment protections, which he conceded "will obviously require most careful draftsmanship and may take some time," is therefore in order.

He asked Senator-elect Cranston and Representative Mailliard to "invoke immediate action by Congress" toward a revision "to provide, at least, the following":

"1. No person shall be required or urged by any public officer to make any statement or answer any question after he is accused of a public offense, which statement or answer might tend to incriminate or degrade himself. . . .

2. When placed on trial for an offense, "and while represented by counsel, that accused person may be required to take the witness stand and to answer all relevant questions."

3. If the accused fails to answer questions in open court, "the finder of fact (judge or jury as the case may be) may draw all appropriate inferences therefrom."

Clyde A. Nelson Wins Re-election To Hospital Panel

The Independent-Journal incorrectly reported yesterday that attorney Clyde A. Nelson Jr. was denied re-election to the Petaluma Hospital District board in Tuesday's election.

He won easily, as did another incumbent, Dr. Hamza Munib. A third director elected in the four-man race was druggist William A. Perry Jr.

ices under Medi-Cal are siphoning millions of dollars annually from the program," the attorney general's report said. "Poor administration of the program has contributed to further needless expenditure of money by Medi-Cal."

But it did not make a precise estimate of the total funds paid out because of poor administration, outright fraud or "the excessive providing of services." The report said the vast scope of Medi-Cal precluded any specific figure.

Receiving especially harsh criticism were nursing homes which receive about $140 million a year from Medi-Cal.

Many require "under the table" payments to secure admission, the report said, while several submitted claims to the state for patients who died or were discharged before the period covered by the bill.

"It is common practice for nursing homes to require vendors with whom they deal to give kickbacks in order to provide their services to persons in the nursing home," it said.

The practice by some homes of "accidental" double payments has cost an estimated $2.5 million, the report charged. It added that some homes keep funds meant for incidental costs such as cigarettes for patients.

The investigation said that private hospitals, who receive $100 million in medical funds, practice similar abuses, particularly physician-owned hospitals. But it said it found no indications that such abuses are prevalent in public and nonprofit hospitals.

It accused physicians, nursing homes and hospitals of billing the state for care that was never performed or was unneeded entirely. The report accused them of conducting mass treatments of patients and ordering enormous amounts of unnecessary drugs and treatments.

Among other things it charged:

Doctors signed blank prescription blanks given them by the nursing home and completed by the home itself.

A physician ordered 10 blood samples a day for a patient hospitalized 16 days and none of the 160 tests revealed an abnormal finding. Many X-rays were taken although "no abnormality was ever revealed."

Druggists with billing the state at higher cost for a drug than the same medication would cost over the counter.

The state was billed for a brand name drug sometimes costing three times as much as it would if ordered by its generic name.

Pharmacies gave kickbacks to nursing homes in order to lure their business.

Dentists lied about the need for certain work and falsified claims requiring a higher payment under one procedure than another.

One optometrist sought state approval for a pair of "expensive prescription sun glasses for a patient. Investigation disclosed that the patient was blind."

Some optometrists were found to be providing their patients with inferior glasses and making unnecessary examinations.

SENATE AGAIN?

Humphrey's Next Post Questioned

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Some Democratic leaders are already talking of a political comeback for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey—as the 1970 candidate for the U.S. Senate seat Eugene J. McCarthy says he will not try to retain in the party.

Speculation began almost as soon as his fight for the presidency was over, even as Humphrey left yesterday for his lakeside home in Waverly to spend a few days in seclusion with his family.

Friends of the vice president say his commitment to the race for the White House was total and included no thought of defeat. And they say Humphrey has no plans for the future now.

But, as Humphrey said a few days ago when asked if he was looking forward to the end of the campaign: "You bounce back pretty fast when it's over.

"If you win it seems to take longer than if you lose," he added. "If you lose you slough it off in a few days and go on to something else."

Many observers who have watched Humphrey as mayor of Minneapolis, senator and vice president expect him to "go on to something else." They expect it to be the U.S. Senate.

In endorsing Humphrey for the presidency last week, McCarthy said he will not seek re-election to the seat as a Democrat. Although he didn't rule out running as a third-party candidate, state party leaders say they expect him to bow out.

Thus the way would be open for Humphrey to return to the job he left in 1964 when Lyndon B. Johnson chose him as his vice presidential running mate.

GOP Hopes Absentees Will Swing Maryland

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Republicans nursed a faint hope today that Maryland, home state of Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew, still might wind up in the GOP column.

The glimmer of hope was based on the counting of 36,000 absentee ballots which could erase the 18,000-vote margin given Hubert H. Humphrey in the unofficial returns from Tuesday's voting.

But it would take about 28,000 of these ballots for Nixon-Agnew to give the GOP slate Maryland's 10 electoral votes.

Counting started in some counties yesterday along with the official tally of Tuesday's votes. There was no indication when the final results would be known.

Law Practice Is Next Step For Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —George C. Wallace plans to re-enter the practice of law in Alabama, but indicates he may be back running for president again in 1972 if national trends don't suit him.

The defeated third party candidate, appearing relaxed and in good humor, told a news conference yesterday he considered his efforts a success despite the fact he carried only five states, all in the South.

"I think we were a bellweather for the two national parties," Wallace said. "The winner of the presidential campaign said almost the same things we did. I dare say had this movement not been in existence this would not have been the case."

Whether he runs again in 1972 will depend on governmental trends, Wallace said. He denied any plans to seek state office.

Retired Gen. Curtis LeMay, Wallace's running mate, echoed the theme the campaign had achieved its primary objectives even though it did not win the election.

Muskie Shies At '72 Quiz

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the defeated Democratic vice presidential nominee, says the campaign didn't generate any personal presidential ambitions for 1972.

But the Maine junior senator told newsmen yesterday, "I suspect I have to consider it because you guys keep posing the question."

Wearing slacks and a windbreaker—for a game of golf after his brief news conference—Muskie said he plans a vacation to rest up from the campaign during which he traveled 70,000 miles, visited 38 states and made 146 campaign stops.

He said he planned to return with his family to Washington today, because his children have to return to school.

Muskie sent a message to Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, offering "congratulations and good wishes."

Missouri Is Narrowly On Nixon Side

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Missouri apparently went with the winner but it will be several days before the final vote for Richard M. Nixon will be known.

As the unofficial tabulation of the regular vote was completed, Nixon edged into a sliver of a lead over Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey for the state's 12 electoral votes.

The margin was so thin it could be changed by the absentee votes which won't be counted until tomorrow or Saturday—or in some cases until Monday.

Secretary of State James Kirkpatrick's office estimated the absentee total might reach 100,000 votes but others believed the number might be nearer 75,000.

At the end of the unofficial tabulation without the absentees, with all precincts reporting, Nixon had 766,169, Humphrey 758,547 and George C. Wallace 195,455.

Washington Winds Up In Humphrey Column

SEATTLE (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey picked up Washington's nine electoral votes in late balloting yesterday but moved no closer to the presidency with Republican Richard M. Nixon already the declared winner.

With 98.4 per cent of the vote counted, Humphrey led Nixon 559,357 to 517,539, or 48 per cent to 44.4. George Wallace had 85,131, or 7.3 per cent.

Although about 112,000 absentee and special ballots were still out, State Election Supervisor Ken Gilbert said it was "highly improbable" that they would change the outcome.

The late vote could decide two state races. In the contest for attorney general, Democrat John McCutcheon held less than a 1 per cent edge over Republican Slade Gorton, 541,069 to 536,216.

Republican Art Fletcher, the first Negro to run for high state office, appeared to be losing his bid to unseat Democratic Lt. Gov. John Cherberg but could win it with a strong, late vote. At the last tally, he trailed 577,546 to 522,365.

Gov. Dan Evans, keynoter at the Republican National Convention, won re-election handily as did Democratic U.S. Sen. Warren Magnuson, who was returned to a fifth term.

All seven incumbent Washington congressmen also won new terms with Republicans failing to make inroads on the five-seat majority held by the Democrats.

Rec Commission To Hear Report On Teens' Needs

A discussion of teen-age recreation, featuring a seminary student who described Terra Linda as a "seedbed of anarchy," will be held before the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission Wednesday.

The meeting is set for 3 p.m. in the planning commission chambers at the Civic Center.

Seminary student Gary Peter Davis, who conducted a summer program for teen-agers in Terra Linda this year, has been invited to give his views on teenage recreation.

Davis was invited at the suggestion of Commissioner Lothar Salin, who declared that Davis' report on calling Terra Linda a "seedbed of anarchy" would be invaluable for the entire county. Davis, 23, a student at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, warned that youth will turn to drugs, alcohol and destruction if they have nothing creative to do.

Tardy Alaska Count Going For Nixon

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon held a 1,000-vote edge in Alaska today as results from Tuesday's election continued to trickle in from isolated "bush" precincts and the state prepared to count about 7,000 absentee votes.

With a record 70,000 votes tallied, results from some 75 outlying districts and from tomorrow's absentee count will decide the allocation of Alaska's three electoral votes.

State election officials explained that severe radio interference had stalled returns.

The latest count showed Nixon leading with 32,245 to Hubert H. Humphrey's 31,337. George C. Wallace had 8,623.

Even if Nixon carries Alaska, it will be a bitter victory for Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel, one of the President-elect's staunchest supporters. The same voters who elected Hickel and a predominantly Republican state legislature two years ago turned the tables Tuesday and gave control of the House to the Democrats. A GOP majority in the Senate was reduced.

Woman Cuts Lip In 101 Accident

A San Francisco woman excaped with a cut upper lip yesterday when her car had a blowout and skidded across four lanes of freeway traffic on the Waldo Grade, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Ida Mae Gaines, 33, was treated at Marin General Hospital after the accident at 1:45 p.m. on Highway 101. The highway patrol said her car was hit by a car driven by Thomas Lee Rich, 25, of 615 Main Street, Sausalito, as it skidded across the road, then hit an embankment.

Pro-Soviet Czechs Put Up A Protest

PRAGUE (AP) — A crowd of pro-Soviet Czechoslovaks shook their fists in the faces of Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek and Premier Oldrich Cernik today and shouted, "Long live the Soviet Union!"

The hard-line Communists grabbed at the coats of the two reformist leaders after a ceremony at Olsany Cemetery, shouting, "We're with the Soviet Union!" Since the ceremony was part of the observation of the anniversary of the Soviet Union's Bolshevik Revolution there appeared to be few Dubcek supporters around.

FLAGS REMOVED

But later several hundred backers of the reform leadership surged into the streets of Prague and forced the removal of three large red banners from the Ministry of Foreign Trade, put up as part of the anniversary observation.

The demonstrators gathered in a side street a block from Wenceslas Square chanting "tear it down, tear it down," and whistling at a huge red banner without the yellow hammer and sickle that hung at one side of the building.

CHEER GOES UP

Bus loads of police arrived to clear the street and loudspeakers broadcast appeals for the crowd to disperse. But the people moved to the front of the building and chanted "tear it down" until two more of the 30-foot red banners were removed.

Novato Adds To Civic Center

The City of Novato has purchased a house adjacent to the Novato police station to be used for offices for the parks and recreation department, Councilman M. E. "Babe" Silva announced yesterday.

Silva, who negotiated the purchase, said the city paid $27,000 for the house, the top price authorized by the city council. Owners Robert and Walter Busher had long asked $30,000 for the property, which is valued on the county tax rolls at $23,500.

The parcel is half of the narrow block north of the city-owned block on which are located the community house, city hall and police station.

The Busher house, which will be remodeled at an approximate cost of $3,000, will fit right into the city hall complex, Silva said.

Reds Mark Birthday; No U.S. Harassment

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko omitted the usual attack on the United States today as the Soviet Union celebrated the 51st anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution with a display of missile might that included no new weapons.

Ambassadors from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's countries boycotted the ceremony as a protest against the invasion of Czechoslovakia. They let it be known last week that they would do this.

The defense minister, flanked on Lenin's tomb by Soviet leaders, spoke only against "imperialists" in general, repeating the standard Soviet charge that they are "increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war."

Grechko did not refer to the U.S. presidential election or the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. But the departures from the usual wording of his speech seemed to indicate that the Kremlin does not want to hurt its chances of getting along with President-elect Richard M. Nixon.

They also appeared to be aimed at avoiding anything that might hamper progress toward bringing the Vietnam war to an end.

Grechko, in probably the mildest Bolshevik anniversary speech made here in many years, also refrained from attacking China or any other country by name.

His five-minute speech, always closely watched for indications of changes in Kremlin thinking, bore down heavily on the theme of Communist unity and threats to this from the West. This new emphasis was obviously linked to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the dissension that caused in the Communist movement, with many parties abroad condemning the Soviet leadership.

"The imperialists are perpetrating different provocations, increasing tensions and creating the danger of a new world war," Marshal Grechko said.

A Master Plan Is Sought For Adult Education

BERKELEY (UPI)—A statewide master plan of education was recommended yesterday to meet the continuing needs of the state's "forgotten adults."

Dr. William Johnston, head of the Los Angeles City adult school program, said California's community adult schools need a master plan similar to the one for higher education.

He told a conference of the California Association of Adult Education Administrators that "without continuing their education, the well-educated citizens of today are in danger of becoming obsolete men and women of tomorrow."

Paintings, Silver, Jewelry Stolen

Paintings, silver and jewelry valued at almost $3,000 were stolen from the home of Harry E. Linder at 10 Fern Way, Kentfield, Sunday, sheriff's officers said yesterday.

The thief apparently climbed a step ladder and let himself in through an open window, deputies said.

Also reported yesterday was the theft of four rings and a watch from the home of Maryanne Salway at 480 Edgewood Avenue, Homestead Valley, Monday. The thief crawled through the home's dog door, deputies said.

Highway Users Fund: $135,563

Marin County received $135,563 in highway users taxes for October, State Controller Houston I. Flournoy announced. Cities in Marin received $98,451.

A total of $55,341,854 was distributed in the state for October.

San Rafael received $26,304, Novato $20,909, San Anselmo $9,732, Mill Valley $8,882, Larkspur $6,259, Corte Madera $6,219, Fairfax $5,634, Sausalito $5,155, Tiburon $4,722, Ross $2,364 and Belvedere $2,245.

In Sonoma County the county received $178,439. Petaluma received $17,231, Rohnert Park $4,218 and Cotati $1,476.

Houseboat Counsel Cites Dredging Pressure Cause For All The Fuss

The attorney for the embattled houseboat owners in Richardson Bay today charged that pressure on the county by property owners eager to dredge Saucelito Canal was the reason houseboats are being forced off underwater public streets.

Hugh G. Lawrence, representing the Houseboat Owners Association, made his charge on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program. He added that this pressure had caused "a kind of panic" in county government.

Lawrence argued that the "panic" stemmed from the county's need to find areas to dump mud spoils from the dredging, and that by forcing houseboats off streets, the county hopes to pressure large property owners to agree to take spoils.

Lawrence was hotly disputed by another panelist, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen. Terming the contention "absolutely ridiculous," Kettenhofen said the county's sole reason for the new enforcement program was to ensure public health and safety.

"We'd all like to be anarchists," said Kettenhofen, "but the county has a duty to see that people live in accord with some general framework to ensure public health and safety. I'm not saying they're all slums or a bunch of disreputable people down there," he added, "but it will get worse if we don't do something now."

Kettenhofen, noting the county government had been lax in enforcing houseboat regulations in the Waldo Point area, said the county "made a mistake in allowing this to go this far."

Kettenhofen said most persons in county government "really do like the idea of a houseboat community in Sausalito," but added that a growing concentration of hippies and drug use in the community "can't be allowed to grow and fester down there."

A third panelist, Dean M. Jennings, who lives on a houseboat in Richardson Bay, conceded the county had a "legal right" to force houseboats off public streets, but questioned the county's "right to do it on a moral basis."

He also objected to the county's intensive enforcement program. "In the last three months we've had more helicopter flyovers than over Vietnam he said, terming the aerial inspections "sorties by Frost flyers."

The object of Jennings' ire, Donald R. Forst, county director of public works, said the enforcement program started because the construction of houseboats suddenly became "a flourishing industry, last summer.

"Modern standards of health and safety demand something more than three feet of old inner tube draped over the bulkhead," said Frost of the sewage system found on some houseboats.

If the county were interested simply in getting rid of the houseboats, he noted, "then we wouldn't have been working with them for two months."

Frost sided with Kettenhofen in calling for an emergency interim ordinance to bar all new houseboat construction in the county until new regulations for them are adopted by the county. "If we don't have such an ordinance," said Kettenhofen, "they'll ctinue to grow while we're talking."

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be replayed at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Heliport At Civic Center On Agenda

The possibility of a heliport and runway strip for shoot takeoff and landing near the Civic Center will be discussed by the Marin Aviation Commission Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the board of supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

Commissioner Ray W. Foreaker Jr., who will report on several sites north of the Civic Center, said both SFO Helicopter Airlines and Comstol Airlines of Oakland have expressed some interest.

The Smith Ranch, which already has a short airstrip, is one of the sites to be discussed.

He said there is a possiblity that SFO and Comstol could operate jointly from the same field. "But a landing strip for Comstol would require a lot more initial investment than for a copter pad. So the question is, can we try Comstol for a couple years without too much initial cost? That's why the Smith Ranch becomes attractive."

Foreaker said no conclusions are likely Tuesday night, and he plans to ask for more time to investigate the Smith Ranch and other sites.

Other items on the aviation commission's agenda include rules and regulations for operation of Gnoss Field, the county airport North of Novato, and storage shelters and/or hangars to protect planes there.

To Juvenile Court

Josephine Anne Evers, 20, of 28 Lucky Drive, Corte Madera, arrested with growing marijuana plants on a Richardson Bay houseboat Oct. 17, was certified to Juvenile Court from Marin Municipal Court yesterday to face a charge of possessing marijuana.

Expansion Of Student Survey Likely

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night introduced Supt. Charles E. McCully to weigh expanding a student opinion survey proposed by Tomales High School District to the entire unified school district, McCully reported today

A University of California researcher, Bonnie Gurgin, under contract with the Tomales district has been preparing the survey to find out what present and former students think of the educational program at the high school.

The board also asked McCully to make a survey before Dec. 4 of the present seven trustee areas of the district to see if they were organized in the best manner. Before unification of the Tomales High School District with the elementary districts in its area.

In other action taken by the board, it approved an agreement with the Tomales Elementary District for shoreline office space at $100 per month from Jan. 1 to June 30 when the new Shoreline district will take over all the elementary districts and the high school district.

Magnolia Merchants Ask Parking On Both Sides

Merchants from the north end of Magnolia Avenue, claiming business losses, urged the Larkspur City Council last night to permit parking on both sides of the roadway and establish a two-hour parking limit.

Magnolia Avenue is being widened from two to four lanes and plans call for ultimate parking on the west side only. But the merchants also want parking on the east side from Woodlark Apartments, south of Murray Avenue, to the north city limits,-until the widening phase to Doherty Drive is completed, probably in the fall of 1970.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the next section of widening, extending to Bon Air Road, was expected to be completed by next fall, and councilmen passed a resolution of intention to call for bids on that section next April.

The council received a petition signed by 30 merchants and property owners requesting the parking and heard appeals during a one hour and 20 minute public hearing.

They continued the hearing until 8 p.m. Wednesday to hear further reports on the proposal, including one from Police Chief Howard Clark on safety factors.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon, who owns property and operates a business in the area, disqualified himself from council discussion on the matter, and sat in the audience. About 25 merchants and property owners attended the hearing.

Larkspur Wins Fight To Close Warehouse Store

Larkspur has won a Superior Court decision in its battle to have the Dollars 'n Sense store at 1100 Magnolia Avenue halt the use of warehouse space for retail sales.

The city filed its complaint to have Mr. and Mrs. Russell J. Merret, store owners, operate in accordance with their variance permit, which permitted the storage area, but not retail sales.

The city's crackdown became an issue in January, when the Merrets presented a petition to the council, signed by about 600 persons requesting that the sales be continued.

City Atty. Robert W. Elliott reported to the council last night that the case was decided in favor of the city.

Rain, Cool Weather Cure Hippie Problem

Larkspur had been having troubles with hippie gatherings and vandalism at Dolliver Park and Police Chief Howard Clark was ready to ask the city council last night to enact stronger regulations.

"But then we had a little rain and a little cold and they disappeared," Chief Clark reported, explaining he now would wait until next Spring before proposing new regulations.

In another hippie-related matter, the council last night made appointments to a five-member board made necessary by adoption last July of a uniform housing code.

Purpose of the code was to enforce improvement of substandard dwellings, particularly in Madrone Canyon where hippies had occupied dilapidated buildings.

Appointed to the Building Regulations Appeals Board to hear appeals from property owners affected by the program were Arthur Sestak, George H. Aster, Harold Z. Frank, L. R. Liberati and Melvin Desin.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

BON AIR BRIDGE — Heard a report from City Atty. Robert W. Elliott that Marin County rejected the city's claim for $95,000 for damage to the Bon Air Bridge during dredging of Corte Madera Creek, and authorized Elliott to file the claim against the state if the state doesn't pay voluntarily.

PRIVATE ROADS — Adopted an emergency ordinance which enables the city to control parking and traffic on private property, with permission of the owner. City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said specific regulations would be before the council for approval later, but by enacting the enabling ordinance, temporary moves could be made in time for the Christmas shopping period.

PLANNING RULES — Continued public hearings until Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. on zoning ordinance amendments, one on planned unit development and the other on planned district, after Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. proposed changes.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS — Postponed discussion of a proposed ordinance that would require property owners, excluding single family and duplex, to provide public improvements such as curbs, sidewalks, etc., whenever they make building improvements exceeding $5,000 in value. Councilman Neil R. Brixon objected strongly and the council appointed Councilman William Fleckles and Bathurst to revise the proposed ordinance.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to a closed session with Elliott for about five minutes to discuss litigation on acquisition of a small parcel at College Park and Magnolia Avenue, owned by Betsy Michaelson, which was condemmned by the city for street widening at the intersection.

PLANNING BY-LAWS — Gave first approval to by-laws for the city planning commission and referred them to the commission for their approval before final adoption.

FIRE ALARM PAYMENT — Accepted $960 from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. as a settlement for damages last summer when a utility line toppled in high wind and caused a short circuit which burned out five fire alarm boxes.

EASEMENT — Gave notice of intention to abandon a drainage easement on South Eliseo Drive as requested by the Schultz Development Co. so a new easement can be constructed adjacent to it, and set Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on abandonment.

OPEN CAMPUS — Heard a report from Mayor Alfred Malvino that the Tamalpais High School District Board has no intention of having an open campus at Redwood High School this school year, and the proposed meeting between the council and the board has been cancelled.

TRUCK LIMITS — Opposed a legislative bill which would permit the relaxing of truck weight and width limits, a move that councilmen felt would be detrimental to the city's streets.

NEW CARS —Approved the purchase of two police cars, a car for the fire chief and a car for the city manager through the state at a total cost of $10,253.

PLANNING FUNDS — Approved the transfer of $500 from the general fund to provide Bathurst with technical aid from a planning consultant.

ADJOURNMENT —Adjourned until 8 p.m. Wednesday (Nov. 13) for continuation for a public hearing on parking requests from merchants in the North Magnolia Avenue sector.

Marine Dies Of Meningitis

CAMP PENDELTON (AP)—A young Marine trainee from Brownsburg, Ind., has died of meningitis at the Camp Pendleton Naval Hospital, marine officials said today.

Pvt. Frank I. Mitchell, 18, died last Saturday, one day after he was admitted to the hospital which listed cause of death as pneumococcal meningitis.

Larkspur Delays Second Look At Planning Council

Larkspur City Council voted 3-2 last night to postpone for 90 days reconsideration of its refusal to join the Marin City-County Planning Council.

Councilman William G. Fleckles and Councilman Benton A. Sifford Jr. dissented, contending that the city should have a voice in council deliberations and recommendations.

Councilman Neil R. Brixon described the council "as just another tool" for County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker to "justify" his department "spending $400,000 a year for planning."

Fleckles said word he had received from five city members of the council indicated there was potential advantage in joining, and nothing negative.

Fleckles also contended that the city would have more chance to voice its dissent from within the council, than it would after the council acted.

Five New Directors Named By Employees

Marin County Employees Association elected five new members to its 11-man board of directors last night.

A total of 260 ballots, mailed in by employees, were counted at the association office, 1108 Tamalpais Avenue, San Rafael, Randall M. Prevo, manager announced.

The five new directors are Erling R. Nelson, senior agriculture inspector, 184 votes; Frances Bahl of the coroner's office, 162 votes; Ida Cullen of the treasurer's office, 140 votes; Leon DeLisle of the public works department, 121 votes, and Theodore Keller of the department of environmental health, 114 votes.

George J. Reuss of the sheriff's office, with 113 votes, and Robert Testa of the fire department, with 110 votes, were barely nosed out by Keller.

The five new directors will join these six carryover members of the board: president Paul J. Brusseau; secretary Leona Meysembourg; Asst. Fire Chief Stanley Rowen; William Desmond, director of environmental health; A. W. Adam, investigator for the district attorney; and N. G. Weaver of the public works department.

New officers for 1969 will be elected from among the 11 directors at a general membership meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Center cafeteria.

Of the carryover directors, Desmond and Rowen will have to be replaced by the board because they are considered "managerial employees" under the employer-employee relations policy recently worked out with the county.

An installation dinner for new officers is set for Jan. 18 at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club, Prevo announced.

$18,000 Garage Wins Approval

San Rafael Sanitation District directors yesterday approved plans for a garage and workshop building at the main treatment plant area estimated to cost $18,000.

The board called for bids to be opened at 5 p.m. Dec. 4 at San Rafael City Hall. The concrete block building will have space for four trucks and a work area.

Trio Injured In Car-Bike Crash

Three persons were injured in a car-bicycle accident yesterday at 4:30 p.m. at 1840 Petaluma Boulevard North, Petaluma.

Agatha Early, 63, of 10 Keller Street, was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with a fractured left wrist. Her husband, R. Allan Early, 64, was treated for cuts and bruises along with Thomas Goodin, 13, of 100 Cinnabar Lane, Petaluma.

The California Highway Patrol said the boy ran into the side of the car, and in an attempt to avoid striking him, the car crossed the median strip and hit a tree.

Second Lifer Back In Custody

OAKLAND (AP)—The second of two life-term convicts who escaped from the Tulare County Jail in Visalia Oct. 21 was recaptured at the Oakland Greyhound bus station last night.

George Evans Harp, 34, was taken into custody when he attempted to board a bus without a ticket, police said. He offered no resistance.

The other fugitive, Lewis Donald Fritz, 36, was captured Oct. 24 in the Los Angeles Bell Garden area.

Two Specialized Positions Sought For Mental Center

The Marin Mental Health Advisory Board asked county supervisors last night to establish two new jobs connected with operation of the new Community Mental Health Center.

Dr. Gerald Hill, chairman of the advisory board, said the group passed a resolution asking the county to create the positions of coordinator of mental health services and program evaluation analyst.

Hill said the coordinator's salary could be paid by budget reorgaization. No programs would suffer because of the shuffling, he said. Funds are included in the budget for the analyst, Hill said.

A major job of the coordinator would be to know what services were available in mental retardation, Hill said, while the analyst would review current mental health programs with an eye toward possible changes.

Hill said the advisory board would like the positions filled by the Jan. 1 opening of the mental health center, at Marin General Hospital in Greenbrae.

Hill said staff of the county's community mental health services department would move from present offices on C and D streets in San Rafael to the center on Nov. 19.

The next meeting of the advisory board will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 11 at the new center, instead of Nov. 27, as regularly scheduled.

Supersonic Jet Flight Scheduled

PARIS (AP) — The world's first supersonic airliner, the British-French Concorde, will make its much-delayed maiden flight in January, Sud Aviation President Henri Ziegler announced today.

Cyclist Is Fair From Accident

Louis Cortez, 22, of Albuquerque, N. M., was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a dislocated hip and broken ribs suffered when his motorcycle veered off North San Pedro Road and threw Cortez and his passenger into a drainage ditch, the California Highway Patrol reported today.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred at 1 a.m. today when the motorcycle failed to make a curve, bogged down in mud on the shoulder and threw off Cortez and Michael L. Michelson, 20, of 1735 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Quentin Felon Stabbed Four Times At Mill

A San Quentin inmate was hospitalized at the prison today with four slash wounds he suffered in a fight with a fellow prisoner at 9:05 a.m. Associate Warden James W. L. Park reported.

Henry Seabarry, 39, serving two to eight years for possession of dangerous drugs for sale and selling dangerous drugs from Los Angeles County, sustained three deep slashes on the back of his upper left arm and one slash across the left side of his chest, Park said.

John R. Mooney, 44, sentenced to six months to 10 years from San Francisco County for assault with a deadly weapon, was being held in connection with the fight, Park said.

The incident occurred in the cotton textile mill where both men are assigned. Park said a one and one-half inch knife used in the cotton mill was used in the attack.

He said he did not know what caused the altercation.

Suspect Nabbed In Looting Act

Adam Nicholas Mikolon, 38, of San Anselmo, was arrested early today when sheriff's deputies reportedly caught him ransacking a home on the Bolinas-Olema Road in Bolinas.

Deputy Joseph Dentoni reported that a neighbor called to report a burglary in the home of Tomas Jones Barfield. When he arrived, there was a light on in the house, he said.

The officer reported Mikolon emerged from the house, wearing handkerchiefs on his hands, and was arrested. Inside, officers found the house ransacked. Two pillow cases containing loot were by the front door, Dentoni said.

Mikolon was held in lieu of $3,125 bail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court this afternoon.

No Quorum

The Strawberry Recreation District board did not meet last night as scheduled because there was no quorum according to Mrs. William R. Heick, board clerk. A special meeting has been set for 8 p.m. Tuesday at Strawberry Point School.

Rcreation Panel Agrees To Begin Student Dialogue

San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools will be asked to send representatives to meetings of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission as the initial step in giving young people a voice on the commission.

Commissioners agreed to invite students at a meeting last night and also decided to investigate the possibility of expanding the commission to include a young person, Andrew J. Snyder Jr., director of the parks and recreation department, reported.

Members first wondered if a young person could be appointed to replace Louis H. (Bud) Baar if he resigns when he begins duties as a Marin County supervisor, Snyder said.

However, Chairman Charles L. Tacchi noted the city council prefers to have one of its members on the commission to maintain better liaison, Snyder reported.

Snyder, who is now preparing the winter recreation program schedule, said he will get in touch with student councils at both schools for suggestions.

Snyder said he also proposed a special teen council with representatives from local schools to help plan activities but no action was taken.

Parks And Recreation Commission Also:

POLITICS — Called for a legal opinion from the city attorney on park deed restrictions on political rallies. The Republican Party had asked to use Albert Park for a rally and was turned down because of the restriction.

ALBERT PARK — Heard Snyder report that refurbished tennis courts at Albert Park are now open for playing, although a little work remains to be completed.

BIKE TRAILS — Agreed to work with the county and state to develop bicycle paths over Porto Suello Hill.

TENNIS COURTS — Said that tennis courts at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools do not belong to the city. Commission members said they had had several complaints about the condition of the nets and the lack of posted rules on the courts which belong to the school district.

BOYD PARK — Agreed to spend $125 to put a pipe under Robert Dollar Drive at Boyd Park to take care of a drainage problem that is undermining the road.

EASEMENT — Rejected a request for access over park land in Boyd Park because of a deed restriction which limits the land to park uses.

RECREATION — Agreed to attend a meeting of the Marin County Park and Recreation Commission at 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center to discuss teen-age recreation programs.

$4,000 Approved For Easements

Payments totaling about $4,000 for easements in the Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project were approved last night by the Ross Valley Sanitary District board.

Ralph C. Noah, district manager, reported that 70 per cent of the project's work has been completed and finishing date will be about Nov. 15.

Project cost is $159,000 and involves 93 building sites in Fairfax.

The board also approved the installation by the Tamalpais, a high-rise retirement center in Larkspur, of a 1,000-foot sewer line connecting with a district pumping station.

Health Plans Board Opens Memberships

The board of directors of the Marin County Comprehensive Health Planning Council agreed yesterday to open up its membership and board to other than representatives of health groups.

The temporary board had scheduled an election of a permanent board Oct. 30, but postponed it when Miss Ann McCorry of Greenbrae asked the board of supervisors to see that it includes representatives from various segments of the community such as the poor, youth, minorities, senior citizens, the handicapped and consumer cooperatives.

The deadline to apply for membership in writing to the council office at 1601 Second Street, Suite 106, San Rafael, is Nov. 20, reported the council's temporary secretary, Don W. Sower.

The council then, at a meeting to be set, will expand its present membership of 87 persons by adding some of the persons applying, said Sower. The size of the expanded council membership was not set by the directors in their morning meeting yesterday at the Woodlands Restaurant in Kentfield, he said.

The board election by the membership, originally postponed to Nov. 10, has been changed to 8 p.m. Nov. 11 in the Civic Center, said Sower.

The size of the board will remain at 35 members, he said.

School Leaders Name Integration, Professional Units

The Marin Association of School Administrators yesterday named a school integration committee and a professional relations committee, H. Joe Edgington, president, said today.

He said the integration committee, to study county districts' problems in that area, will be headed by Dr. James A. Collins, superintnedent of the Mill Valley School District.

Edgington, superintendent of the Reed Union School District, said the professional relations committee will maintain a close study of legislation concerning education, and help interpret it for the public.

At the request of Allied Juvenile Agencies of Marin County, he said, the association also agreed to urge all school districts to acquire pamphlets called "parents and youth" from the group.

Pleads Guilty To Marijuana

William H. McInerney, 19, of Sonoma, pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court yesterday to charges of marijuana possession and misdemeanor battery.

In Municipal Court, he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing methamphetamine April 19 and additional charges of possessing marijuana, a hypodermic needle, a bad check and a loaded gun, all on Jan. 1, were dismissed.

His Superior Court pleas were admissions that he possessed marijuana on the courthouse lawn Feb. 9 in San Rafael and that he struck sheriff's deputy William F. Naber in the jail April 20.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered the youth to return to Superior Court Nov. 22 for sentencing. He is to be sentenced in Municipal Court the same day for the dangerous drug charge.

Arceo, Novotny Trial May Last Until 1969

The murder trial of John Arceo and Dennis C. Novotny may last until Christmas or early January, Marin Superior Court Judge Thomas F. Keating told prospective jurors today.

The two are accused in the Jan. 6 death of San Rafael gun collector Wesley L. Marshall, who died a month after being beaten and stomped at his home in a robbery.

Keating took steps to shorten the trial. He announced trial days will start at 9:30 a.m., a half hour earlier than usual, and said he will try to shift his Monday calendar duties to other departments so the trial can proceed five days a week.

Approximately 70 jurors had been excused from service for hardship reasons as jury selection continued today, and attorneys began using up their peremptory challenges.

Prosecutor Joshua Thomas Challenged four jurors for cause yesterday when they said they would not vote for the death penalty under any circumstances.

Thomas used five peremptory challenges of the 30 he is allowed, while defense attorneys also used five of their 30.

Charges Fly In Illinois Vote Count

CHICAGO (AP) — The official vote canvass begins today in Cook County (Chicago) amid charges by both major parties that there was vote finagling in an election which gave Richard M. Nixon the presidency on the strength of Illinois' 26 electoral votes.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, who, as head of the Democratic party machinery in Illinois has sometimes been accused by his opponents of finagling with election returns, said yesterday the official count "might show some interesting figures."

With 95 per cent of the state's 10,694 precincts reported, unofficial returns gave Nixon 2,064,756 votes to Hubert H. Humphrey's 1,929,254.

Nevertheless, the unreported precincts remained a mystery.

In 1960 anti-Daley forces charged that tampered returns from Cook County narrowly edged Illinois from the Nixon column in the Nixon-John F. Kennedy election.

Daley was the first yesterday to hint at possible vote irregularities by the other side. He cited two western suburbs where returns were delayed. The implication was that the delay could permit strengthening the Republican area by a needed amount if the election were very close—a maneuver Republicans charged Daley with in 1960 when Nixon lost Illinois by less than 9,000 votes.

Asked if he charged irregularities in the western suburbs, Daley said, "Certainly."

Despite Cost, Sewer Connect Bid Accepted

The Corte Madera Sanitary District board, which on Oct. 3 delayed awarding a contract for installation of sewer line in the S and L Subdivision, last night accepted the lowest of the four bids orginally received, $9.316.

The contractor, Everson Construction Co. of San Bruno, is to start work installing the 460 feet of line in the subdivision off Paradise Drive within a week, according to board secretary Portia Fitzgerald.

Delay in awarding the contract came when even Everson's bid was found to be $5,116 over the district engineer's estimate for the job, she said. The board then considered installation of a force main instead of the proposed use of a gravity sewel fall line. The former, however, was decided to be unfeasible, she added.

The board also agreed to start annexation of a 4.5-acre parcel at the written request of five property owners in 30-acre parcel on Paradise Drive being considered for annexation.

Annexation proceedings for a small parcel owned by Terance O'Flaherty in the 5100 block of Paradise Drive also was approved by the board at O'Flaherty's request.

$3,000 in Cash Reported Stolen

Floyd Mattern, owner of Floyd's Lighting and Appliance Store, 150 Kentucky Street, Petaluma, reported $3,000 in $50 and $100 bills was stolen from his store Tuesday afternoon or evening.

Mattern said the money was in an envelope in a pocket of his suit jacket which he had placed on a chair in the store between 4 and 9 p.m. He did not notice the envelope was missing until yesterday morning. He told police that many people had access to the area of the store.

Drake Balloting Set On Cage Yell Teams

By ANN-MARIE GARE
Sir Francis Drake High School

Basketball song and yell leader elections will be held at Sir Francis Drake High School. tomorrow.

Fifty-two girls originally signed up to try out for songleader. They were judged Oct. 31 by a screening committee comprised of the present football songleaders and their two faculty advisors. Twenty-two girls were passed and thus were eligible to try out in front of the student body and appear on the ballot.

The girls trying out are Artemisa Borrego, Cathy Briones, Jackie Cann, Verra Casci, Mary Evans, Linda Everson, Debbie Gibbs, Chris Gonser, Kris Hughes, Lori Kealey, Barbara Kelso, Margie Lococo, Missy Mangles, Sally McLellan, Angie Mercado, Debbie Milnes, Terri Rudee, Corinne Sartorio, Sylvia Sower, Joan Van Arnum, Marty Walters, and Nancy Watson.

Four groups began the competition for yell leader, but one dropped out. The remaining three are The Golden Hindes, The Presidential All American Physical Fitness Team, and The Spirited Six.

The Golden Hindes is made up of Murray Bruce, Carl Tierney, Chad Williams, Ed Harrington and Rick Harnsberger. The Presidential All American Physical Fitness Team is composed of Wally Bentley, Christie Fairchild, Laurie Fialkowki and George MacDonald. The Spirited Six is Jim Ahola, Carol Alderson, Nancy Cauch, Duff Gallagher, Wendy Thornton and Ron Wilhelm.

Voting will be held all day tomorrow at tables on the campus lawns. Results will be known in late afternoon.

One Voter Finds Faulty Voting Book

A defective voting book at a Fairfax polling place could have prevented some persons from voting for legislators Tuesday, Mrs. Jean Reid of 412 Scenic Road, Fairfax, said yesterday.

Mrs. Reid said she voted after 6 p.m. at Central School and found the book which fits over the Votomatic ballot card was improperly hinged, so that on turning to Page 2 to vote for U.S. representative and California asemblyman, there was no opening through which to push the stylus to vote.

Mrs. Reid said the precinct inspector agreed the book was defective but said it was the first complaint received about it all day. The elections department immediately sent an official to check the faulty book, Mrs. Reid said.

The defective book apparently had little or no effect on voting at the precinct. Peter C. Meyer of the elections department said 399 persons voted at the precinct, with 395 votes cast in the Congressional contest and 375 in the Assembly race. The figures compare with 381 votes cast for President and 395 for U.S. senator on the preceding page.

British Gen. Edward Braddock was the first to use a Conestoga wagon in a sizable wagon train in 1755 when he led his troops from Fort Cumberland, Md., across the Alleghenies.

Photos To Show Play Area Ideas

A photographic exhibit giving new ideas on children's play equipment and play area design will be on view at the Marin Civic Center from Saturday through Nov. 14.

The exhibit, designed by Prof. Torben Strandgaard of the University of California, will be displayed in the foyer outside the board of supervisors chambers on the third floor.

The display, sponsored by the Marin County Planning Department, ties in with Strandgaard's talk at noon Nov. 13 in the planning commission chambers. He will discuss "Space and Design for Play."

Old-Fashioned Decor Greets Children At Ross Academy

By JOAN LISETOR

Mrs. John Lord of Ross has created a wonderland for children and given it the imposing name of Ross Academy.

The academy offers classes in piano, ballet, guitar and musical kindergarten. When the children open the door to the academy, located on Poplar Avenue in Ross, they enter a reception parlor furnished in Victorian decor; check in with the receptionist, Mrs. Robert Biggs; and take a seat in another room which is furnished as a turn-of-the-century schoolroom.

SEATED AT old-fashioned school desks, the children eagerly await the arrival of June Lord, owner and director of the cultural education center.

June Lord has three children, and two years ago was a busy housewife when the idea of an academy struck her. Her daughter Julie, then five years old, wanted to take ballet lessons. The family consented, but it was June who was going to have to play chauffeur and get young James ready to take along on the trips back and forth to ballet school.

"Why not classes in downtown Ross so that the children can walk to them from Ross Grammar School?" she thought.

MRS LORD HAS worked with groups of children most of her adult life. She was graduated from the University of Southern California with a major in education and taught kindergarten through third grades in the Los Angeles City Schools for nine years before she and her husband moved to Ross in 1963.

A native of Beverly Hills, she had worked several summers with the Beverly Jills and Jacks Nursery School Summer Camp in the San Fernando Valley. During her under-graduate years at USC she volunteered numerous hours of service to the school for blind children in Los Angeles founded by her sorority Delta Gamma.

"I thought it would be nice if lessons in the arts were provided for children all under one roof and decided that one of the stores on Poplar Avenue would be just right for a school," she told us when we visited during a musical kindergarten session.

"AFTER SOME SERIOUS thinking on the subject, I decided that it was such a good idea that when a vacancy occured in just the location I had been thinking about, I decided to open the academy."

The whirlwind of activities began in August of last year, when arrangements for remodeling began. Classrooms in the six-room-building were soundproofed. Special flooring, mirrored walls and practice bars were installed for the ballet classes, and, when things began to take shape, teachers had to be hired and courses outlined.

With Victorian era furniture in mind, June set out to do her own interior decorating. She was buying an antique mirror from a friend when she was introduced to Carla Flood, a local artist and interior decorator, who had recently renovated and refurnished her own Victorian home a few blocks from the academy. Since she had to sort through hundreds of replies to her ads for teachers, June decided to turn her decorating problems over to Mrs. Flood.

Teachers were hired, remodeling was completed and the academy was furnished and ready to open its doors in October.

"BECAUSE OF THE staggering number of replies to my ads for teachers, I was able to select very well-qualified instructors for the academy," says the director.

Mrs. Lonnie Eschliman has taught at the academy since it opened. She received a BA degree from Hastings College in Nebraska, taught music for three years in public elementary school and has taught piano and voice privately for nine years.

"She is soft-spoken but firm and inspires great loyalty in the students," says Mrs. Lord. "I have heard some students confide that they had practiced very hard to learn a lesson well so they would not hurt Mrs. Eschliman's feelings."

The soundproofed room we were in during the session of musical kindergarten has special equipment: a jumbo keyboard, an electric organ, various rhythm instruments and two sets of tonal bells.

The pre-school children become acquainted with the keyboard by learning the letter names of the keys,the high and low registers, a five finger legato in each hand and simple rote pieces.

THE CHILDREN labored over staffed lined paper, drawing the music symbols. They were so engrossed by what they were doing, that they were totally unaware of being observed by a photographer and a reporter.

Ballet classes are taught by Mrs. Donald Dooley, who trained for five years with Ernest Belcher, was a junior dancer for three years with Metro Goldwyn Mayer and spent four years at the Ballet Theatre School of New York.

"DEBORAH took numerous teacher training courses as well as modern dance at Stanford University and has the true dedication of a ballerina," according to June Lord.

The two guitar teachers are Walter Ullner, a graduate of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and former member of the Tommy Dorsey band, who teaches classical guitar, and Mrs. Lewis Gill, a former professional singer, who has a teaching credential in elementary and special secondary education. Connie Gill has had training in teaching music to children including theory, appreciation and harmony and has taught privately for several years.

"CHILDREN LOVE THE guitar," Mrs. Lord explains. "We start teaching them at age seven because the guitar is easy to learn to play and gives a sense of achievement to the beginner. The group lessons are especially popular because instead of comparing his progress to the teacher, the student is more at ease when he sees others at his own level striving to attain the same goals."

Review mathematics was taught last year by Lonnie Eschliman for fourth through eighth grade students.

"We have not begun the math class yet this year," Mrs. Lord says, "because at the beginning of the school term no one had problems and has fallen behind the class. We will start it in a few week."

By nature shy and retiring, June Lord becomes a human dynamo when pursuing a project. Watching the way she works with children makes one wonder if his own children would listen if he spoke that softly and sweetly to them.

By JANET STAIHAR

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The spirit Judy Agnew takes into the social whirl of Washington, D.C., is one of simplicity, devotion to home life and a fierce desire to shun the limelight.

The 5-foot-4 brown-eyed brunette would rather cook up a kettle of spaghetti or cuddle her baby granddaughter than court publicity.

She hopes to seek the advice of the president-elect's wife, Pat Nixon, on several matters.

"We haven't been house-hunting yet. I want to talk with Mrs. Nixon and see what she suggests. She's been through this before.

"I'm also a little curious what the role of the wife of the vice president will be. Maybe she can tell me."

REMINDED THAT MRS. Nixon already had chosen her inaugural gown, Mrs. Agnew says she has not shopped for one yet.

As she and her husband stumped 51,000 miles, Mrs. Agnew had to forego reading and the theater which she enjoys so much.

A perpetual dieter, Mrs. Agnew often lunches on sliced chicken sandwiches and runs up and down the Maryland governor's mansion's spiral staircase to keep her weight down to 145 pounds.

A SIZE 12, Mrs. Agnew favors pastel knits "because they travel so well," and buys them at local stores.

A Baltimore city girl, she was born Elinor Judefind on April 2, 1921, to the late Dr. W. Lee Judefind, a chemist and vice president of the Davidson Chemical Co., of Baltimore. Her mother resides in suburban Baltimore.

It was at the Maryland Casualty Co., a Baltimore insurance firm, that she met Agnew. She was a secretary and he was employed during the days while attending a night law school.

THEY LIVED IN the same neighborhood and attended Forest Park High School, but she was graduated in 1940 and he three years before that.

They were married on May 27, 1942 and have four children — Pamela, a 25-year-old social studies teacher who is engaged; Susan, 20, a secretary, Kimberley, 12, and James Randy, 22, the father of year-old Michelle Ann.

Twiggy Lacks Cooking Skill

TWIGGY WITH JUSTIN

By MARIS ROSS

LONDON (UPI)—When she gets around to marrying, Twiggy reckons she'll make a terrible wife.

"I don't want to get married yet. I think I'm too young," said the 18-year-old Cockney girl whose face and reedy figure have made her known the world around. "I don't see myself getting married till I'm 24 or 25. Then I'll want to have children, but I'm lazy and I can't cook.

"I'll be a terrible wife. I would hate to become a housewife and not go out."

For all her dislike of domesticity, she knows who her husband is going to be—Justin de Villeneuve, her 28-year-old manager, whose first marriage has just been dissolved on grounds of his desertion in 1964, some months before he met Twiggy as a schoolgirl.

"Twiggy and I have always been unofficially engaged," he said in a joint interview with UPI. "We eventually will get married. There's no question of that."

Twiggy glanced down at her hands, with a ring on just about every finger. "But I've got so many, I haven't any room," she said.

"We're very happy with the way we carry on," said De Villeneuve, who is called Justin just as Twiggy is called Twiggy, not by her real name of Leslie Hornby.

They are millionaires and very much of a pair. He does all the fashion photographs of Twiggy now and they pick and choose what they do.

Although Twiggy hates to cook, she loves to sew. The extraordinary thing is that with the fashion world at her feet, she makes many of her own

DEAR HELEN:

You aren't always lucky when you win.

A local store put on a contest, with two weeks in Hawaii as first prize. Everybody in our office entered, just for kicks. Including the boss, except he doesn't do anything "just for kicks."

Wonderful surprise: I won! They telephoned the news and asked me to be at our television station next day to receive my prize. The other office girls were as thrilled as I was. But when I asked my boss for an hour off to be on TV, he said, with that terribly polite smile of his, "Sure, and on the way out, pick up your check. You're through!"

I couldn't believe it, as I'm a good worker with a good record and never asked time off before, though I often gave overtime.

He coldly explained that I'd not only expect this hour, but two weeks for the trip, so I'd be worthless to the company. (I would have saved it for my vacation.)

This was my first job and now I won's get a recommendation. I'll probably have to spend my Hawaii money on rent and food while I hunt for work.

Or should I stop worrying and go anyway? — FIRED SECRETARY

DEAR FIRED:

Choose Hawaii! You'll find work when you return, especially if word circulates on why you were fired — and it will.

Your ex-boss deserves a poison ivy lei and a fistful of poi in the face. May all his secretaries be fat and dumb! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You are a rat! My life was made until my mother read the letter from "Reaching For The Paddle."

I am 14 and was able to do anything I wanted. I never had to do chores or clean up my messy room. I had my parents trained so I didn't do anything, and was never punished. I even chiseled money from them for cigarettes.

The day my mother read your answer: "Don't just reach for the paddle, use it!" she changed. She told me to clean up my room. I sassed her. She said, "You've got an hour." I laughed merrily.

Now I am not laughing as I have a very sore behind and a big notice posted in my room about what I have to do or expect "no more privileges." I think my mother actually means it!

Only a finky anti-teen-ager would tell a mother she should spank a young lady! Please immediately take it back, as I hate housecleaning, and besides who has time for that junk? — SALLY

DEAR SALLY:

You'll have time for it, Sweetie, or else you'll be spending lots of time in a messy room.

I agree, young ladies shouldn't be spanked, but when a 14-year-old comes on like age-six, she should be treated accordingly. So glad your mother finally agrees with me. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My mother cured my messy roomitis by inviting company to see the house, including my room. I got no new clothes, not even a pair of nylons. My father stopped my allowance, giving me some dumb excuse which I didn't believe. I got the point real soon. Now, after about three months, I'm quite neat. And my folks didn't nag once. They just acted.

If a girl is a real stinker, she needs an unexpected spanking to catch her up. But if she's just careless, as I was, she'll shape up when she is quitely — DEPRIVED

COLORFUL PATCHWORK

Called "Cabriolet" this Joseph's coat of many colors from the Nina Ricci collection by Gerard Pipart, shows the designer is taking a definite stand against the vogue of muted colors. The coat is constructed in brilliant patchwork design with fur lining the hood and shaping the sleeves. (UPI photo)

Gourmet Foods And Outings Favored By New President

A three-year member of the Novato Hostess Club, Mrs. William Moritz has been elected president of the organization.

She was formerly recording secretary, publicity chairman and gourmet section chairman of the club, which provides an opportunity for members to meet people and contribute to some of the needs of the community. Any woman living in the Novato area is eligible to join.

Judy Moritz was graduated from St. John's Hospital in Joplin, Mo., as a registered nurse and served as an airline hostess before her marriage. Her husband is in sales. Their children are Michael, 5, Lisa, 4, and Brian, 3 years old.

Mrs. Moritz's interests are gourmet cooking — she belongs to a couples gourmet dinner group and the gourmet section of the Novato Hostess Club. She is currently taking a class in tailoring and enjoys playing the piano.

She most enjoys family trips and says, "We can be ready almost at the drop of a hat to go on a trip, long or short."

Twiggy Dislikes Cooking, Favors Sewing Her Clothes

clothes.

"I made this," she said, pointing at her brown mini dress with bloused sleeves and low u-neck hung with chain necklaces. "I've always loved sewing. I get kind of bursts of it. I won't do anything for months and then I make three outfits. I've got a lovely sewing machine which Justin gave me on my last birthday."

She has grown up as well, which is one of the reasons why Justin says he does all the fashion photographs of her.

"Neither Twiggy nor I liked the pictures that were taken at the old sessions. All the photographers see her as a teen-age cookie. I see her as more sophisticated, more mature," he said.

"We don't have to make all these personal appearances any more," he said, though they are going to the United States in October for promotions in Boston, Washington, New York and Miami.

"We have sort of semiretired. If you take the top 20 models in the world, Twiggy could buy them out with all the money we've made. I'm not being nasty to them and we're not boasting, but it's quite true. Now we're doing what we want, doing nice things."

A fashion range bearing Twiggy's name sells now in 40 countries, so she can afford not to bother any longer with modeling for the Paris collections.

"I just hate Paris," said Justin. "The whole thing is pathetic. The clothes are so terrible that Twiggy does not want to wear them."

Twiggy said, "It's just a justle. It's just like doing a catalogue. You're just recording what they make. You stay up all night and then the clothes don't fit."

Twiggy has time now to start new interests, like driving. She had just come back in bubbling form from her first lesson.

"I love it. It's great," she said.

She is getting a mini-car with automatic transmission. Justin, who has a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce, cautiously said he would see how she got on before venturing to become her passenger.

Less Multiple Birth Risk With New Pill

By BARBARA J. CULLITON
Science Service

WASHINGTON — Fertility drugs enable some childless couples to have a baby. Often, as is the case with Mrs. Norman Thorns, who gave birth to sextuplets in Birmingham, England, women taking these drugs have several babies.

Mrs. Thorns took gonadotrophins — powerful sex hormones that stimulate the release of ripe eggs from the ovaries. In the United States a drug called Perganol contains these hormones, but is still experimental because it carries such a high risk of multiple births. However, another less potent fertility drug, called Clomid, last year won Food and Drug Administration approval for commercial sale. In addition to inducing fertility, doctors suggest it may also offer women practicing the rhythm method an effective way of controlling ovulation — and conception.

Normally, the pituitary gland releases small amounts of gonadotrophins, and each month a single egg travels from the ovary to the uterus where it can be fertilized by sperm. It is a matter of delicate balance. If the pituitary fails to release gonadotrophins at the right time and in the right amount, ovulation does not occur.

Some cases of infertility can be attributed to the fact that the woman's hormone balance is off. Fertility drugs are potentially helpful only to women who are sterile for this reason. Scientists estimate that only 10 to 15 per cent of barren marriages fall into this category, and even within it, fertility drugs work less than 50 per cent of the time.

The problem with Perganol is knowing how much to administer. Although a non-ovulating woman is not producing enough gonadotrophins on her own, she may be producing some. Then, if she receives too much of the drug, her ovaries will be, in effect, overstimulated and will release several eggs.

The hormones in Perganol come from post-menopausal women who continue to produce gonadotrophins even though they no longer ovulate. The hormones are then excreted in urine.

Clomid, a less risky synthetic compound, is not as likely to trigger multiple births. Known chemically as clomiphene citrate, it works through the pituitary gland instead of acting directly on the ovaries. It attempts to mimic nature's delicate balance by synchronizing the pituitary's gonadotrophin production with other biochemical events. In other words, Clomid reminds the pituitary to release the hormones in proper fashion, setting off a natural reaction.

Jennifer Leaves Hospital For Home And Normal Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Four-year-old Jennifer Sawyer was only 13 months old when one of her kidneys was removed because of a malignancy, a rare condition called Wilm's tumor.

Two years later, the remaining kidney was found to be cancerous; radiation and chemotherapy did not stop the growth and Jennifer's condition worsened.

Her pediatrician, Dr. Floyd Denny, chief of pediatrics at the University of North Carolina's Memorial Hospital, then told the Sawyers that two other young children—also victims of Wilm's tumor — had been given new kidneys at the University of California's San Francisco Medical Center and were doing well.

Jennifer and her mother came to San Francisco and the girl became the 22nd child under 17 to receive a kidney at the Medical Center.

Before going home, Mrs. Sawyer said, "We will miss the friends we found here, but we're eager to show Jennifer's daddy how much she has improved. It won't be long until she'll be playing tag with her poodle, riding her tricycle and climbing trees."

ART REVIEW

Versatility Hurts Rather Than Helps

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Creative people often work in several of the arts finding satisfaction in each with each field bringing fresh concepts to the others. It is rare, however, that the level of accomplishment in all areas is equal. And the danger lurks, that without concentrating on any one of them, the time needed to dig deeply into problems, to solve them and to reach beyond just isn't there and the level of achievement is lowered.

Etel Adnan is a published poet, associate professor of French and humanities at Dominican College and an artist. The paintings, tapestries, enamels and watercolors she shows this month at the Unitarian Church, 240 Channing Way in San Rafael, suffer rather than benefit from her versatility.

SELF-CONSCIOUS

Miss Adnan's paintings are a blocky building of shapes and rough-edged bands into abstract compositions. But she is very self-conscious about putting the ingredients into a workable whole.

Her problems with structure preclude her working out the shortcomings which could be fixed most easily — the scrambled color, the unfinished look and the monotony of overall, squarish, knife-stroked textures. In short, the paintings have a long way to go.

One of her tapestries, a small color group within a large natural-toned area, has the same static look. The other, a boldly colored overlay of shapes and lines, has more of the interest felt in her bright, fluid enamels.

WATERCOLORS BEST

Of all her work, Miss Adnan's watercolors are most effective. They are unreserved with an adventurous use of detail and this same loose technique illustrates her long, unfolding poem, "Funeral March for the First Cosmonaut."

Obviously, Miss Adnan has a varied creative sense which spreads itself widely between several arts and within the visual arts as well. Witnessing the unevenness of the results, she might do well to concentrate more on a few of them. By exhibiting only the most fully realized, she would provide a more satisfying experience for those who will share them.

Westminster Organist To Give Concert

Martin Neary, organist and master of choristers at St. Westminster, London, will make his first American appearance in a public recital on Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo.

St. Margaret's is the parish church of the House of Commons, and many of its parishioners are members of Parliament.

A graduate of Cambridge University with a master of arts degree, Neary is a fellow of the Royal College of Organists and was a prize winner at the International Organ Festival at St. Albans in 1963.

In the same year he was awarded a scholarship by the Boston Symphony to study conducting. The year he was a diploma winner at the International Bach Competition in Leipzig. He has given many recitals in England and on the Continent.

Receiving its American premiere in this concert will be "Et Resurrexit" by the contemporary English composer Kenneth Leighton.

Works by J.S. Bach to be performed are Toccata, Adagio and Fugue in C; Chorale Prelude on "Wenn Wir in Hochsten Nothen Sein," and Sonato No. 4 in E Minor.

Other numbers on the program will be three pieces by John Bull: "Why Ask You?," "English Toy," and "Dutch Dance" and "A Sad Pavane for These Distracted Times" by Thomas Eakins.

DRAMA REVIEW

ACT's 'Crucible' Is Total Theater

By KARL BARRON

SAN FRANCISCO — Each time I see "The Crucible" I am become more convinced that it is one of the truly great dramatic works of the 20th Centry. Even bad productions bear this out, and after seeing one with the scintillating brilliance of the current one by American Conservatory Theater, there is no question but that Arthur Miller's work deserves the label of "classic."

ACT is atternating the witch-hunt drama with "Hamlet" at the Geary Theater in a special daily matinee series for high school audiences, with regular performances on Friday and Saturday nights until the scheduled 1968-69 season opens with George Fedeau's "A Flea In Her Ear."

Although, as director Allen Fletcher points out, Miller's play was dismissed by many in its first production as a political tract because of the obcious parallels with the Senate McCarthy hearings, time shows that Miller has created characters and situations which are far more than Senate witch-hunts set in Puritan times.

From John Proctor, who must choose whether to gain his life by lying or die for insisting on truth, to Abigail Williams, who bears false witness to revenge Proctor's rejection of her, each character in the play is clearly delineated, logically motivated, and forced to the tragic conclusion by his or her fallibilities.

Added to this is the terrifying certainty that the human weaknesses which create the hysteria of "The Crucible" live on, and that indictment by accusation and conviction by innudendo can happen — and does — in any age and any place.

I liked ACT's "Crucible" last season with some minor reservations on Ramon Bieri's Proctor. Yesterday I watched his understudy play the role for the first time, with great success.

Marin audiences may remember Herman Poppe for his appearances with Marin Shakespeare Festival's 1967 season. As John Proctor, Poppe gives a crisp driving performance that leaves one breathless. He plays quietly when it is demanded and rises to roaring pitches of fury as he is gradually enmeshed in the witch-hunters' trap. His exit to the gallows is agonizing but never maudlin. My one complaint, and this falls upon Fletcher and co-director William Ball, is that Proctor is allowed to stump about with a broken knee in the prison scene until one wishes that he would come to rest for just a moent at least.

The reactions of a house full of high school age boys and girls is intriguing. The single burst of spontaneous applause yesterday came on the line from Tituba, the black woman: "In Barbados the devil be a pleasure man!" But the youngsters were attentive, cheered at the end, and all waited eagerly for the discussion period following the show. (which my schedule did not allow me to attend, I regret to say).

"The Crucile" is as close to total theater as we're likely to find in a long while. See it.

'Jungle Fever' To Be Dance's Theme

A dance using the theme "Jungle Fever," will be held at 9 p.m. on Nov. 16 in the student center of Redwood High School in Larkspur.

Proceeds from the dance, sponsored by the school's junior class, will go toward financing this year's junior prom, class officials said.

The orchestra is composed of approximately 75 professional and amateur players from Marin who are chosen at auditions and rehearsals each Tuesday evening during the school year at Tamalpais High School.

Widow Is Found Guilty Of Fraud

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — An attractive Atherton widow has been convicted of forgery and fraud in connection with claims she filed in a court suit to get her late husbands estate.

Mrs. Ina Funke Boales, 42, was convicted last night by a jury of six men and six women who deliberated only three hours after a 15-day trial in San Mateo County Superior Court.

Jury foreman Frederick Heinecke said the evidence was "overwhelming."

Judge Louis B. Dematteis set sentencing for Nov. 20.

Her husband, Siegfried Funke, a manufacturer who court records show was not wealthy, died in 1963, leaving no will. They had been married two years.

In a court contest with Funke's previous wife, Mrs. Boales, who retained the last name of her previous husband, was awarded the house but also asked for $76,735 from any other assets he might have had.

She claimed Funke had signed over promissory notes and a trust deed to her.

But criminologist Lowell Bradford testified that Funke's signature on some of the notes appeared to be false, and further testimony contended that one of the eight promissory notes involved, date two years before Funke died, was on a form printed after his death.

Mrs. Boales was convicted on 23 counts of perjury and forgery, for which she was indicted by a grand jury, and four counts of insurance fraud in connection with a reported theft of furs and jewelry.

Special Session

A special meeting of the Bolinas Fire Protection District board has been called for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Bolinas Fire Station to prepare an application to the Marin County Planning Commission requesting the rezoning of property on Mesa Road next to the Sherman Smith Ranch to allow the building of a firehouse.

Novato Cuts Manager List To 20 Persons

The Novato City Council in a closed meeting last night, screened applications for the city manager's position from the original 54 down to 20, according to Mayor Harley McAskill.

"This was done by eliminating those who were already making more than our top of $20,000, those who lacked the experience, or were apparently looking for retirement," MacAskill siid.

A committee composed of Councilmen J. Wayne Womack, Douglas M. Merrill and M. E. (Babe) Silva, will hold another closed meeting at 8:30 a.m., Saturday to arrange the final 20 into two groups of 10 each. Eleven of these will then be interviewed on Nov. 16 and 23, McAskill said.

Immediately following the League of California Cities meeting in Los Angeles, council members interviewed nine of the applicants from that area, McAskill said.

Garage Worker Is Found Slain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— A night garage attendant in the Golden Gateway was shot to death last night by two gunmen, who took about $150 from his cash drawer.

Police identified the victim as Ronald Dehlinger, Pacifica, who would have been 22 next week. The shooting occurred less than an hour before his quitting time.

Authorities said Dehlinger, who apparently offered no resistance, was killed by one shot as he stood behind the counter in the Sacramento Street garage.

Ross, Kentfield Trustees Eye Philosophies, Merger

Possible unification of the Kentfield and Ross school districts was discussed last night at a joint meeting of the district boards, but no conclusions were reached.

Anthony G. Bacich, superintendent of the Kentfield district, said the main topic was the educational philosophy of each district and how applied.

He said the central question was whether a unified district would follow the Ross district approach of keeping the eight grades self-contained with one teacher to a room, or the Kentfield district practice of permitting students to engage in nongraded classes in mathematics, the language arts, and reading.

He said no judgment was passed on which system is more effective.

The Ross trustees then indicated they wished to discuss the possible unification among themselves further and schedule another joint meeting later.

The merger plan was first discussed last summer. Advantages mentioned include a wider tax base and larger number of junior high age students, making a broader curriculum possible.

The meeting was in the Adaline E. Kent School library.

Jury Acquits Man In Bad Check Case

A Marin Superior Court jury yesterday acquitted Jessie Thomas, 42, of Oakland, of a bad check charge after deliberating only two hours.

Thomas had been accused of possessing a forged check with intent to defraud another person.

Bandit's Spelling Bad, But Works

OAKLAND (UPI)—A Bank of America branch was held up yesterday by a bandit who escaped with $914 despite his poor spelling.

"All the money in your drawer. Let's make this nice. I don't want to shoo. Put it right here," the bandit's note advised teller Sabina Frazier.

The teller assumed the bandit meant "shoot" instead of "shoo" since he apeared to have a gun in his pocket. She gave him the money.

Friends Call Werber Major Drug Importer

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Show business entrepreneur, Frank N. Werber of Sausalito, was described as a major importer and wholesaler of marijuana in a federal court filing yesterday.

The charges were made by Weber's codefendents Stanley Mulligan, 35, and Charles P. Barrett, 45, who asked that they be tried separately.

All three are charged in federal court with conspiracy to transport marijuana into the United States and Werber is also charged with transporting and concealing marijuana. Werber was to be arraigned today.

Mulligan and Barrett, owners of Latitude 38 in Sausalito, contended that to be tried with Werber would be grossly prejudicial to them. They said both have cooperated fully with the United States Government. Their motion will be heard Wednesday.

The three were arrested Oct. 14 at Werber's Richardson Bay mansion after customs agents followed Mulligan and Barrett and 258 pounds of marijuana to the plush home .

Mulligan and Barrett told customs agents, according to a federal court affidavit, that Werber contracted with them for delivery of the marijuana.

Werber, former manager of the Kingston trio, and Judith Ann Sloper, 30, who lives with him at 4 DeSilva Island, have been indicted by the Marin County Grand Jury for allegedly growing and possessing marijuana.

Bryce Staples Wilson, a Kentfield writer, and Frank J. Mathison, a San Anselmo drummer, also arrested at Werber's home, was indicted for alleged possession of marijuana for sale.

Library Plans Exhibit Around Winner Of Nobel

The Mill Valley Art Commission last night agreed to sponsor an exhibit in the Mill Valley Library on Japanese novelist and Nobel Prize winner Yasumari Kawabata, chairman Gloria Wachs reported.

Mrs. Wachs said the commission will ask literary committees of the various civic organizations to co-sponsor the exhibit.

Commissioners also named Ann O'Hanlon and Priscilla Dillingham as a committee of two to study Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission recommendations for the use of city parks and public buildings.

A special meeting was set for 8 p.m. Thursday at the city hall annex with Harvey E. Bragdon, planning director, to discuss city planning problems and to hear the subcommittee report on park use recommendations.

Coed Held On Kidnap After Campus Uproar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 18-year-old San Fernando Valley State College coed has been arrested on suspicion of helping seize a campus building and holding 34 persons hostage at knifepoint for more than four hours. (See also story on page 1.)

Marita Elaine Peet was arrested as she left class Wednesday, police said, and was booked on suspicion of kidnaping. She was being held at Van Nuys jail.

The district attorney's office filed criminal complaints against 11 students yesterday and police said more complaints are being readied. Meanwhile, college officials said 17 students would be suspended or disciplined.

Some of the hostages, including college officials, were forced into the administration building. There were reports students drew knives and sprayed some hostages with fire extinguishers.

The disturbance was broken up when college administrators met with student leaders and reportedly agreed to changes in athletic policies, admission of Negro students and adding Negro studies to the curriculum.

But the agreement was disavowed the next day by college officials who said the agreement had been made under duress.

Student Sit-Ins, AWOL GI Jailed In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 400 police moved into the Finley Student Center at City College of New York today and seized scores of antiwar sit-ins and a 19-year-old AWOL soldier they had been giving "sanctuary."

Police Chief Inspector Sanford D. Garelik said the youths were given a chance to leave first but refused. He said the students were generally "calm and orderly" during the arrests.

Police said at least 135 were taken to police stations around Manhattan for booking on charges ranging from criminal trespass to disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

The students had been living at the center in an effort to prevent the arrest of Pvt. William Brakefield, who has been AWOL from Fort Devens, Mass., for 33 days. He sought sanctuary at the college a week ago.

Police said Brakefield, 19, of Van Nuys, Calif., was charged with criminal trespass and resisting arrest and was being held for federal authorities.

Monday detectives entered the center and placed handcuffs on Brakefield but left without taking him into custody after his students supporters thronged about protesting.

Yesterday about 200 of the antiwar students, and Brakefield demonstrated for about 45 minutes on the lobby floor of the administration building on the Weshington Height' campus.

Brakefield was not in uniform at the demonstration where he burned what he said was his draft card in front of the building. The students were also protesting the Reserve Officer Training Corps Program at the college.

Second Russ Recalled In Spy Uproar

LONDON (AP) — A second Soviet diplomat has been recalled to Moscow, following disclosure that a spy was working from the diplomatic cover of the Soviet Embassy here, it was learned today.

Well-informed sources said at the same time the British government is considering restrictions on the size of the 79-man Soviet Embassy, which now has nearly twice as many diplomats as the British Embassy in Moscow.

Col. Valentin Elistratov, an assistant air attache at the Soviet Embassy, was the second Russian with diplomatic status to be quickly recalled in recent weeks.

The spy trial identified Alexander Ivanovich Borisenko, first secretary in the cultural department of the embassy here, as a spy.

The court sentenced Douglas Britten, a Royal Air Force technician later recruited by Borisenko, to 21 years in prison for spying. Borisenko left London for Moscow Sept. 20, six days after Britten made his first appearance in court.

Neighbors in the block of apartments where both Russians lived said both left unexpectedly at about the same time.

"They hardly gave us any notice at all," a spokesman for the landlord said.

'JUSTICE FOR ALL'

New Legal Assistance Program For The Poor

By JOANNE GRANT

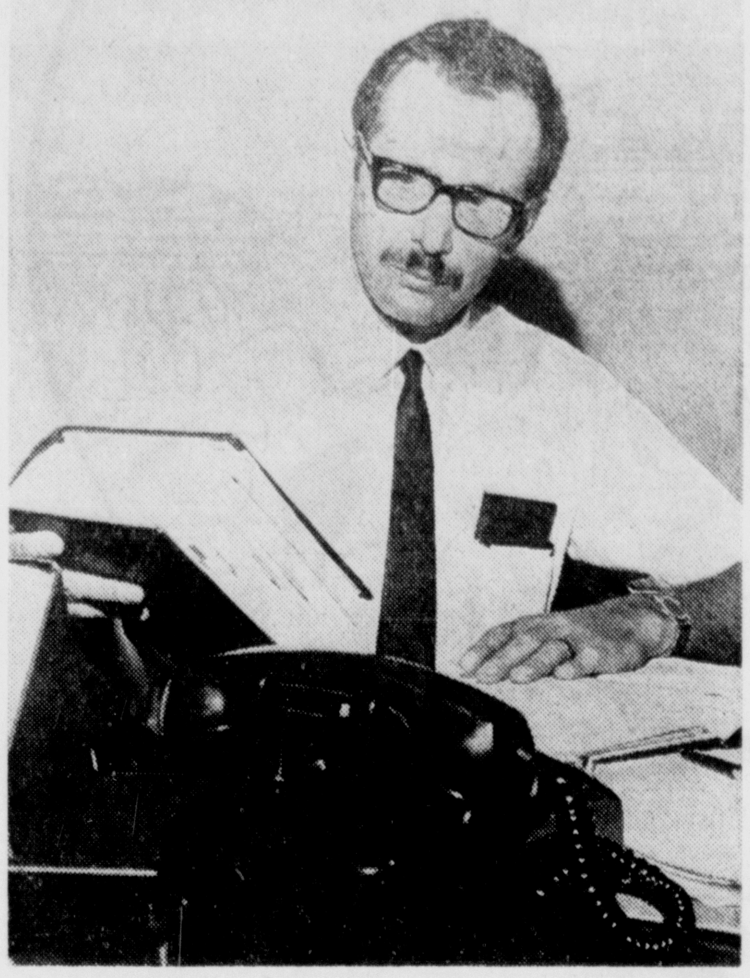
A system of providing "justice for all" — already operating successfully across the nation — has come to Marin.

Under a $20,000 federal grant, received more than two years after $80,000 was asked, Marin's poor are assured of an equal chance at justice in civil cases, at least until next March, when the grant expires.

The Legal Services Program, which opened offices here Oct. 21, is funded by the War on Poverty, but is not a government agency as such.

The $20,000, a six-month budget, includes $6,725 for an attorney, $2,004 for Mrs. Donna Iglehart, part-time receptionist who had been working with the Legal Aid Society program, $3,300 for a secretary and $1,275 for a community worker, neither of whom have been hired.

The original request for $80,000 included funds for three attorneys and supporting services.



LEGAL SERVICES — Marin's new Legal Services Program attorney, James Kovacs, checks legal points of cases in his office in the Albert Building in San Rafael. His sole concern about the Marin program is that one attorney won't be sufficient to meet the demand. (Independent-Journal photo)

Marin's program is run by the Legal Aid Society, a private corporation. Program directors are 10 members of the Marin County Bar Association, a judge, seven representatives of the poor and three of community groups.

The Legal Aid Scoiety has been operating a similiar program to handle emergencies. An office has been staffed by an attorney four hours a week through private donations and assistance from the United Bay Area Crusade.

The new program will handle the same types of cases, but will be able to take care of many more. In addition, it will be able to take more time consuming cases, including actions against public agencies and cases which require extensive investigation.

Attorney James Kovacs, 35, assistant director of the Legal Services Program in Ventura County for the past two years, has been named to operate the program.

Its sole purpose is to help the persons who cannot afford to pay an attorney, persons who requently see the law as a mysterious, theatening enemy, Kovacs said in an interview in his office in Room 210 of the Albert Building, 1010 B Street, San Rafael.

Kovacs said these people have many of the same problems as persons who are better off financially. But the lack of money magnifies the problems — "it becomes a matter of life or death," he said.

Persons are eligible for free legal help according to financial need, but there are no rigid rules. Each case is judged individually according to Kovacs.

The Legal Services Program has helped the poor even when it involves suing the government.

Kovacs said a major task is challenging laws believed unconstitutional.

He said the practice is no different from that of private attorneys who have long been challenging laws for clients.

"The poor have never had anyone to raise points in this way and there are so many that can be raised," he explained.

For example, it was the Legal Services Program which successfully tackled the residency requirement imposed as a qualification for welfare benefits.

The poor went to Legal Services Program attorneys 291,000 times last year, according to the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington, D.C. Of those complaints, 23,000 were against the government at some level.

It doesn't seem to bother the government as a whole, but some individuals, including Gov. Ronald Reagan, have complained — unsuccessfully, in the case of the governor, who said it wasn't right for the government to pay lawyers to sue the government.

The program was recognized in the report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, which said legal services had made a good beginning in providing legal assistance to the poor. The commission called for expanding the program.

The landmark cases of legal services have received the most attention, but the day-to-day divorce cases, debt and consumer problems, welfare inequities and others make up the bulk of the work, Kovacs said.

The number of divorce cases has surprised almost everyone connected with the program, he said. People come in who have been separated 10 or 15 years but have never been able to afford a divorce, he said.

In Ventura County, he said, a number of private attorneys cooperated in these cases and he is hoping to start a similar program here.

Whenever possible, persons wanting divorces are referred to marriage counselors, Kovacs said. "It's not really the objective of the War on Poverty to dissolve marriages."

Legal Services Program attorneys have also attacked landlords charging excessive rents to the poor; demanded an investigation of reportedly unfair utility rates in poor areas; uncovered frauds; and helped its clients in dozens of other areas.

Kovacs, hoping to make the Marin program as effective as possible, said he plans to have office hours in other parts of the county eventually. He said several Marin lawyers have volunteered to assist with the program.

Kovacs' chief concern is that the program will not be adequate to take care of present needs, even though he is not yet sure what the needs will be.

He compared it to Ventura County which has a population of about 300,000 and four attorneys on the legal services staff. Marin, two-thirds as large, has only one attorney.

Kovacs has lived in California since he was seven, coming here from his native Hungary. He received his law degree from the University of California at Los Angeles in 1961 and was admitted to practice in January 1962.

He spent two years in the Ventura County district attorney's office before going into private practice. He joined the Legal Services Program in 1966.

His wife and children, Danny, 6, Cindy, 8, and a 16-year-old foster daughter will move to Tamalpais Valley after their Ventura County home is sold, Kovacs said.

No Notice On Waldo Point Plan Talk Prompts Bianchi To Reply

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the developers of a proposed convention- marina project at Waldo Point, charged Marin County supervisors with a "breach of fairness" in discussing the matter Tuesday without notifying the developers or landowners.

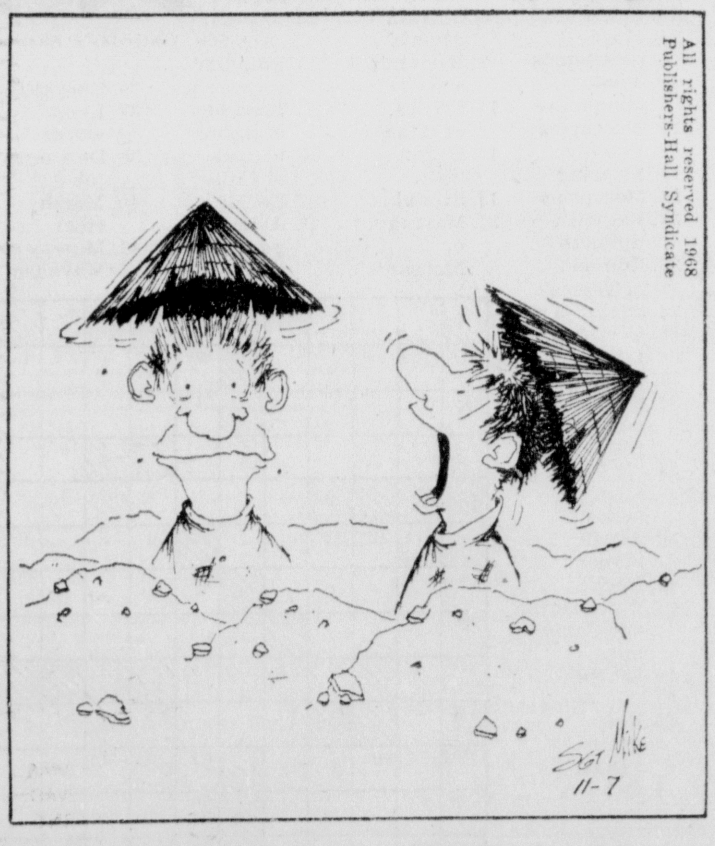
Sausalito Associates and Tom E. Nowell Jr., property owner, are planning to fill 17 acres of tidelands in Richardson Bay for a $25 million convention-hotel-marina facilities.

During a discussion of the Saucelito Canal dredging on Tuesday, Supervisor Peter H. Behr declared he had changed his mind about the Nowell project and would vote against it when it came before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission of which he is a member. Supervisor Thomas T. Storer said he, too, had changed his mind.

"Why was there no advance notice that your board was about to consider this matter again?" asked Bianchi in a letter to the supervisors this morning ."How did the item happen to get on the agenda without the property owners even being notified?

"Gentlemen, I have the highest confidence in your board . . . nevertheless, I am serious in asking how this unfortunate breach of common fairness came about —and this time, I would like to be there when you supply the answers. You might even allow us to express our views before you act."

WITH SGT. MIKE By Hodgson



"Look — up in the sky — It's a bird — It's a Plane — IT'S A BOMB!!"

SIX COMMUNIST VOTES

McCarthy Leads Ballot Write-Ins

Marin voters cast 684 write-in ballots for president Tuesday, 603 of them for Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Election workers counted write-ins only for six persidential candidates who had filed slates of electors. No other candidates met the write-in requirement of declaring his candidacy and paying the filing fee for the office.

Comedian Dick Gregory drew 63 write-in votes. Gregory was the Peace and Freedom Party candidate in some other states, but was supported in California by the Committee for the Write-In Vote for Dick Gregory.

Henning A. Blomen, Socialist Labor Party candidate, received 12 write-in votes, and Charlene Mitchell, the Communist Party candidate, received 6 votes.

No votes were recorded for the other two eligible write-in candidates, Kent M. Soeters (Berkeley Defense Group) and E. Harold Munn Sr. (Prohibition National Committee).

No write-ins were counted for Eldridge Cleaver, Peace and Freedom Party candidate who was ruled off the California ballot because he is too young to serve. His vice presidential candidate, Peggy Terry, who was still on the ballot, drew 566 votes.

Enchanted Knolls Board Ousted

Members of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association, rebelling against directors' endorsement of the controversial proposal for development of the Enchanted Knolls Ridge, last night removed the board from office and named new officers.

The recall of the seven-man board on a 15-8 vote was precipitated by the board's public support of a density increase from five to eight units per acre for the 76 undeveloped acres on the ridge.

The increase, requested by developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal, is now under study by the Mill Valley City Council and planning commission. More than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents turned out Monday night to oppose the density increase at a council hearing.

The Ad Hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls, led by Byron Reynolds and Joseph Mendel, led the battle to remove the board.

Dr. Willard H. Pennell, ousted board president, said he and other directors has been asked to rescind their endorsement of the higher density and, when they refused, to resign.

Irma Barbu, removed as board secretary, said she and other directors had made the decision to support the density proposal after lengthy study and that they believed they should stand by their position.

However, she noted, "We were in the minority and as such, the dissident members certainly had the right to remove us."

The vote to remove the board came after a lengthy discussion on the legal quorum for a vote, Mrs. Barbu said.

She said that the challenging group presented a legal affidavit stating that in 1959 the bylaws were changed to require a 10 per cent quorum rather than 50 per cent as previously required.

Twenty-five voting members attended last night's meeting. There are 78 active members in the association.

New officers are Mendel as president; George Monardo, vice president; Clifford E. Hanssen, treasurer; Meta Spirz, secretary, and William H. Thomson, . D. Grandle and Fred W. Heide, directors.

After the election, Reynolds announced that he and Mendel were dissolving the ad hoc committee "Because, we believe, the board will now adequately represent our viewpoint."

Marin Vote Count 17th To Finish

Marin County was the 17th of California's 58 counties to report complete election returns early yesterday, the head of the county's election department, Peter C. Meyer, reported today.

In the June primary election, Marin was 41st.

Tuesday's general election was the first run by Meyer.

Meyer said he was told Marin's ranking by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. It was the best Marin had done in recent memory.

Marin reported its final results to Jordan's office at 1:08 a.m. yesterday, compared to 4:05 a.m. the morning after the June election.

Among counties using the International Business Machine Co.'s Votomatic system, Marin was the third county to report final returns, Meyer said.

Marin probably would have been the first county in the state to report its returns if an IBM counter had not broken down for more than an hour, Meyer noted. The cause of the failure was a broken wire brush that counts ballots.

Closed Pay Negotiating Talks Seen

When the county begins negotiating with county employees for next year's salaries and fringe benefits, the county's negotiating team will meet on occasion in closed session with the county supervisors to get instructions, County Administrator Alan Bruce announced today.

The county negotiators are County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Personnel Director Robert D. Elliott, and the county administrator.

Bruce said a new state law, Senate Bill 592, permits a legislative body to meet with its representatives (the county negotiating team) in private for instructions on what the negotiating team may present to the Marin County Employees Association.

The closed meeting with the supervisors will be used sparingly, said Bruce. He explained that when supervisors engage in direct bargaining with employees, the meeting will be open.

Zucker Telegram Meant For Baar

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker said yesterday that his demand for retraction of statements made by successful supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Baar was aimed at Baar and not the Independent-Journal.

Baar called Zucker incompetent and said he would recommend a new planning director if elected. He made the remarks during a campaign appearance on KTIM's Sounding Board program, which was reported in the I-J.

Yesterday Zucker explained that the telegram he sent the I-J demanding a retraction should have been marked "copy," by Western Union as it was a replica of a message sent to Baar.

'Can you play 'Upsy-Daisy River by the Old Mill Run'?"

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Nov. 7, the 312th day of 1968 with 54 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1805 the Lewis and Clark expedition sighted the Pacific Ocean at the mouth of the Columbia River.

In 1874 Harper's Weekly ran the first cartoon depicting the elephant as the symbol of the Republican Party.

In 1916 Republican Jeanette Rankin of Montana became the first woman to win a seat in the House of Representatives.

In 1962 Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the president, died at the age of 78.

A thought for the day: Oscar Wilde said: "Experience is the name everyone gives to their mistakes."

TIME AND TIDE

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Joy Of Learning Fate Later Than At The Beginning

There is something to be said for the slam-bang approach to a problem: you learn your fate quickly. If you take your time about guessing the correct play of a king-jack combination you learn your fate later, but with more joy.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the king of diamonds and continued with the ace. South ruffed and noted that his contract would depend on limiting the spade loss to one trick.

Declarer drew trumps with the ace and queen and led a spade at once. "Have the tooth out!" South declared, and he glared at West ferociously.

West had been glared at before. He calmly played a low spade, and it was all up to South. After a moment of indecision South tried a finesse with dummy's jack. Down one.

COMPASSION

As compassionate bridge players we cannot scoff at a fellow artisan who makes an unlucky guess, but we can snicker at the man who puts himself to the guess and then makes the wrong choice. South should not have tried to solve his spade problem so early in the hand.

Declarer should draw trumps with the ace and ten, after which he leads a club from dummy. East plays low, and South puts up the queen. When West fails to win the trick, South can be sure that East has the ace of clubs. (If West had the ace he could not afford to refuse the first trick for fear that East had the king.)

FINDS ACE

Once South finds out that East has the ace of clubs, it is clear that West has the ace of spades for his opening bid. South can then lead a spade and can confidently put up dummy's king when West plays low. When two aces are missing, you can often locate one ace by first locating the other.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

♠—Q 10 9 7 5
♥—4
♦—9 7 2
♣—A J 9 3

What do you say?

Answer: Bid four spades.

This promises strong trump support, a side singleton or void suit, and not more than nine points in high cards. The idea is to shut the opponents out without getting dangerously high. Partner should beware of trying for a slam unless he has an unusually strong hand.

Downtown Novato Branch Sought By Post Office

The Novato Post Office is seeking a location for a substation in downtown Novato, according to Postmaster Harry M. Overly.

The bidder must furnish the space, clerical help, safe, and be open at least seven hours per day, Overly said. Bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Friday in the Novato Post Office.

When the post office moved last August from its location on First Street near the downtown area to the Nave Shopping Center off South Novato Boulevard, the Downtown Merchants Association requested a substation for the downtown area.

Overly said that he had received aproval for the substation and posted a bid notice at the post office last week.

Marin City Group Sets Yule Events

A tour of homes decorated for Christmas was set for Dec. 22 from 4 to 7 p.m. by the Marin City Improvement Association last night, according to president Juanita Cobb.

A Christmas party at 9 p.m. in the Manzanita Center will be held the same day.

Marin City Resident Raps TV Reception

Housing Mgr. Melvin Randolph reported that, in a recent survey, 57 of 76 households in the community reported bad television reception.

"This comes as a complete surprise to me," said Earle Stanton, the contractor. "I talked to some of the tenants a month and a half ago and they told me the reception was fine."

"Well, I've been in the low rent area since 1960 and I've been complaining about the service for two years," said Authority Director Arthur Miller.

Stanton repeated his expression of surprise, but said he could do nothing about poor color television reception unless location of the antenna were moved to the private sector of Marin City.

"Leave the color out. Just bring me a good black and white picture at night," growled Miller.

Stanton, his head bobbing, said he would like to do just that.

Philip S. Erlich, chairman of the housing authority board, ordered Stanton to make a survey of Marin City reception and report back to the board at its next meeting Nov. 20.

The board also ordered a meeting between management and the authority's maintenance workers after Ronald Foster of the Marin City Council reported some of the men complained to him that wage increases for them were overdue.

Executive Director Donald O. Stutsman reported that the workers received a raise in April and are not due another.

Agenda Items

A special meeting of the Novato Plan Review Committee will be held at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in the Novato Community House to consider two items: Plans for landscaping, lighting, signing and location of a trailer sales office for Schuman Chevrolet Co., 7123 Redwood Highway, and plans for a 20,000 square-foot restaurant for Hoytt Enterprises on the east side of Seventh Street, south of Lee Brothers Market.

Corte Madera Sign Control Change Asked

A joint meeting last night of Corte Madera's Planning Commission and chamber of commerce members resulted in a general agreement that the town's sign control board should be enlarged.

William McBride, town zoning administrator, said the possibility of adding two persons — at least one a chamber representative — to the three member board of design was discussed and appeared acceptable to both chamber members and the commission.

The resulting five-member board, if approved by the town council, could be empowered to grant variances from the existing sign ordinance in special cases, he said. No action was taken, however, and both groups agreed to meet in the near future for further discussion.

The chamber has also recommended that the sign ordinance be amended to have a standard set of requirements for all signs along Highway 101, rather than the present variation of requirements according to zoning.

At present, the sign ordinance is absolute and there is no variance or appeal recourse available.

Cotati Planners Pass Lot Split For Apartments

The Cotati Planning Commission last night approved a lot split and zoning change for five lots on Williams Street, at the rear of the Post Office.

Requested by August Bianchi, the zoning was changed from single family residential to multiple units residential to allow the construction of apartments.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

REMODELING — Approved remodeling plans for an office building at 8000 Redwood Highway.

EXTERIOR — Approved plans for a change in the exterior of a building at 7885 Redwood Highway.

TRAFFIC — Decided to make a study of traffic patterns at the intersection of Redwood Highway and Commerce Boulevard.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parents Shouldn't Blame Selves In Mental Retardation Case

VAN DELLEN

What do parents do when they discover that their child is mentally retarded? Many go into a temporary state of shock. But when this passes, they rationalize by denying the condition and spend considerable time and money in search of opinions compatible with their own.

One mother told me, "My son is not subnormal, he is plain lazy." This woman hired a tutor to force the tyke to learn.

IN CONTRAST, others blame themselves, the doctor, or the hospital. Some families develop deep feelings of guilt or shame, especially those who put great stock in "brains."

They may punish themselves by spending all their time and resources on the mental defective to the detriment of the other children.

There is no need to feel guilty. Parents are not to blame. There are more than 100 known causes of mental retardation, including genetic factors, metabolic disorders, maternal infections, such as German measles during pregnancy, complications and injuries at birth, premature delivery, and meningitis in early life.

MONGOLISM, a common cause, stems from a chromosomal aberration. PKU and Rh incompatibility between mother and child are proven offenders. But known causes account for only one-fourth of all mental retardation.

The earlier retardation is detected, the more successful the treatment. Detection is easy in mongolism. In others, retardation is suspected when there is a delay in walking, speech, coordination, or habit training. Now and then the child fails to speak in sentences, or continues to play with very simple toys.

During the school years, the child is an academic failure with a low IQ.

IT IS WELL to remember that mental deficiency is not the only deterrent to learning. Defective hearing or vision, communication and language disorders, or emotional problems may be causative.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

ARTHRITIS AND SWELLING

S. F. writes: Could arthritic knees and ankles cause swollen legs — not only the joints, but also the soft parts?

REPLY

Yes, but there are other more likely causes. In arthritis, swelling usually is confined to the joints but the lower extremities may become puffy when the individual is incapacitated or sits in a chair for a long time with the legs hanging down.

WHY MOTION SICKNESS?

A. P. writes: Why do some people get nauseated whenever they ride on a plane or boat or in a bus or an auto?

REPLY

Motion sickness is caused by the effect of movement on the balancing mechanism (labyrinth) of the ear. Psychology also plays a role, for some persons become seasick the moment they board a plane or ship.

SUBJECT TO HICCUPS

J. C. writes: Why do I hiccup before I eat, while I am eating, and after I eat?

REPLY

I don't know why you hiccup all the time. People who suffer from persistent hiccups ultimately set some kind of record. Many get their names in the paper. You wouldn't be exaggerating a bit, would you?

ROUTINE ANTICOAGULANT

A reader writes: Do surgeons give an anticoagulant routinely after an operation to prevent phlebitis?

REPLY

No. The risk from bleeding would be greater than that from clotting.

Today's Health Hint — Crash diets are not effective on the long-term basis.

McNear's Shale Has Hot Time Going Through Mill

Firm Makes Light Blocks For Building

By ALAN JONES

They are grinding McNear's Point into building blocks.

If that worries conservationists they can relax, because the grinding has gone on since the late 19th Century and will continue to the end of the 20th or beyond.

The McNear Co., which owns 285 acres of rock-rich land and 400 acres of tidelands on the point east of Peacock Gap, makes one basic product — light weight Haydite aggregate, used like natural sand or gravel in making concrete but 40 per cent lighter.

Some of the Haydite is sold in bulk like gravel, but most of it goes into building blocks. The McNear plant can turn out 16,000 blocks a day, which would produce more than 4 million blocks a year.

The raw material is Franciscan shale, a rock that forms most of the upper levels of McNear's Point. The shale is ground from the earth, broken up and roasted in a giant rotating kiln that burns away impurities and expands the remaining rock into a lava-like substance full of tiny air pockets.

The Haydite is then cooled, sized, mixed with cement, water and coloring and converted into building blocks in a nearly endless variety. A McNear catalog shows 88 shapes which can be molded, each in several available colors.

How long will the hill last! "That's the first question everyone asks," said general manager Clayton K. Rice. "There are a lot of variables but I usually say 25 to 35 years."

Quarrying may not end even when the hill is flattened, though, A tenant company at the point. Basalt Rock Co., Inc., is already quarrying several feet below sea level for blue rock, used in highways, marine riprap and airfield construction.

There are three sorts of usable material in the hill, Rice explained. The upper level is clay, suitable for bricks and other uses. The middle level is Franciscan shale, and lower levels are the basaltic blue rock.

The McNear Co., runs only the Haydite plant and block plant, but has several tenants on the site. Founder of the company was John A. McNear, who bought 2,500 acres in 1868. The family sold the land west of San Pedro Road in 1955 for subdivision, and McNear's Beach was bought in 1965 and is now part of the Peacock Gap Country Club.

Owners of the family firm are two brothers and a sister, Lawrence P. McNear Sr., Miller M. McNear and Mrs. Lucretia Thomas, the third generation in the company.

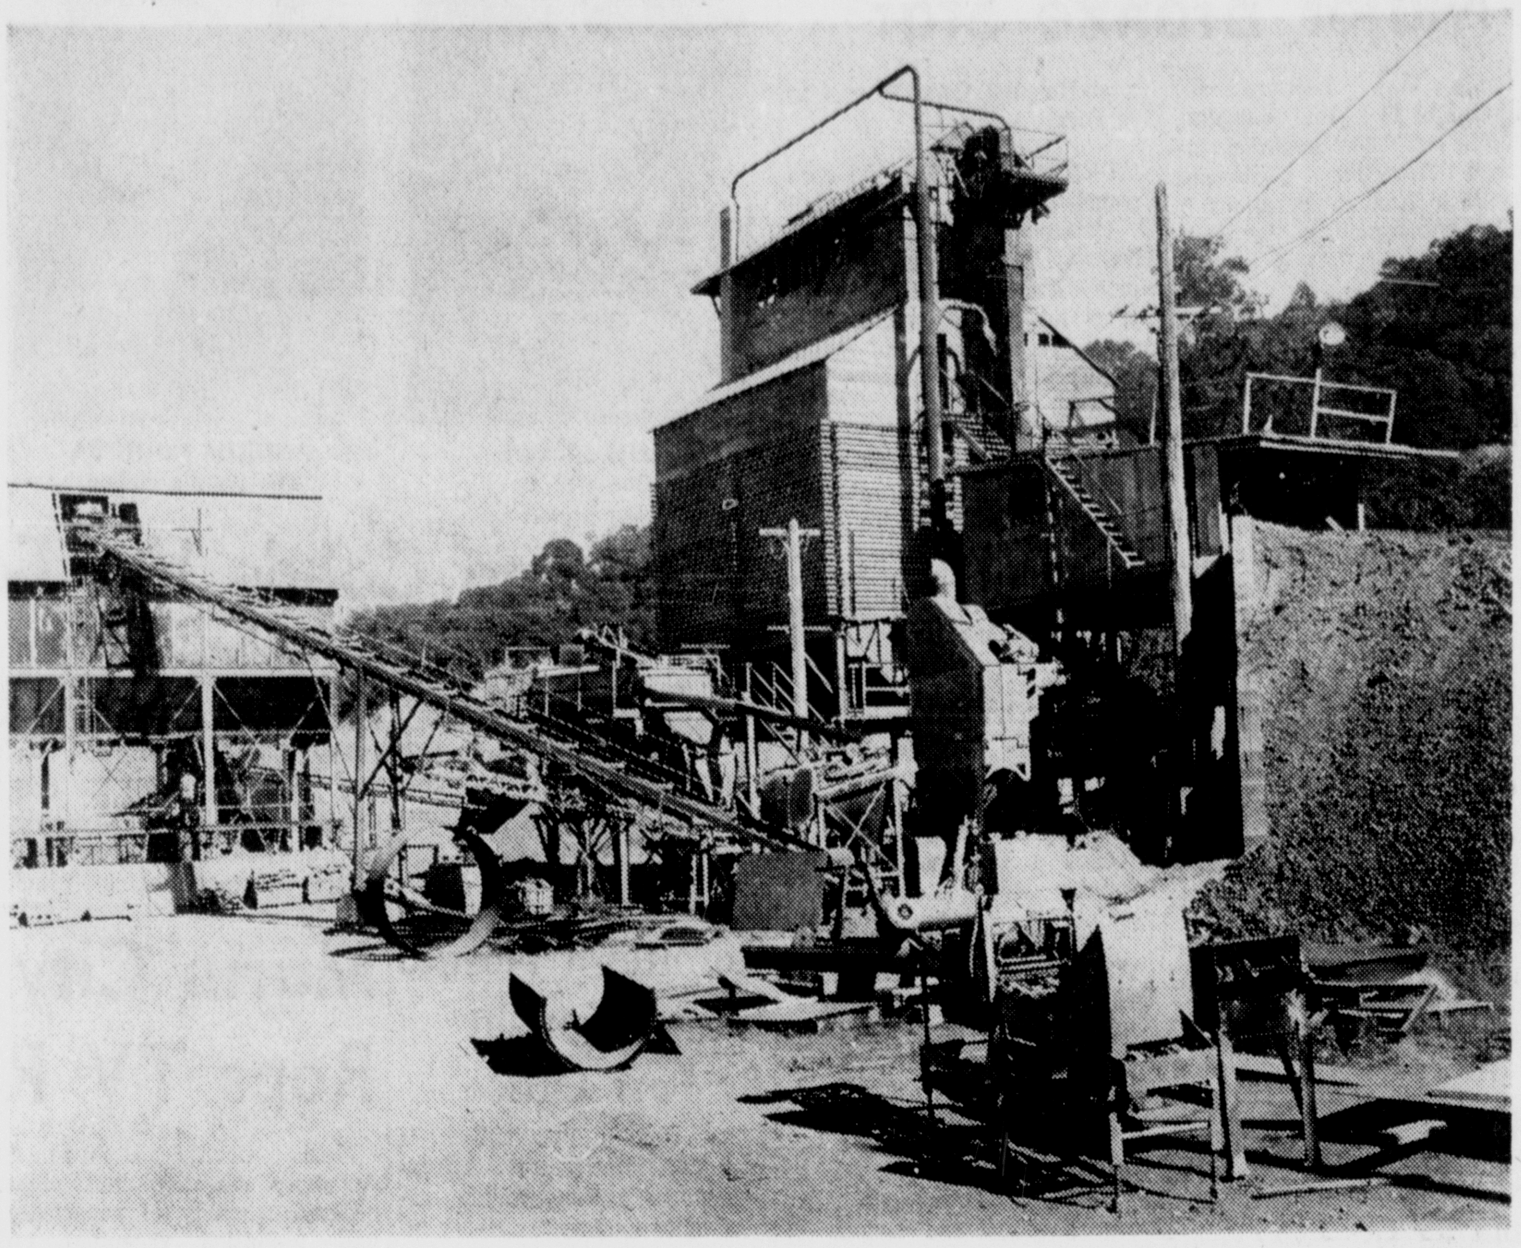
Another tenant makes ceramic kilns, another terrazzo tiles and yet another architectrual castings, all using the subsurface riches of McNear's Point.

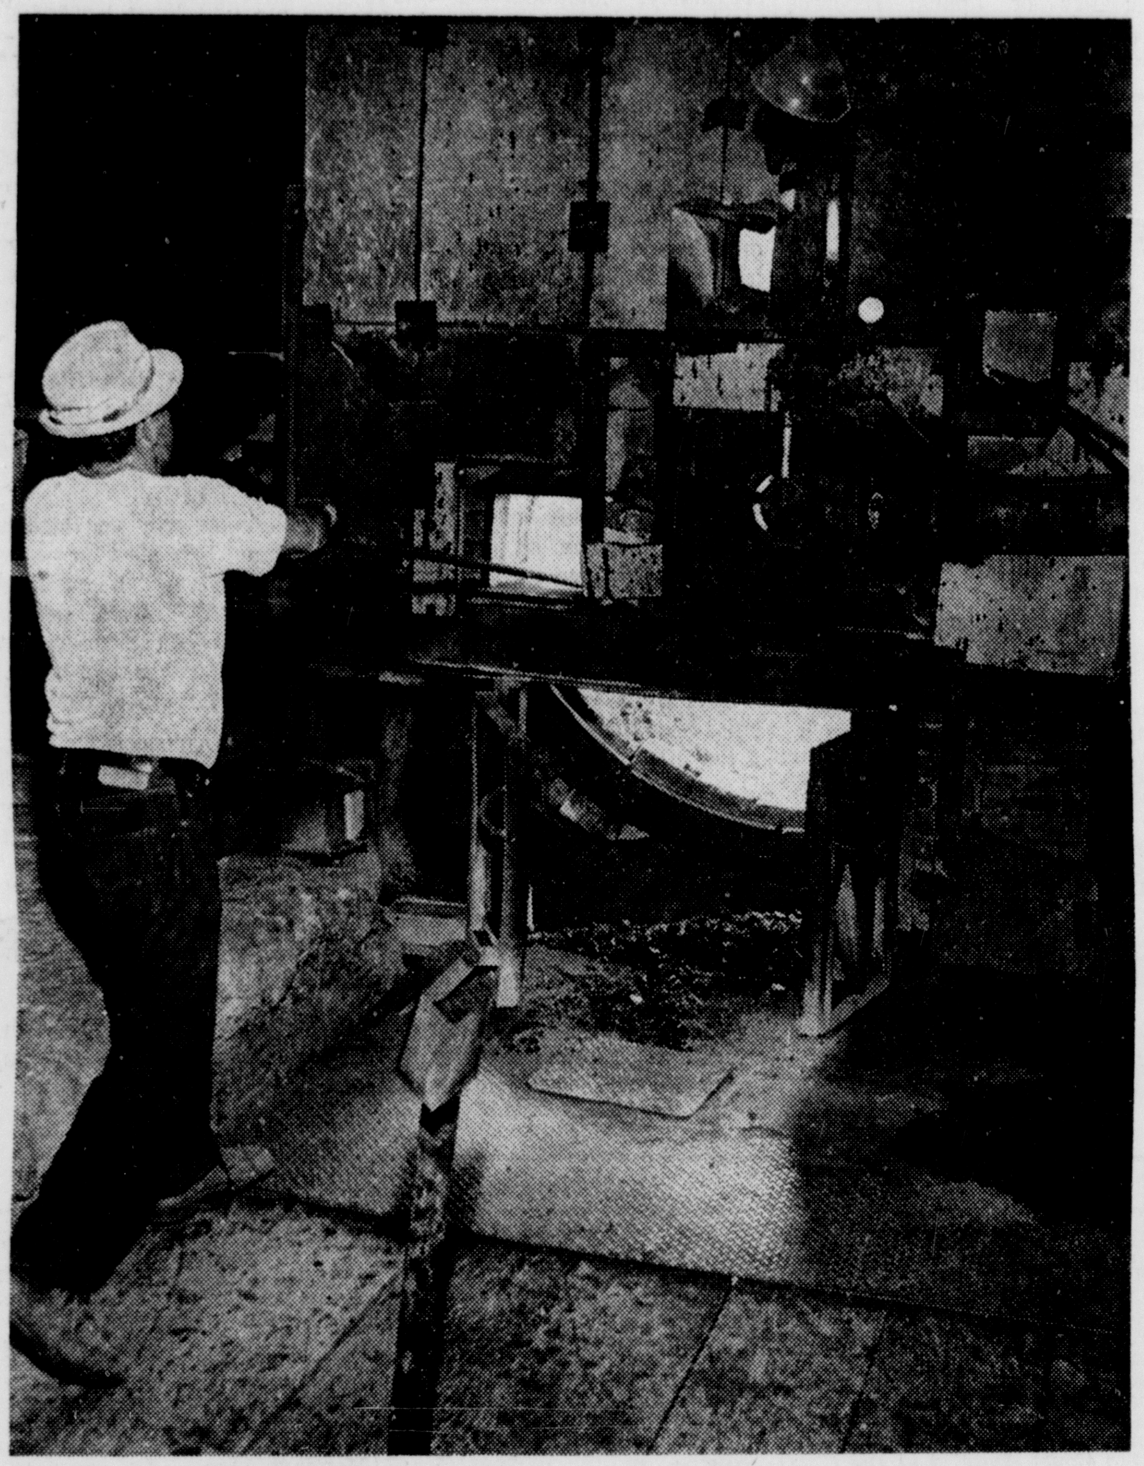
The main show, though, is the Haydite production of 100,000 cubic yards a year. Rice said the company sells its products from Santa Cruz to the Oregon border, with 92 per cent being sold beyond Marin.

McNear started making Haydite in 1932, one of the first five plants in the world. During World War II, the plant produced material for 27 concret barges, a development made possible by Haydite's light weight.

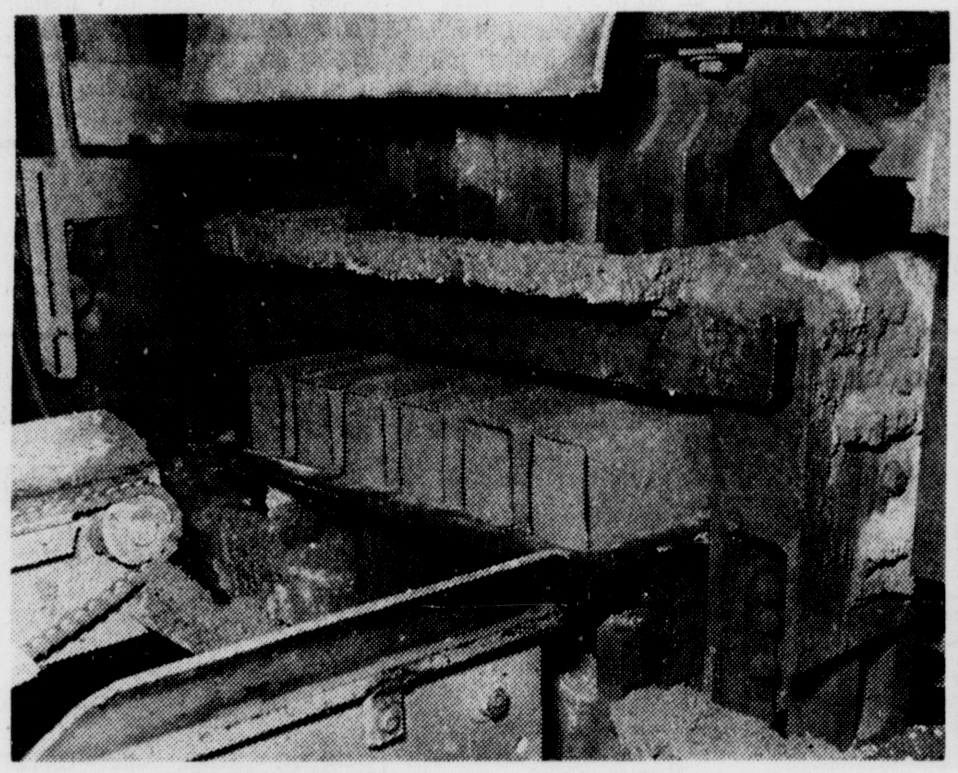
In more recent times, McNear's block has been used in the Marin Civic Center, the new federal building and the Crown-Zellerbach building in San Francisco, and many small projects such as the Independent-Journal's Novato office and the Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo.



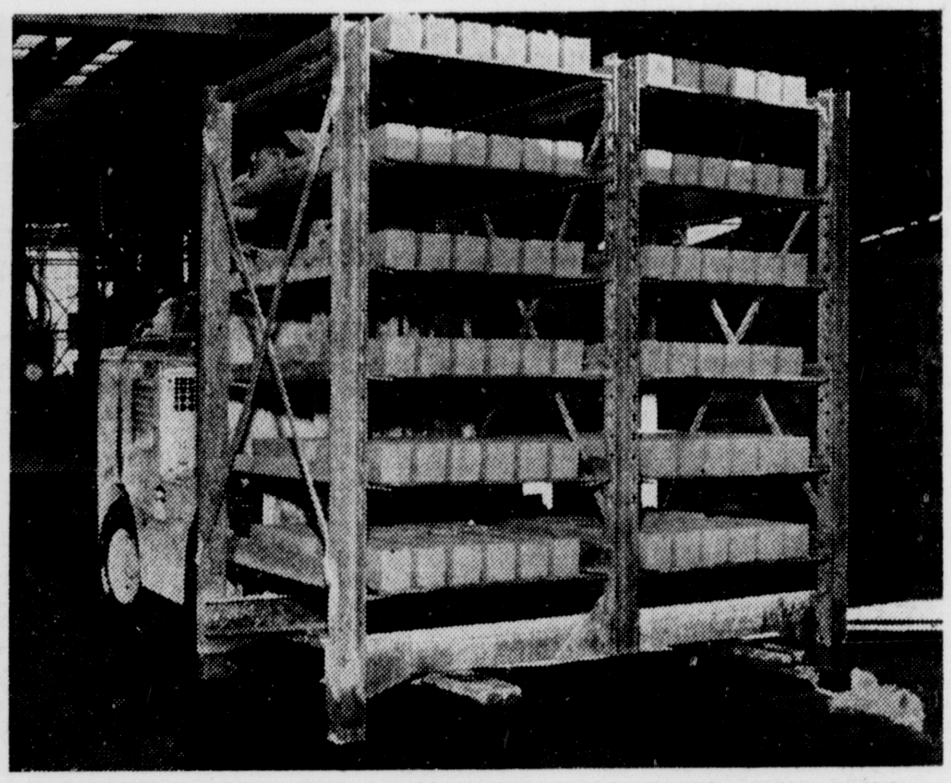
THE SHAKEDOWN — The roast shale is carried, after cooling, into the mill at right for grinding, then is sorted into three sizes of aggregate in the lower building at left. Fine grade is used for building blocks, coarser grades for such uses as heavy-duty concrete. The fine aggregate is poured into giant mixers in the fully-automated block-making plant.



HEAT BATH—Kiln tender Alex Perry pokes clinkers free in the business end of the 90-foot kiln which roasts the shale into Haydite. The oil-fed kiln, roaring like a jet engine, produces 2800-degree temperatures as the glowing rock cascades down its length. The plant has four such kilns for periods of high production.



BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW—A set of six slump blocks emerge from the forming machine, produced in 11 seconds according to electronic timing. The blocks are made of a "dry mix" concrete using as little water as possible, which gives greater strength. In the forms, the machinery then vibrates the blocks into higher density before sliding them out onto drying racks.



DOUBLE LOAD—Two racks of slump block (Slumplite is McNear's trade name for them) are carried by a forklift to curing sheds, where they will be bathed for 24 hours in low temperature steam and carbon dioxide. The curing produces a stronger block than would a week of natural drying, according to general manager Clayton K. Rice.

12 Servicemen Reported Behind The Iron Curtain

TOKYO (AP) — Twelve U.S. servicemen, aided by two Japanese antiwar groups, fled to the Soviet Union between April and August, police said today.

Police learned this while investigating the case of a U.S. sailor detained Tuesday night and later turned over to U.S. military authorities for being absent without leave since Sept. 14 from the U.S. Navy base at Yokosuka.

American spokesmen identified the sailor as Seaman Recruit Geral L. Meiers. They said he and two Japanese were in a car stopped for speeding in Kushiro, on Japan's northernmost main island, Hokkaido.

Police said the Japan Committee to Aid Antiwar Deserters — the Japan Committee for Peace in Vietnam—arranged for the Russians to take deserters from the Hokkaido port of Nemuro.

Officers said police plan to watch the two organizations although Japan has no laws providing for punishment of Japanese who help U.S. deserters to escape from Japan.

Two Brothers Accused Of Star's Killing

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two young brothers, described by police as transients from the Chicago area, were booked on suspicion of murder last night in the bludgeon death of silent screen lover Ramon Novarro.

Paul Robert Ferguson, 22 and his 17-year-old brother, Thomas Scott Ferguson, were arrested in Bell Gardens, just southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

INDICTMENTS ASKED

"After checking out the physical evidence, we decided we had enough of a case to ask for indicements," police Lt. G. W. Lauretzen said.

No further hint of "the physical evidence" or what led officers to the brothers was disclosed.

The older Ferguson arrived in the Los Angeles area about five months ago, Lauretzsen said, and was arrested last night in a restaurant. His brother was taken into custody at the home of a friend with whom he had been staying. Police said Thomas ran away from their mother's home in Round Lake, Ill., three weeks ago.

Novarro's male secretary, after entering the house with his own key, said he discovered the actor's nude body on a bed a week ago today.

SUFFOCATION DEATH

An autopsy indicated the old-time star suffocated on blood from his broken nose and battered mouth while lying unconscious. Furniture was overturned, and Novarro's glasses had been smashed. Bloodied clothing was found outside.

A weapon described only as "a striking instrument" was found the next day, investigators said.

There were no reported sign of robbery or forced entry into the $150,000 Laurel Canyon house, where Novarro lived alone. He never married.

One Marin Car Finishes Grueling Mexican Race

I-J Special Report

One Marin County car chugged across the finish line of the Mexican 1,000 off-road race from Ensenada to LaPaz today but the other one conked out about 200 miles from the starting gate.

A Ford Cortina, driven by Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax, crossed the LaPaz finish line at 4 a.m., ending the 832-mile (as the crow flies) race just under 45 hours.

A Volkswagen buggy driven by Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington of Sausalito suffered a breakdown in the rear suspension and failed to finish.

Californians Larry Berquist of Duarte and Gary Preston of West Covina, set a record of 20 hours, 38 minutes in winning the grueling race. The team, trading positions on a Honda motorcycle, broke the old mark of 27:45 for the test down the wild Baja California peninsula by more than seven hours.

A total of 233 vehicles was entered in the race which started Tuesday morning.

Winkelmann telephoned his wife in Marin County just as soon as he finished today.

"He was happy to just finish the race,'' said Mrs. Winkelmann. "He said it was just unbelievable. Their gear shift lever broke and they used a screw driver in its place for the last 300 miles of the race."

Mrs. Winkelman said her husband thought he was 84th vehicle across the line. "He was very happy just to finish the race. It was the first Ford Cortina to ever finish this race, I believe," she said.

"Just after the third check point, about 200 miles out at Rancho Santa Ynez, the shock mounts in the rear suspension broke," Hilton said.

"They limped back to Rancho Santa Ynez and discontinued the race," Hilton said. "They're in Ensenada this morning.

"We learned some lessons in the race . . . they'll come in handy next year. I hope to have three cars in the race next year," he said, his spirit not dampened by the car's first failure.

Berquist and Preston were followed by another motorcycle team of A. R. Rogers of Burbank, and Don Bohannon of Northridge in 21 hours flat.

Placing third over-all and first in their class were Larry Minor and Jack Bayer, both of Hemete, in a four-wheel-drive Ford Bronco. They finished in 21 hours, 11 minutes.

Andy De Vercelly Jr., of Coronada, and Tim McClelland of Spring Valley, were first in their class when they arrived in a Volkswagen-powered dune buggy in 22 hours, 37 minutes.

Last year's record of 26 hours, 8 minutes was set by Ted Mangels of Newport Beach, and Vic Wilson of Costa Mesa. They were eliminated this time when their Volkswagen-powered buggy conked out.

Only 100 of the 233 vehicles in the race had completed half the race when Berquist and Preston reached the tip of the Baja California peninsula. Nine entries finished and 16 others were within 100 miles of La Paz at 10 a.m.

One crash occurred 100 miles south of Ensenada when the developer of last year's winning dune buggy was seriously injured. Bruce Meyers of Fountain Valley, was taken to a San Diego hospital for treatment of injuries.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

It's Stiff Test For USC

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern California, with a bit of tarnish on its No. 1 reputation, faces a stern threat this weekend of having it completely blackened.

The Trojans, whose advantage over Ohio State in The Associated Press poll has been shaved to a paper thin edge, square off against defensive-minded California Saturday in a match that will probably not only determine one of the Rose Bowl participants but also the national champion.

67 YARDS

Sensational O. J. Simpson was held to 67 yards and Southern Cal needed a touchdown with just 1:13 left last week to squelch unheralded Oregon State 20-13 for its sixth straight.

Since Ohio State, also 6-0, is an overwhelming favorite against hapless Wisconsin, 0-6, Saturday, the Trojans undoubtedly will have to be impressive to maintain their hold on the top spot.

And, they will have to do it against a stingy defense. California, ranked No. 11, has permitted only 39 points in rolling to a 5-1-1 record.

While Ohio State should have an easy time of it, No. 3 Kansas and No. 4 Penn State—both eyeing Orange Bowl bids—face strong foes in their efforts to remain unbeaten.

Kansas, fresh from a 27-14 coast past Colorado for its seventh straight, plays host to stubborn Oklahoma, 3-3, and Penn State, 6-0, which survived a late rally to subdue Army 28-24, entertains erratic but strong Miami, Fla., 5-2.

No. 5 Tennessee, 5-0-1, tackles No. 18 Auburn, 5-2, in the second of a big day-night doubleheader involving two important Southeast Conference games at Birmingham, Ala. No. 20 Louisiana State meets Alabama in the afternoon game.

No. 6 Purdue travels to Minnesota for a Big Ten game that will be nationally televised.

No. 7 Michigan draws lowly Illinois, No. 8 Missouri plays Iowa State, No. 9 Georgia meets Florida at Jacksonville and No. 10 Texas travels to Baylor.

In other games, No. 12 Notre Dame plays host to Pittsburgh, No. 13 Houston has a night game at Memphis State, No. 14 Arkansas faces Rice, No. 15 Oregon State meets UCLA, No. 16 and unbeaten Ohio University is at Bowling Green, No. 17 Michigan State tests Indiana and No. 19 Wyoming is idle.

Warriors Expected To Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The last note in the San Francisco Warriors vs. Rick Barry suit has not been sounded.

Although Superior Court Judge Walter Carpeneti yesterday officially concluded the case, the National Basketball Association team is expected to go before a higher court to seek $365,000—the amount which Carpeneti said he feels the Warriors lost when Barry decided to jump to the Oakland Oaks of the rival American League.

However, in making his final statement, Carpeneti said if such monies were actually to be awarded, a higher court would have to decide it, an action which paves the way for the Warriors to appeal the case.

JIM GILMARTIN

Ron Begins Second Golf Year In Hawaii

JIM SHORTS:

This weekend's Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament marks the beginning of San Rafael resident Ron Cerrudo's second year as a touring pro.

It was just a year ago that Cerrudo, then 22 years old, made his play-for-pay debut in Honolulu and drew a blank at the pay window.

However, the husky young man has since found the secret to success. In 30 subsequent tournaments he won a check 24 times. Last Sunday's $550 finish in the Lucky International at San Francisco's Harding Park brought his rookie year total of earnings to $33,562.51.

His goal as a sophomore? "I hope to double that amount," he said as he headed toward the greenery of pro golf.

IT DIDN'T really rain in Petaluma last weekend. All that moisture came from tears spilled by followers of the Petaluma High School Trojans football team. And you can't blame 'em.

They Call It A 'Miracle'

You see, Petaluma hadn't won a game all season — six straight setbacks — going into its traditional battle with the Santa Rosa Panthers Friday night. After trailing 19-0 in the first half, the spunky Trojans launched a sensational comeback that saw them storm into a 21-19 lead on Don Figone's pass to Bob Garcia with only 13 seconds to go in the game.

Fans from the cackleberry capital of California (that's a yoke, son) were about to celebrate one of the great triumphs in the 49-year history of their "big game" until Santa Rosa took the ensuing kickoff and pulled what folks up that way call a "miracle." On the last play of the game Panther quarterback Ken Alton tossed a screen pass to track star Carl Sagon who sprinted 58 yards to a touchdown. Santa Rosa 25, Petaluma 21.

THINGS WEREN'T really happy around the Rohnert Park campus of Rancho Cotate High School, either.

All three TDs in Healdsburg's 20-0 victory over the Cougars came on punt returns of 76 and 70 yards by Tony Frye and 60 yards by Corky Griffin.

Practice Session Theme

SPEAKING OF themes, they should call Saturday night's Marin Catholic of Kentfield-St. Elizabeth's of Oakland high school football game in Kentfield the "Stale Yale Bowl."

Marin Catholic, which has posted a 3-3-1 won-lost-tied record, ends its season against a Mustang team that has played four ties in its seven games. Both teams have key men and combinations for success, so

Mullins' Shot Wins For S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a tight situation, the San Francisco Warriors give the ball to guard Jeff Mullins.

Mullins came through last night for the second time this season with a field goal at the last moment—this time with three seconds left — to give the Warriors a 94-93 National Basketball Association victory over the New York Knicks.

TRIES FOR FOUL

"I drive for the basket hoping for a foul," said Mullins after the squeaker before nearly 3,000 in the Civic Auditorium. "If I see I'm not going to get fouled I just take the best shot I can."

The Warriors had come from a 13-point deficit in the third quarter.

Clyde Lee, 6-foot-10, forward, appeared for the Warriors for the first time in two weeks and led the club with 25 points. Rudy LaRusso scored 240, 10 of them in the final quarter, and Mullins scored 20.

Cazzie Russell led New York with 18.

Cal's Coaches, Players Confident

BERKELEY (AP) — Coaches and players expressed confidence after the California football team worked out on a muddy field in preparation for Saturday's game against University of Southern California.

Coach Ray Willsey said yesterday he expected USC's O.J. Simpson might be used as a receiver if the Bear defense, one of the best in the nation, stops his running.

GRIDDERS PRAY FOR RECOVERY OF UCLA STAR

He is partially paralyzed from the neck down and remains in serious condition in University Hospital.

The Tennessee coaches, players and many coeds have visited Chrestman.

"He has so much courage," said guard David Browne.

Davis Cup Chief Is Confident, But Careful

SAN JUAN (AP) — With the United States Davis Cup tennis interzone playoff against India set for this weekend, Donald Dell, America's non-playing captain, is confident but careful.

Dell admits that his singles players, Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va. and Clark Graebner of New York, should give the U.S. an eddge but is wary of Ramanthan Krishnan, India's top player.

"Although we should be favored," said Dell, "it's going to be very close. Krishnan is one of the great Cup players. He can beat any given player on any given day."

Dell picked Ashe and Graebner as his singles players and named a doubles team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz, both of Los Angeles.

The winner of the U.S.-India match will challenge Australia for the Cup late next month. The United States last won the hardware in 1963.

Oaks Take On Indiana Pacers

The Oakland Oaks, compiling the best ABA record at 6-1 behind ABA scoring leader Rick Barry, entertain the Indiana Pacers, last in the Eastern Division with a 1-6 record at 8 o'clock.

Casper, Texan Smash Hawaii Course Mark

HONOLULU (AP) — Playing in tradewinds so weak they could barely make a palm whisper, favored Billy Casper and young Texan Jack Montgomery shot record 64s for the Waialae course, tuning up for the $125,000 Hawaiian International, which got under way today.

Casper's round was particularly spectacular, as golf's leading money winner this year made 10 birdies.

Casper had two bogeys and only six pars in his round of 31-33 in the Pro-Am portion of the tournament yesterday.

"I didn't know whether I would ever make a par," he said. "After 10 holes I had eight birdies and two bogeys. It was one of the finest rounds I ever played.

"I feel good and I am playing well," said Casper, the pre-tournament favorite.

"I won last week and although you can never tell in a golf tournament, I feel I have a good chance to repeat. I'm driving well, hitting my irons nicely and putting beautifully."

Montgomery, 27, from Fort Worth, scored 32-32. He and Casper broke the competitive course record for the 7,000-yard par 72 Waialae.

Hawaii's trade winds were weak to nonexistant and the sun half baked out the sometimes fierce rough making the course easy to play.

Gene Littler, whose 65 was the former course record, had 66 in the pro-am. So did Miller Barber and Terry Wilcox. Defending Open champion Lee Trevino scored 71.

Bosley Remains On Doubtful List

Bosley sprained his left knee in last Sunday's loss to Cleveland.

STATISTICS

Novato QB Is A Busy Thrower

There is evidence all around that Russ Dillon of Novato High School throws the football around a lot.

The evidence is in the weekly statistics, where Dillon leads in number of pass attempts during Marin County Athletic League play, number of completions, and number of yards.

His throws have been going somewhere because the top three receivers in loop play are from Novato — Jack Straw, Greg Davenport and Pete Weekly, although Weekly is tied with two others.

In the rushing department, Dave Hector, the big Tamalpais High School of Mill Valley fullback, took over the lead with his muddy, big day against San Rafael.

East German Home After All

BERLIN (AP) — Horst Koehler, East German dressage champion, returned home today and denied reports he had planned to stay in the West after the Olympic Games, the official East German news agency ADN said.

Informed sources said yesterday that Koehler, who placed fifth in the Olympic dressage competition Saturday, had decided to remain in the West.

Tamalpais Fullback Hector Gains Stature In The Mud

He's Picked As I-J Grid Prep Of Week

For San Rafael High School it was another dreary loss of missed opportunities; for rejuvenated Tamalpais High School of Mill Valley, it was another step toward a winning season in a 12-6, rain-muddy, windy-cold victory with several hundred unpaid seagulls attending.

Earthshaking or not, there was Dave Hector, big smile on his face, a thick coat of dripping mud obscuring face, number and shoelaces, running in abandon toward the nearest mud puddle and rolling in it in sheer goofy delight. And pretty soon, quarterback Don Mackin jumped in and frolicked.

126 YARDS

Hector should have been happy. He had sloshed, ripped, faked, skidded, and dug out 126 yards on a turf right out of a bad jungle movie. If you'd make cement imprints of every indentation on San Rafael's field, you could probably get a composite of David Hector, including a set of feet in the end zone.

Hector, "little" brother of coach Willie Hector, amassed the yardage on 21 carries, romped off on a twisting run of 35 yards to the one-yard line to set up one touchdown and slpashed in to score another touchdown while putting in a whole tough game at defensive end. It was an Independent-Journal Prep of the Week performance.

CLASSIC

Hector looks and runs something like the classic fullback, a knock-em-down, rambling blaster, but he has quite a few good moves when he gets out in the open that resemble classic halfback shifts more than, say, Jim Brown.

"You can't always run right over everybody," he said. "Which just goes to show you that a fullback CAN run around people."

He might make all-league, he might not, but whatever happens, it probably won't affect him all that much. He's a fellow that knows how to enjoy things. Like mountain-climbing, of which he says "you never really know the feeling until you've tried it." . . . or like rolling, laughing in the mud after a football victory.

HE'S NO. 1—Dave Hector of Mill Valley's Tamalpais High is Prep of the Week, as selected by the sports staff of the Independent-Journal. (Independent-Journal photo)

Lamonica Skips Raider Practice

"It's a charley horse, just above the joint." Lamonica said yesterday. "But the swelling is disappearling and I still think I'll play this week."

George Blanda, Cotton Dayidson and rookie Eldridge Dickey have been working out at quarterback, but Dapidson has not been activated from the taxi squad.

Mercer Tries For Packers' Kicking Job

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Mike Mercer, who kicked for Kansas City when the Chiefs bowed to the Packers 35-10 in the first Super Bowl, was in Green Bay yesterday — looking for a job.

"I think he can do the job," said Packer Coach Phil Bengtson after watching Mercer kick field goals on the rain soaked practice field. "He looked pretty good."

The 32-year-old veteran has kicked for four teams, in both the National and American Football Leagues.

He was drafted by the NFL's Minnesota Vikings in 1961 but was dropped. He also had kicked for Oakland, Buffalo and Kansas City in the AFL.

But Mercer may not get the job. Jerry Kramer, the guard who was Green Bay's kicker when the season started, has been place kicking for the first time since injuring his knee Oct. 20 and looks pretty good, Bengtson said.

Cardinals Just Keep Hitting Home Runs

NIIGATA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals kept up their home run barrage—belting four more out of the park—and held the Yomiuri Giants to just two hits today, scoring an 8-1 victory.

Two two-run homers by Curt Flood and one each by Mike Shannon and Lou Brock accounted for all the Cardinal runs. The National League baseball champions have hit nine home runs in their last two games.

St. Louis starter Steve Carlton held the Japanese champion Giants scoreless for four innings and reliever Mike Torrez, who was credited with the victory, gave up only two hits, including a home run by Yomiuri catcher Makoto Tsuchida.

Yale Football Win Streak Longest Since 1909-10 Era

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Coach Carmen Cozza has moved Yale football from one of the low points in the school's proud gridiron history to the longest victory streak Yale has had since 1909-10.

The onetime quarterback-defensive back at Miami of Ohio saw one of Yale's longest football streaks broken in his first game as head coach in 1965. Now he's the first Yale coach to win 14 consecutive games since the days of bare-headed football, when touchdowns were worth only five points.

In his head-coaching debut against the University of Connecticut, the 1965 Yale team lost 13-6, snapping a string of 86 consecutive victories by Yale over other Connecticut college teams.

Now atop the Ivy League with a chance for its first perfect season since 1960, Yale has been transformed from a squad noted for tough defense to one that is averaging 36 points per game in the 6-0 record so far.

Key to the switch is the magic touch of senior quarterback and team captain Brian Dowling. The balding, 36-year-old Cozza and Dowling both came to Yale from suburbs of Cleveland. Cozza left Parma, Ohio, to become a 60-minute-per-game player at Miami of Ohio, where he set a pass interception record that still stands.

Dowling, from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, was sought by some 100 colleges. He chose Yale after his late father, a steel company president, told Brian to "go first class."

Things have been first class ever since for Yale football. The Elis haven't lost when the 6-foot-3, 195-pound Dowling was available to play. All of the team's defeats in 1966 and in the first game of 1967 came with Dowling sidelined by injuries.

This season Yale is primarily a running team, with fast, powerful seniors such as Calvin Hill and Bob Levin operating behind a wall of experienced blockers.

Dowling has thrown only 101 times, which is just 19 per cent of Yale's offensive plays. But he's completed 59 for 1,064 yards—and that's 37 per cent of the yards Yale has gained.

Last Saturday Dowling's 324 yards passing and running broke Yale's total offense record as the Bulldogs routed Dartmouth 47-27. His 24 touchdown passes, in only 14 games, is a Yale career mark.

The fact that Dartmouth scored 27 points calls attention to Cozza's main worry—a defense that has suffered injuries. The current starters at defensive end weigh only 175 pounds each.

"We move around a lot on defense so the other team can't tell what we're up to," Cozza says.

Yale has been forced to "shoot all our guns at once," Cozza says, in an attempt to get ahead early in every game it has played.

"If we're ahead we force the other team into a gambling situation. Brian has been the perfect man for the job. He gets us ahead and he's kept us there whether the defense has held up or not," Cozza says.

Kentucky Coaching Job Sought By Many

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky already has received at least a dozen applications for the head football coaching job which Charlie Bradshaw is giving up at the end of the season.

Harry Lancaster, acting athletic director, says the list contains some well known names, adding that no deadline has been set for obtaining a replacement.

Watch Out For Saban And His Denver Broncs

OAKLAND — American Football League fans (there are several in Oakland alone) are quite thrilled about the tight race for the Western Division championship of the second-rate circuit.

Just when everyone expected the Raiders to run away with the division title, along came Kansas City and San Diego to complicate things — not to mention provide sellout crowds the rest of the year in, of all places, Kansas City, San Diego and Oakland.

Those with their ear to the AFL ground (an out-and-out menace to the aural nerve) suggest that San Diego can be discounted as a title threat. They must still play K.C., the Raiders and New York, supposedly the only teams in the league capable of an above-average performance.

YET BOTH Oakland and Kansas City are hampered by hurts to their quarterbacks. Lord knows when Daryle Lamonica and Leonard Dawson will once again be fit to fling the pigskin mightily, or whatever.

Gee whiz but it's gonna be close. Or is it?

Overlooked in the tingling suspense over the K.C.-San Diego-Oakland title tiff is the existence of yet another Western Division team — the Denver Broncos. Actually, millions of Americans overlook the existence of ANY football team in Denver, or possibly Denver itself.

WERE DENVER not surrounded by topographic beauty, it wouldn't matter a bit, save for the habitation there of a tabloid daily newspaper, a curiosity west of the Merchandise Mart.

Denver has always been fine for minor league baseball. After all, the Twins sent Billy Martin to managerial prep school there.

There also is a suburb sporting a face on a barroom floor. Otherwise, forget it.

That's why the Broncos must win the AFL West this year. Denver needs it, much as Oakland desperately had to have a football title last year. Cities depend now on their teams not their people for emotional sustenance.

THE BRONCOS have always been terrible in the AFL. Then they decided to lure Lou Saban out of the college ranks, to which he'd been driven by the insanity of coaching AFL stuff in Buffalo.

But all of a sudden everything has jelled for Denver and kind of fallen into a stalemate for San Diego, K.C. and Oakland. If there were ever a year for the likes of Steve Tensi, that unforgettable quarterback, and running back Floyd Little, the pride of Syracuse U., to topple the titans, '68 seems it.

DENVER CAN start that march to the top on Sunday with a victory over the Raiders. Then they can beat Oakland later on in the season at the Coliseum. The Broncs can also knock off K.C. and San Diego in single games — and of course win all other tilts in their schedule.

This would leave Denver with only four losses on the year. The Raiders too would have four. Figuring that K.C. and San Diego will each lose one more (the Chiefs to San Diego and San Diego to Oakland), that creates a four-way tie in the West's final standings.

THE BRONCOS most certainly appear on their way to Miami and a Superbowl meeting with Dallas — sometime in late February, of course, after the elongated AFL playoffis.

And why shouldn't Steve Tensi have every right in the world to be in the Super Bowl? He should live and be well.

ABA All-Star Game In Miami?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — George Mikan, American Basketball Association commissioner, said yesterday the new league may hold its second annual All-Star Game at Convention Hall here.

"Several other towns—primarily Louisville—want the game this year," Mikan said. "But the enthusiasm I see here leads me to believe it would be wise to put the game in here. Maybe around Jan. 28, or maybe a little later."

Mikan said he would promote a Miami Beach All-Star Game with the league's board of directors.

Seals May Move Back To 'Palace'

OAKLAND (UPI) — The possibility the Oakland Seals might move across the bay to San Francisco's Cow Palace was revealed yesterday by Frank Selke Jr., general manager of the National Hockey League team.

In an interview with a local television station (KBHK), Selke said, "If we can't improve our attendance (in the Oakland Coliseum Arena), we have to look at the Cow Palace."

The Seals, now in their second NHL season and among the top teams in the Western Division, has drawn an average of 4,000 fans in Oakland's two-year-old arena which holds more than 12,000 persons.

POSSIBLE

"It's safe to say if the Seals were to draw in games over there (five games are scheduled for the Cow Palace), we would have to reassess the entire Bay Area picture, depending on what we do in attendance the rest of the season in Oakland," Selke said.

One of the major objections of playing in the Cow Palace by league fathers was that the rink was too small—it is 15 feet short of standard NHL arenas.

But, Selke said, "There isn't any question a hockey team could get by very comfortably there."

Brewer's 67 Tops Australian Golf

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Gay Brewer Jr., of Dallas, the 1967 U.S. Masters champion, fired a six-under-par 67 today for the opening round lead in the Wills Masters Golf Tournament.

The Texas professional had a one-stroke edge over Peter Thomson of Australia, five-time winner of the British Open, with three other players another shot back at 69.

Tied at 69 were Gary Player of South Africa, Peter Townsend of Britain and John Newton of Australia. Guy Wolstenholme of Britain followed with a 70.

More Than Just Age Needed To Get Free Fishing License

STEVENS

A senior citizen (aged 71) asks if he is eligible for a free fishing license, and just what are the requirements to get one.

In the first place, age alone doesn't qualify a person for a free fishing license. He must be over 65, or 62 if a woman, a resident of California for the last five years, must be receiving aid to the aged under the Old Age Security law (not federal Social Security), and his total income must be under $140 per month is he is single.

"Income" includes salaries, pensions, interest, rents and other forms of income. If he can meet the above requirements, a fishing license will be issued free.

THE LICENSES are valid only for ocean fishing, but may be validated for inland fishing by the purchase of the proper $1 license stamps, two of which are necessary for trout fishing.

Persons receiving aid to the aged and who desire a free fishing license may obatin an application from their county welfare officer. Persons who are not receiving such aid but who meet the other requirements may obtain an application from the License Section, Department of Fish and Game, 1416 Ninth Street, Sacramento, 95814.

GOOD NEWS OF fishing the Klamath River, especially in the Happy Camp area. The report from Jim Roads, Klamath River Guide Service, reads: "Happy Camp Area: First good run of steelhead in the Happy Camp Area now. We took fish up to 8 pounds with limits or near limits on an 11-mile float trip; turned back steelhead of 4-5 pounds. A good storm has moved into the area which will also bring more fish upstream on the Klamath River.

"Have hooked several silver salmon (the first return of these from a plant a few years ago) up to 18 pounds."

An 18 pound silver salmon is a definite trophy fish. Seldom does a silver salmon attain a weight over 15-16 pounds.

STRIPER STRIVING locally remains unchaged. Both salmon and bass might be classified as spotty. Ditto in the back country. With cooler nights the bass are hitting a bit better. Catfishing has certainly improved and sturgeon fishing has held the spotlight this past week.

Most sturgeon have been lured by shrimp baits, which have also taken stripers.

Scoring Record

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bradley, former Princeton all-American, holds the single game scoring record in an NCAA championship basketball tournament when he threw in 58 points in the Tigers' 118-82 win over Wichita in 1965.

Pheasant Season Nearing

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

California's general pheasant season begins Saturday, Nov. 23. An army of shotgun addicts numbering close to 250,000 is expected to head afield in search of the gaudy roosters, imported nearly a century ago from the Orient.

While the birds are reckoned in fine supply in both major valleys virtually all the better hunting areas are located on private property.

If you haven't got a farmer or a rancher for a relative or a friend your best bet will probably be one of the 17 state and federal areas that will be open to the general public during the 16-day season.

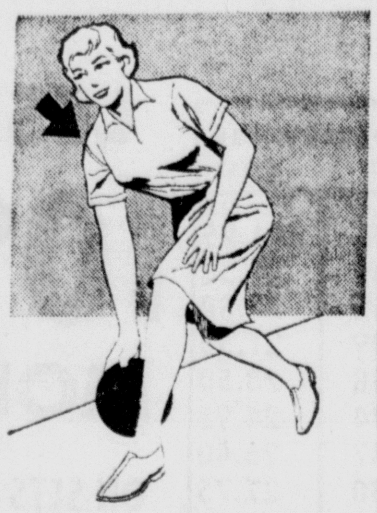
The Department of Fish and Game will operate three cooperative pheasant areas at Grimes, Colusa County; Tyer Island, Sacramento County, and Staten Island in San Joaquin County.

Five state wildlife areas — Honey Lake, Gray Lodge, Grizzly Island, Los Banos and Mendota—will also be open to pheasant shooters, although Honey Lake in Lassen County will be restricted to the waterfowl shooting days of Wednesday, Saturdays and Sundays.

Pheasant hunting also will be allowed on waterfowl shootdays on the Colusa, Delevan, Merced, Sacramento, San Luis and Sutter National wildlife refuges throughout the ringneck season. In addition the 1,160 acres of the San Luis National Wildlife Refuge will permit public hunting on Nov. 25, 26 and 29.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Perhaps it is because they are overcome by the weight of the ball, but many women bowlers are guilty of allowing the right shoulder to move too low at the release (illustrated). Such an error will usually cause the ball to miss to the left. Make it a point to keep your shoulders as level as possible at all times during the delivery and release.

Bullets Must Be For Real

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If an election were held today for the most surprising team in the National Basketball Association, the Baltimore Bullets would win hands down.

After five years of finishing in the depths of the Eastern Division, the Bullets have suddenly sprouted into a contender, and they picked up a few more votes last night with a rousing 140-119 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

FIFTH

The triumph was the fifth in a row for the Bullets, tying their longest winning streak since they returned to the NBA six years ago, and was also their ninth victory in 12 outings.

Only Cincinnati's 133-122 decision over the Chicago Bulls kept the Bullets from jumping into first place as they stand only 28 percentage points behind the 7-2 Royals and remained tied with the 6-2 Boston Celtics.

In the American Basketball Association, New Orleans defeated Miami 123-109, Denver defeated Indiana 109-107 in overtime, Kentucky crushed Minnesota 131-112, and Los Angeles overhauled Dallas 123-117.

UNSELD

The addition of rookie center Wes Unseld to compliment Earl Monroe has made the difference in Baltimore and they scored 22 and 29 points respectively along with 24 by Kevin Loughery against the Hawks. But it was Leroy Ellis and Ray Scott who led a 49-point fourth quarter surge that moved them from a 12-point deficit in the third period to a 104-90 lead.

Ellis hit all his 15 points and Scott 10 of his 14 in the final half.

BREEZE

Jerry Lucas and Tom Van Arsdale shot Cincinnati into a 69-42 lead in the first half and Oscar Robertson added 31 points as the Royals breezed.

Detroit won for the fifth time in six starts as its exploded from a 111-111 tie in the final period behind Dave Bing, who finished with 37.

Seattle Coach Al Bianchi drew three straight technical fouls and was ejected along with center Bob Rule.

Elgin Baylor's 33 points as Los Angeles broke open a tight game in the final period. Wayne Embry had 30 points for the Bucks.

Auctions will be held starting on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

WICKES LUMBER AND SUPPLY CO., which has an outlet at 5400 Old Redwood Highway, Petaluma, plans on entering the industrialized housing field. Additional products and supplies for builders and contractors will be sold through the company's retail stores such as the one in Petaluma.

JOHN N. RADOVICH of Mill Valley is $845 richer this month as a result of winning a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. suggestion plan award. His idea was for using a computer to facilitate cost estimates on construction costs by compiling records of past experience on various types of work and running statistical analyses on the information.

FRED RUDOW of San Rafael has been promoted to the newly created position of manager of corporate planning for Foremost-McKesson, Inc. of San Francisco. He has been manager of internal audit. Brown Shoe Co. Earnings Climb

ST. LOUIS (BW) — Brown Shoe Co. has declared a quarterly dividend of 37.5 cents per share, payable Dec. 2 to shareholders of record Nov. 15.

The board's action places the dividend at an annual rate of $1.50. The rate was increased to $1.30 last year and was again increased to $1.40 in June 1968. Brown has increased its dividend rate each year for 10 consecutive years.

Yule Club Checks Total $786,921

Bank of America Christmas Club checks to Marin County residents will total $786,921 when they are distributed this month.

Leroy Rudolph, vice president and manager of the San Rafael main office, said this compares with $731,529 in last year's local savings. The number of account holders is 3,609 this year, compared with 3,645 in 1967. He said the checks will be distributed in time for the holiday shopping season.

Market On Plus Side At Closing

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed today with increasing selective strength, although losses still outnumbered gains. Trading became more active.

Strength by a key blue chip, Johns-Manville, helped the industrial average climb back from the losing column.

Selling pressure eased and traders gradually began to buy as the market rallied from its lows. No particular news was connected with the improvement.

Prices near the close included:

Steels were generally lower as U.S. Steel followed other companies in announcing price cuts for hot-rolled sheets. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem lost about a point each.

The decline on average was cushioned by an upsurge of half a dozen points by Johns-Manville, a key blue chip. Wall Street sources talked of the company's previously announced uranium find in Canada.

Kayser-Roth, up about 3, also was very active as it continued to respond to the break-off of merger talks with Penn Central which dropped about a point in quieter trading.

Grumman was heavily traded and up 1½. Analysts said the company was helped by Nixon's strong statements on defense.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

International Paper Prospects Improving

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. During this period of inflation, should I invest some of my $38,000 savings? I am living on Social Security and own 100 shares of International Paper. I would appreciate your opinion on this company also. — G. P.

A. A recent decision to enter the field of disposable healthcare products has strengthened International Paper's long-term outlook. Marketing of this new line of nonwoven fiber products will be facilitated by the planned acquisition of Davol, Inc., a manufacturer of professional and consumer medical products.

Nine-month earnings showed a moderate gain and full-year results should be well ahead of the $2.03 a share of 1967.

Your obvious uneasiness about your savings is well founded, with inflation in just the last two years cutting the spending power of $1 to 92 cents. Investing at least half your savings in conservative blue-chip issues would allow your capital a better opportunity for keeping pace with the economy.

Q. I have held American Electronic Laboratories for several years and have an excellent profit. The price drop and subsequent sideways action has left me wondering if I should take profits now. — N. G.

A. I see no reason to sell. Sales and earnings for the fiscal nine months through August were up significantly. Full-year earnings could reach 65 cents a share on sales of $24 million, if he current level of gain is maintained in the final quarter.

Several areas of the company's commercial business hold great promise: micro-circuitry, CATV equipment and medical electronic devices. Because government contracts account for 80 per cent of volume — divided between hardware and research — there is an element of risk in AEL.

With backlog now at $26 million and new order inflow at a good level, American Electronic Labs should continue to expand its uptrending sales record. Shares are trading at about 38x estimated 1968 earnings, rather high but not out of line with its group.

Bethelehem Steel Declares Dividend

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (BW) — Bethlehem Steel Corp. has reported net income for the third quarter of 1968 at $21,738,000, equivalent to 49 cents per common share, compared to $23,158,000, or 50 cents a share in the same 1967 period.

At the same time directors declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on the common stock, payable Dec. 10 to stockholders of record Nov. 12.

What Of Tomorrow's High School Students?

The San Rafael city schools administration is toying with the idea of turning San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools into "cluster schools." Board of education members seemed pleased with the notion at a special meeting at which it was discussed last Saturday.

To create the "cluster schools," some buildings would be remodeled, some changed in use, some new ones added. The result would be a sort of "school within a school" concept in which the student body would be divided into units of not more than 200 students each, although central facilities would be shared by all.

This "small group" concept was advanced by Aubrey Haan of Educational and Community Consultants and Planners, who formerly headed the school of education at San Francisco State College. The plans for its implementation were worked out by architects Richard C. Marshall and Chester Bowles Jr., employed by the city schools to plan future development of both high and elementary schools. A "feasibility study team" headed by Supt. John F. Plank participated in the study.

IN THE PRESENTATION, the study team and its consultants emphasized that both San Rafael and Terra Linda could be converted to the new concept at less than half the cost of building new schools. During Saturday's discussion, board member John C. Pfeiffer talked of a cost of $11 million to $12 million.

The report contained much language about designing schools "with reference to the problems of our time," etc. It held that high school students feel their education bears too little relationship to the real world, and that the "small group" concept, plus more orientation toward community participation and training in service skills, could help correct this.

The whole approach sounds interesting.

BUT IF YOU NOTICED something was missing — well, it was.

The $11 million to $12 million package would convert the present two high schools without expanding them. Each would still accommodate 2,000 students.

What about the additional students for whom the board of education has been discussing a third high school?

Nothing about them.

IT SEEMS TO US that the San Rafael Board of Education should put first things first. The proposed plan might be a vast improvement over the present schools. But the present schools are operable. Curriculum revisions may be made with little or no building costs. Meantime, some provision needs to be made for the additional students who will soon reach high school age.

We suggest the "small groups" idea be tried for the third high school. Then, if it works as well as the proponents think it will, the citizens of the high school district might be willing to put up the additional $11 million or $12 million to put it into San Rafael and Terra Linda highs.

Let's not wind up with overcrowding and an impossible debt load for something that looks fine but may not be necessary — and may prove not very desirable.

What's In A Name?

To some of Marin's more scholarly gardeners, the scientific name of a shrub or plant is of vital importance. As they correctly note, common names vary from country to country, and even from place to place, making it impossible to convey reliable inofrmation through their use.

Many of our busy and devoted gardeners prefer the friendly and familiar sound of a common name. As one green-thrumber recently pointed out, it's a lot easier and more fun to say Toyon or Christmas berry tree than it is to try to pronounce hetermeles arbutifolia.

One couple of diligent gardeners even have fun with the common names of their plants, changing them in order, as they smilingly say, to keep in step with modern semantics. For example, pampas grass achieves such a size in Marin they have renamed it pompous grass. And they have rechristened their tradescantia fluminensis, commonly known as wandering Jew, to peripatetic Semitic.

California Tapping Further Gas Supplies From Far Away

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Over the years, it has been necessary for California to import natural gas to keep up with industrial progress and the tremendous increase in population.

This fuel for home and industry is piped into the state from great distances, Canada and Texas, and the amount used is staggering to the imagination.

PACIFIC GAS and Electric Co. alone, which serves northern and central California, announced recently it is installing new compressor facilities which will cost $11.2 million. These will be on two major pipelines and will handle increased volumes of out-of-state natural gas approved for delivery by the Federal Power Commission.

The FPC approved delivery of 200 million cubic feet of additional gas daily from Canadian sources by Pacific Gas Transmission Co., and 103 million cubic feet daily from fields in the southwest operated by El Paso Natural Gas Co.

These new supplies, according to Shermer L. Sibley, president of Pacific Gas and Electric, will bring the company's average out-of-state gas imports to 815 million cubic feet daily from the Alberta-California pipeline, and 1.14 billion cubic feet daily from El Paso.

"These additional gas resources," Sibley said, "will provide for the growth of our customers' demands for the next several years."

In bolstering the system to supply more gas to customers, no additional pipelines will be laid, as the new compressors will increase the transmission capacity of the existing lines.

THE COMPANY will build a $5.6 million compressor station at Burney, in Shasta County, for the Canadian gas.

Compressor stations at Hinkley and Kettleman on the PG&E "superinch" pipeline reaching from the California-Arizona border to San Francisco Bay are being expanded, and these will handle the increased El Paso gas.

Considering the fact that importation of gas was developed as a supplement to the fields located in California, one can get a general idea of the magnitude of the operation.

Gifts Of Our Money To Congress Lame Ducks

(Reprinted from Riverside Press)

Two lame duck members of Congress, both defeated for renomination in their party primary, are getting in on one last junket abroad at taxpayer expense.

Sen. Edward Long, D-Mo., is in the middle of a two-month world tour that will take him to 19 countries. And Rep. Barratt O'Hara, D-Ill., left late last month for a month-long trip to Africa.

The ostensible purpose of congressional trips abroad is to gather information to make legislative recommendations. Even in normal times, too often the suspicion is that the members are enjoying a vacation.

In the cases of Senator Long and Representative O'Hara, however, it is an out-and-out boondoggle. They are not going to be in a position to make any recommendations which they could help implement. Congress has adjourned and neither man will be back when the new session convenes in January.

Apparently, their committee chairman authorized both men to make the tours, during which they will collect a $50-a-day allowance.

This business of giving departing members a final shot of congressional overseas largesse isn't anything new; but the precedent does not make it any more palatable. The practice ought to be outlawed.

If their colleagues want to give the lame-duck congressmen a farewell gift, let them pass the hat.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Five Laud Pose Of Two Sprinters

The black fists of sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos, held high in a symbol of value at the 1968 Olympic Games, were appropriate by our scale of values. Dignity begins first of all in the individual, and the "black fist" represents a call for all blacks to affirm their basic worth and their right to participate equally in American society. These two Americans reveal in their highest athletic moment that they have not forgotten their deepest commitment. The Americans who screamed that "they" have disgraced America, fail to see that they are the embodiment of American ideals — free men! Whether Smith and Carlos were looking up or down isn't the crucial point. What matters is that they know who they are and they want to help others to find themselves.

Conservation League Bay Stand Backed

Richardson Bay is one of the precious natural resources of Marin. All our citizens should have the maximum possible opportunity to see and use the bay. That is why the county master plan calls for a marina green — with pedestrian and bicycle paths, fishing and boating facilities — on the shore south of Richardson Bay Bridge.

The right place for convention facilities in Marin, as the master plan shows, is at the Civic Center. We can regulate houseboats and dredge the channel without changing Richardson Bay into a miniature Miami Beach. There would be some tax revenue from the Nowell hotel project, also many costs in additional public services. And the marina green plan would be gone forever!

Mrs. Mary Summers was one of the authors of the county master plan. Now she's fighting for its best features through the Marin Conservation League. She and the league deserve support.

Racism Charged In Book Removal

I am the parent of a student currently attending Vallecito Junior High School and the parent of a student who previously attended Vallecito and is now at Terra Linda High School.

I am not surprised but I am once again alarmed at this latest expression of a more subtle form of racism in our schools.

"Nigger," a book by Mr. Dick Gregory, acknowledged nationally as an important statement which can contribute to our better understanding of a most crucial problem, has been declared as unfit reading for junior high school students at Vallecito.

It has been consistently demonstrated in the Dixie District, by the elimination of current black-white problems as part of our curriculum, that we care very little, if at all, about educating our children to cope with the problems, in this area, they must eventually confront. . . .

I am confident that our students need and can very well handle the material presented in "Nigger." I am not so sure about Mr. Willis, our superintendent.

Cooperation Helps Bridge Experiment

The 90-day test of the one-way toll system on the Golden Gate Bridge has gotten off to a good start. The early and apparent success of this experiment has been due in large part to the high public cooperation. This cooperation was readily apparent from the beginning moment of the experiment.

Everyone here at the bridge is deeply appreciative of the help received from you and your staff. Let me say "thank you" on behalf of all of us here at the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

Campaign Spending Goes Up, Up, Though Remedies Are Available

WASHINGTON — The pious talk and the pious proposals for putting an effective curb on campaign spending are conveniently forgotten when a presidential election rolls around. The orgy of spending just ended — it unquestionably set a record — suggests that we are nearer than we would like to think when an election can be swung by the sheer power of money.

The new element, the dominant element, is television. The Nixon camp is reported to have spent close to $15 million on television and radio alone. Because they were hard pressed for money at the start, the Humphrey managers were able to commit far less time in the critical wind-up period.

The federal statute governing campaign contributions is virtually meaningless. How meaningless is shown by the cavalier way in which the Nixon managers passed over the Oct. 26 deadline for filing reports of campaign receipts and expenditures under the Corrupt Practices Act. This insured that the voters would have no opportunity to learn the names of the Nixon contributors and how much they contributed prior to election day.

THE BIG spending is when the operators for the several candidates go into the marketplace and compete for prime television time. Those are the evening hours when the fattest profits accrue from sponsored programs that have lately come in for wide criticism for their stress on violence.

While television is the most conspicuous aspect of the spending orgy, it is only part of a system that has grown up with the money game tied into politics. The big contributors can shuffle their contributions in a variety of ways to get around the $5,000 limit imposed by the meaningless statute. The report filed by the Humphrey managers showed that 18 contributors gave or loaned $100,000 each, some upping this to $200,000.

SURELY NO ONE at this late date is naive enough to believe that the fat cats do not expect a return on their investment. There may be ardent partisans giving for the love of party. But time and again the rewards have been made evident after the returns are in. They come in an ambassadorship or some other fairly innocuous showy appointment. Far more important are the cash nexus and the regulatory agencies that rule on issues directly related to the big corporate contributors.

The Washington Post has shown how the executives of, say, a brokerage firm can be organized to make individual contributions and thereby circumvent the prohibition on direct corporate giving. Candidate Richard Nxion had assured the brokers in a letter intended to be private that his administration would see that the Securities and Exchange Commission took a more lenient view of the marketplace.

SPOKESMEN for the Democratic National Committee insist that all the reports required by law for the deadline of Oct. 26 were filed on time. They note that the law provides a penalty of one year in jail for failure to file and two years for wilful failure. Their big-money contributors made headlines.

Under pressure to make their lists available after the filing deadline, the Republicans replied that their staff was insufficient to do the job. Republican National Committee treasurer J. William Middendorf said the delay was due to a last-minute influx of contributions for a total of $300,000. The Nixon top campaign staff is made up almost entirely of members of the Nixon law firm who surely know the law on filing returns.

The real issue is not disclosure, but spending itself. Numerous remedies have been proposed over the years — and income tax deduction for small contributions, really meaningful restrictions on contributions, government financing for all or part of a campaign limited to three or four weeks. They are there if a new Congress cares to reflect on the biggest spending spree of all.

Liu Ouster Does Not Mean End Of China Rift

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

Mao Tse-tung appears to have won another round in the bitter power struggle raging within the Red Chinese hierarchy but it is only a round, and an end to the tortures which grip the Chinese mainland is not in sight.

The Chinese Communist news agency Hsinhua announced that a previously undisclosed meeting of the Central Committee of the Chinese Communist party formally had expelled President Liu Shao-chi from all party and other posts.

The announcement denouncing Liu as a "traitor, renegade and scab" marked the first time he had deen mentioned by name in a party declaration since the beginning of the party purge in 1966. previously he had been identified only as "China's Khrushchev."

IT WAS a victory for Mao at what appears to have been a rigged meeting of the Central Committee, packed with Mao's followers and its success assured by the presence of "responsible" leaders of the socalled revolutionary committees in the provinces and municipalities and of the army in whose hands Mao's fate now rests.

The story of the convulsions wracking Red China comes out but slowly.

Seemingly it began in 1966 with the announcement of Mao's cultural revolution.

Actually, it began in 1959 in the midst of chaos left by Mao's "great leap forward" and the organization of China's millions into thousands of huge communes in 1958.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT in 1959 declared that Mao was giving up his position as head of state to Liu Shao-chi in order that he might have greater freedom in party and state affairs.

Later Mao was to complain that Liu and his other arch-foe, Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Teng Hsiao Ping, "treated me as if I were their dead parent at a funeral."

"I was most dissatisfied with the decision," he said, "but there was nothing I could do about it."

In 1966, he made his move, using the army as his base and rampaging youthful Red Guards as his spearhead.

Lin Piao, Red Chinese defense minister, became his heir apparent and Liu Shao-chi, for nearly 30 years his chief lieutenant, first reduced in rank and then disgraced.

BUT THOUGH the formal action against Liu would suggest Mao no longer fears him politically, the battle still is far from over.

Presumably, Liu technically remains chief of state, since it is an elective post determined by the National's People's Congress which has not met since 1965.

Indicating continuing fear of violent opposition in the provinces was the failure to set a date for the ninth National Party Congress, now more than 10 years overdue.

Hong Kong analysts say Mao is unlikely to risk such a congress unless he can be sure of 100 per cent unity.

Government, in the last analysis, is organized opinion. Where there is little or no public opinion, there is likely to bef ound, so in the bosom of sooner or later becomes autocratic government. — W. L. Mackenzie King.

Marin Collegians Demonstrate Command Of Four-Letter Words

There's a fear that if you publicize the use of obscenity, the young will be even more prone to use it.

I'm not fearful, however, that this is the case at College of Marin. As evidenced at a recent "Controversy" speech gathering with no less than 2,000 young men and women students attending, they aren't likely to learn many new four-letter words.

And if some of those who spoke during the question-answer period are examples, the words already are very much part of their speaking vocabularies, and publicity (or lack of it) will have little to do with their popularity.

I CAN'T SAY I was shocked — well, maybe a little — when the speaker from Berkeley first tossed off a phrase that makes the more "common" four-letter words seem almost respectable. And once, when a red-haired co-ed stood up and brought forth words once reserved exclusively for men, I'll grant that it tasted peculiar to me. But mostly I was far from what they would have defined as uptight about the blue word haze.

For one thing, the occasion was to have been a presentation by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver. Anyone in his unblown mind should have expected to be riddled and pommeled with shock phrases (and probably some jolting but deserved accusations).

Too, although Cleaver didn't show up, the co-speaker was the founder of the Youth International Party, a group not overly impressed with homes in the suburbs, the PTA, and sexual abstinence until marriage. It was this fellow, Jerry Rubin, who set the pace, of course. The readiness and ease with which the students tossed it back, however, was something else again.

TRUE, THE USE of such words is not novel at the college. Part of the orientation of incoming freshmen this fall was mimeographed copies of "The Student as Nigger" by Gerald A. Farber. The essay is well-salted with four-letter words, obscenities and pornography thrown in. Two students last April turned an antidraft rally at the college into a vehicle for delivering a few obscene epithets.

There were faculty members present at the latter affair. They weren't offended, although one later said some of the language was unfortunate.

Frankly, I rather enjoyed Rubin. His get-up of Viet Cong flag for a cape and dangling gold crosses for earrings was kooky enough for any Halloween atmosphere. I couldn't concur more with him that taking tremble-lipped offense at also wearing the American flag is nonsense. The British even make paper flag handbags that can be used to wrap fish in, if someone has such poor taste.

Almost immediately, Rubin had the huge gymnasium crowd laughing with him. It was difficult to do otherwise. He needled the pomposity of politics and the sometimes exaggeration of the evils of marijuana. I laughed and laughed at how neatly he fielded questions from the audience. Maybe my lips trembled a mite at some of the obscenity, but mostly it was entertaining.

IT WASN'T until later that I realized that I was downloose not only because the humor was fast and twinkle-eyed, but because I didn't really know any of the girl students there and therefore wasn't offended or embarrassed on behalf of some sweet and pure-minded thing whose family are friends of my family and who was being exposed to such a session.

In short, it was fun but I guess I wouldn't want my sister to attend.

If a nation values anything more than freedom, it will lose its freedom; and the irony of it is that if it is comfort or money that it values more, it will lose that also. — W. Somerset Maugham.

ART BUCHWALD

High Price For Blowing Fuses When Administration Changes

WASHINGTON — It is only natural, as the Johnson administration nears its end, that magazine and book publishers should be descending on the White House to sign up everybody in sight for their memoirs.

The sidewalk in front of the White House is jammed these days with editors carrying satchels of money that they have been ordered to give out in advances to anyone who can offer insights into the Johnson years. The competition for memoirs is something fierce.

AS I WAS LEAVING a White House briefing the other afternoon, several editors ran up to me at the gate and shoved contracts in front of my face.

"I don't work in the White House," I explained. "I don't know any more about what went on there in the last five years than you do."

Disappointed, they turned away from me and then rushed up to a man in overalls carrying a bag of tools.

"What do you do in the executive mansion?"

"I'm an electrician," he said.

"I'LL GIVE YOU $10,000 to write the story of how you wired the White House," an editor shouted.

"Fifteen thousand," a book publisher yelled, "if you tell us the inside story on how President Johnson made you change all the bulbs."

"Are you crazy?" the electrician said. "I've already been offered $25,000 by Life magazine to write about the time the President blew a fuse during the Fulbright Gulf of Tonkin hearings."

"Don't sign," the Look editor said, waving 35 $1,000 bills. "We'll give you this, plus a percentage, if you tell the inside story of when Johnson switched from AC to DC over Vietnam."

THE ELECTRICIAN shook his head. "There are certain things between me and the President that I can't talk about, even after he leaves office. They're in my diary and that's where they're going to stay."

"You kept a diary?" a publisher asked.

"Sure. How else would I know where all the plugs were? That's a big house."

"I'll give you $50,000 for the diary without reading it," the publisher said.

"Gosh," the electrician shook his head. "I don't know what to say. There's some stuff in there that's very personal, like the time I put in an extension cord for the President's electric blanket when Lynda Bird decided to tell her parents about her engagement to Captain Robb."

"I'll give you $75,000," another publisher shouted.

"WHAT ELSE is in the diary?" the editor of the Ladies Home Journal demanded.

"Well, there was the day when Walt Rostow was briefing the President on the Pueblo and he got so excited he stuck his finger in a socket and got a shock."

The Harper & Row editor said, "I'll bid $100,000."

The electrician looked confused. "Is it worth that much?"

"Of course. You'd be the first one to shed any light on the Pueblo incident."

"I THINK I better talk this over with my agent," the electrician said. "All these offers are bewildering. I knew my memoirs were worth something, but I didn't think they would fetch $100,000."

"Why not?" the Putnam publisher said "You controlled the power in the White House, didn't you?"

"Now that you mention it," the electrician said, " I guess I did. What am I offered for the movie rights?."

People who read journals of opinion do so either to find their own opinions supported or for the perverse pleasure of noting how idiotic the opposing opinion has become. — Frank Getlein in Washington Star.

Antismoking Class Still Has Some Openings

A "smoking withdrawal clinic" being offered by Redwood High School's adult evening school, starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, still has a few openings, according to Duncan MacSwain, instructor.

The clinic, which is also sponsored by the Marin Interagency Council on Smoking and Health, will feature six two-hour sessions for people who want to quit smoking.

MacSwain said the program is "quite frankly experimental."

On the first night participants will attempt to evaluate their smoking habits. After a six-day break, he class will meet again on Nov. 18 and on three successive nights to hear physicians and psychiatrists discuss smoking.

The class will meet once more during the following week to conclude the session.

Auditing Session

The finance and auditing committees of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District board will meet at 10 a.m. tomorrow in district offices at the toll plaza. The regular meeting of the full board follows at 10:30 a.m.
